BRITISH CP EXPELS EIGHT DISSIDENTS

Eight dissident members of the British Communist party, defenders of Mao Tse-tung's position as against Khrushchev's, were expelled November 20. The grounds were "breaches of rule." The eight had distributed a document for the information of party members and at a press conference had made their differences with the party public property, including harsh attacks on the leadership.

In addition to favoring Mao, the eight praise Stalin and have attacked "Trotskyism."

Besides the leader Michael McCreery, seven others are involved: Alf Cross, Tony Hall, Malcolm Jervis, Ron Jones, Peggy Pinckheard, Hassan Sheriff and Silvia Sheriff.

World Outlook was published by Pierre Frank, Joseph and Reba Hansen in Paris, France. It was published in 1963 under the auspices of newly created United Secretariat of the Fourth International. Published out Paris it was eventually moved to New York City and published by the US Socialist Workers Party as a fraternal courtesy to the USFI. With the change of location it started, under Joseph Hansen's editorship, reflecting the politics of the SWP and away from the strictly European USFI influence. In 1968 it was renamed Intercontinental Press.]
