The Future World War Act I.

Morkers' 32 Dreadmought

FOR INTERNATIONAL COMMUNISM.

Founded and Edited by SYLVIA PANKHURST

VOL. VIII. No. 10.

SATURDAY, MAY 21st, 1921.

[WEEKLY.] PRICE TWOPENCE.

FROM THE INTERNATIONAL.

Moscow, 6th May (via Stockholm).—The Central Executive Committee of the Communist International addresses the following letter, signed by Zinoviev and all the members of the Executive, to all the parties and organisations affiliated, or who wish a affiliate to the Communist International:—

The Third World Congress has been summoned n Moscow on June 1st. After the second Congress lost of the parties have thoroughly discussed the theses issued by the Executive. Almost everywhere has led to a split between the Communists and e Centrists. This was the period during which al Communist Parties were brought into being and were constituted. The Third Congress, out of he work which has been achieved, will have to lraw the conclusions: it will give the International ts final form and tactics. First on the agenda of the Third Congress is the report of the Exeutive Committee. This is intimately connected with he campaign and the splits in many parties, which characterise the lest period. The Executive Committee will lay a report of its conclusions before he Third Congress, which must pronounce its judg-

The second item on the agenda deals with the world-wide economic crisis and the new aims of the International. By weighing up the facts and analysing this crisis, the congress of the workers of the whole world will prove the incorrectness of the reformist perception and will have to show the ludicrousness of those who still believe that capitalism can be resuscitated.

The third and fourth items on the agenda deal with the tactics of the International during the revolution and in the interim period: United demands, united actions and the final revolutionary struggle. The congress will take into account the experiences of the Russian and German workers, and those of other countries. Out of the best of them it must formulate the tactics of the Communist Parties, on the one hand free from sectionalism and the mania for sensational results, on the other hand leading to the close linking up with the masses of the proletariat, which must remain unswervingly true to revolutionary Marxism.

Points 5 and 6 are: The Trade Union movement, the fight against the Yellow Amsterdam International the International of the Red Trade Unions. Here the fight will be decided between the 2nd and

GREAT CFFENSIVE

WAGES

HOW TO HELP THE

LATION

EVERY

ARTICLES

AMERICAN BOSS
CLASS
NEWSPAPERS

NEWSPAPERS

REDCER

"PITY THE BLIND."

the 3rd Internationals, i.e. between proletariat and bourgeoisie. The congress will have to decide the mutual relations between the Red T.U. International and the Communist International. Much in the structure of the International of the workers' movement depends upon the decision arrived at.

All organisations must study this question and come to the Congress with the thought-out decision.

Items 7 and 8 deal with questions of the internal organisation of the parties, with the methods and tenor of their actions; with the structure of the International with its relation to its various affiliated parties. We have to examine (1) The constitution of the individual parties separately; (2) the limits of admissible autonomy as between the members towards the Executive, and the concentration which is necessary for guiding the international struggle of the proletariat. In other words:

On what bases shall the International be built up so that it may successfully fulfil its mission?

Item 9 deals with the question of the East.

Whilst this was theoretically outlined at the Second Congress, we must now define it practically.

Item 10 is of intrinsic importance. This is the Italian question. Under the Centrist influence, Serrati, the Congress of Legnorn has refused to accept the twenty-one conditions of the Second Congress. The Communist workers have formed a Communist Party, which is the only Italian section recognised by the Communist International.

The Socialist Party of Serrati has been shut out of the Communist International. Serrati has appealed to the Third Congress against the decision. The Executive Committee willingly leaves this matter to the decision of the Third Congress. The Italian question has become of international importance through its echo in the United Communist Party of Germany. The Congress will bring full light to bear upon this matter and lead to a comprehensive solution.

The agenda deals further with the position of the Communist Workers' Party of Germany, with the Women's and Youths' movements. Finally the Executive Committee will bring up on the agenda the economic policy and conditions of Sovi t Russa

We call upon all parties and organia ins wii are affiliated to the Communist International imm diately to study and discuss, on the broadest buil the questions on the agenda. The notes should inmediately be taken. The Executive Committee invites all parties to send, if possible, large dele gations, which should consist of one-third from the Central Committee and two-thirds from tho branches which are in close touch with the mass If possible, the Congress must comprise many wor and our ers so as to reflect the spirit of the prolatation The Central Executive Committee expects also women and youth delegates. The decisions of the Third Congress must be prepared and discus d by dozens, by hundreds of meetings of the works 9 Time presses. Get quickly to the work of the Party! The Central Executive Committee as is he parties to send reports of their activities during the past year, so as to define the attitude of the various parties in this connection on the agenda.

HOUSE OF COMMONS AND PROPAGANDA.

The members of the House of Commons are really very much upset at the way things are going. They asked scared questions about Revolutionary Propaganda, said it was paid for from abroad, and the law was not strong enough to deal with it. They have got D.O.R.A. and the Emergency Powers Act, under which no man's person or property is safe from attack by the authorities, under which you may not express an opinion by word mouth or in writing without running the risk of six months in gaol, and still "the law at present isn't strong enough to deal with revolutionary movements in this country," according to Mr. Gwynne: What more do they want? To be able to shoot us dead at sight, because we might hold different opinions to them, as they are doing in Ireland? Mr. Lloyd George said they had already instituted some prosecutions (which have resulted in increased numbers taking part in active propaganda). Should it be necessary to ask the House to legislate on this matter they would do so. He thought it a mistake to rush too soon into action. He believed in the good sense of the British working classes, and did not believe they would be misled by these people. "Once it is known there is foreign instigation, even a good object would be discredited if it was patent that it comes from foreign sources." But his faith in the insularity of the British worker is out of date. Too many of them have been in foreign countries and have seen for themselves that there are sometimes better conditions there than here, for that old fetish to continue. He does not believe "in patent medicines either in politics or in the general physical state of a man's health. I think it much better to keep up the general condition—(hear, hear)—to see that the nation is fed, and if the nation is fed we need not fear Communism or Bolshevism, or any disease of that kind." He was much more concerned with this aspect of the matter, and that was all he had to say for the moment on this important topic.

Mr. Gwynne: "Are we to wait and see?",

"No, watch and pray." (Laughter.)
And, as ever under capitalism, when it is a question of benefiting the workers, it ended in laughter!

We read of men falling down from exhaustion in the unemployed queues outside the Labour Exchanges, but what has Mr. Lloyd George done to feed them, for they have been unemployed quite long enough for him to have put the solution into operation if he has one? But Lloyd George has no solution to the question of feeding the workers properly, because there is none under Capitalism. Communism, or Bolshevism, is the cure and not the disease.

The mining question was the next problem tackled in reply to speeches by Mr. Holmes (Lib.), who proposed as a basis for settlement that until September 30th every man in the coal industry should receive his 1914 rate of wages, increased according to the index figure of the cost of living of the previous month (a fallacious figure, remember). In the event of the coalowner losing during this period he should be able to claim repayment from the Government, but the amount so repaid should not exceed the total loss, nor the difference between the amount which the coalowner had offered to pay to his workmen during the present month and the amount he would actually pay under this present scheme. If the coalowner made a profit, if the wages paid to his workmen were less than those he had offered, the coalowner should pay to the Government the difference, provided the payment did not exceed his total profit. To obviate the whole dispute beginning all over again on September 30th, he suggested that the parties to the dispute should get together and immediately resume their conferences, and if no settlement were arrived at by September 30th, that his scheme should continue according to the index figure for the previous month.

On the Morning of May 30th, at 8 a.m.

Com. E. SYLVIA PANKHURST will be released from Holloway Prison.

Try to be there to send up three mighty cheers for the Cause we all have at heart.

Mr. Clynes, the Labour Party leader, made a very statesmanlike speech, which you all know means trying to hoodwink the workers whilst backing up the capitalists. He wanted both parties to come together again, for he "had reached the conclusion that the miners, as a body, were in a mood to receive the guidance of their leaders in regard to the terms of settlement, if those leaders were offered terms which they felt would be equitable to the men in all the minefields." He thought changes should be made gradually by easy stages.

on.

Ah! the old game the capitalists played so successfully during the war, when they gradually reduced the food of the workers and gradually introduced conscription and the other evils.

Mr. Victor Hartshorn showed by his speech how wise the miners had been to get rid of him, for instead of supporting their claims, he wanted more conferences, whether they had anything new to propose or not.

The leader of the Industrial Workers of the World, "Big Bill" Haywood, has reached Moscow, at the invitation of the Third International. His cabled impressions give the lie to current press dope.

By HERMAN GORTER

THE DUTY OF THE TRADE UNIONISTS TO THE UNEMPLOYED. By K. STUTTGART.

ight of day is not darkened by the sight of the masses. neath gay with police uniforms?

We must not mince matters: The unemployed re trailing along the ground, with their rings ut. The few aspirations that they have the ew acts to which they are spurred, are mere the lying convulsions of the masses who are succemb ng to their misery. It lies with the masse ye i work, to allow the flame of life which is stil eebly flickering, to be entirely quenched, or to e-kindle it by the storm-wind of action. At this coment, the behaviour of the working Trade Inionists is decisive for the fate of the unemloyed; but, on the other hand, in the future, the the lamentation of Jeremiah is silenced. Once the dregs of the stagnant political waters, but from radical phraseology. more the comfortable bourgeois can sink peace- like a muddy ebb-tide, they will strike back one We cannot console the unemployed with the 'ully to rest on his bed of down. For him the day, on the rising flood of the revolutionary thought of the Revolution as the future El would check the bourgeoisie in matters of eating all along taken up the same attitude as the master and drinking. Again the social ladder is set up, class towards the unemployed. It cleared its Ithough its bottom rung, the one on which the throat and spat, à la bourgeoisie, naturally, of memployed are sitting, is sinking into the mire. course, piano, while the master-class thundered What does that matter to the bourgeoisie, who fortissimo. The "sponging, idle unemployed," its at the top and surveys from that coign of van- was the stigma used by the Trade Union bureauage the blue heaven above, and the earth be- cracy also. We know how these bureaucrats work! Day by day, in the sweat of their brow, they are threshing empty straw for the workingclass, and of course they feel disconcerted if the memployed show signs of moving. In many ectings, the reactionary Trade Union delegates e voted directly against improvements in the re for the unemployed. The Trade Union ris maintain actual antipathy for the unemged. They leave the unemployed still unemployed, although the factory councils—in words are gushing with sentiment and all kinds of pulpit pured out in paragraphs of printed matter - unemployment, right down to a definite taking bed of the stream to the better shore.

'he bourgeoisie is irritating the unemployed beyond that, the Unions have not gone. Mean- up of their position. Then the owl is dragged such as possible. Its prostitute press pictures while the unemployed are perishing, physically, into the daylight, where it closes its eyes. The lurid colouring a fictitious luxury enjoyed for lack of the necessaries of life. Morally, for need of the unemployed throws light on the helpby the out-of-works, who are revelling in the lack of deeds of solidarity on the part of the lessness of the reformists; but it also distincharity granted by the kind master class. Now working masses. They are sinking to the bottom, guishes the whole really revolutionary orientation

Dorado. We must associate ourselves with their memployed, who, in defiance of all divine right, The reactionary Trade Union bureaucracy has present needs, and enter into the necessary measures for improving their conditions. It is not the question of the height of their demands which separates us from the majority Socialists, but chiefly the fact that they do not want to fight even for the smallest reforms, for they know that the present system has none to grant. In the academic question: Reform or Revolution, the Yellows can still influence the deliberations. In truth, the question of the fight, even if it be waged for reforms, will expose the lackeys of the capitalist class. They do not wish to incorporate the unemployed in their Unions, nor to grant them equal voting rights there. - They do not wish to unite the unemployed with those who are still at work. They do not wish to organise on a class basis. They want to keep the workers divided, for it is that which keeps the present system going, and they are fattening on the present system like vultures preying on carrion. This is In spite of this, Unemployment forms the first their opportunist policy. Communists must haviour of the unemployed will be a decisive point in the order of the day. The opportunity attack it with a definite aim, they must force the tor in the fate of the organised Trade Union is here given to the Unions for reform policy or question of the unemployed to an issue, for this asses. Declarations of sympathy, fundamental revolution. The Communist Trade Unionist must is a rock on which reaction will founder, but which duty of solidarity—in word. - force the reactionary leaders on the question of can help to carry the revolution over the shallow

ED YOUTH NOTES.

our doom, you know;

the strike of a week ago. ve eaten our lives, our babies and wives, but t was your legal share;

blood be the price of your legal wealth, d God, we have bought it fair.

xim No. 7. shalt wage the class war by pointing out Le history of all recorded societies is an story of the CLASS STRUGGLE, and that the ancipation of the working-class from wage-slary must be brought about by themselves.

ethuen and the Church.

at Jesus was the 'saving grace.' Now we know who has made up the first issue splendidly. at a king a prince, and an army, and also a few is only threepence. liticians. I would tell a good story about a Youth in Bulgaria. litician, but possibly the statement by the Hon. A. Warren will be more convincing. He says: successful politician must be a good liar and y the game.' So let me finish this par with:

what a beautiful prince! s mother and dad don't take mince."

rave English.

use of an ambush, with which they had to do, the occupants of five houses at Dunwere ordered to pay a fine of £100 each. ir householders, who could not pay this, had ir furniture thrown into the streets and smashed pieces with axes by the E.M.G. One victim an old widow.

e Wisdom of Youth.

Thy kingdom come "-the cemetery!

ite Terror in Jugo-Slavia.

comrades who are still at liberty continue per- lished by the Proletarian School." eringly the Communist propaganda more zealously The request was granted. n ever. This shows that the Communist Youth Jugo-Slavia has, unscathed, come out of the everything that comes within your notice going."

By T. Islwyn Nicholas.

Blindly you will have to obey the often stupid orfed you all for a thousand years, but that ders of your superiors. You will have to shoot the strikers, who are your brothers; you will have A.S.L.E. and F.:the time you chained us in the fields, to to defend and protect the bourgeoisie, trembling with the fear of the workers.

> Young soldiers, beneath your military coat you must never forget that above everything else you are a worker conscious of the interest of your class, the class that slaves and suffers. Young soldiers, play the part of men in the present crisis. J. Steward.

Comrade James Stewart, who is now in prison for a speech delivered to the Unemployed of Wolverhampton, was editor of the "Young Robel," which was suppressed in 1917, and one of the founders of the Young Socialist League.

"The Young Worker." Lord Methuen says: "I do not think the Church All young rebels should get a copy of the official s any more valuable asset than the army." "At organ of the Young Workers' League-"The Young time." says T. Anderson, "it was believed Worker." The editor is Comrade N. B. Whycer, ere are other things that have been added unto contains heaps of jolly good articles, and its price

> In Bulgaria there exists, in addition to a weak Young Social-Democratic League, a Young Communist League which is very active politically. It issues a fortnightly journal, "Wladeyka Pravada" (Truth of the Young).

Great Labour Victory. At a meeting of the Glasgow Education authority. an application by the Glasgow Central Socialist Sunday Schools for the use of a room with piano in Townhead Public School, for Tuesday evening, for the purpose of recreation classes, was considered. But "Fat" said no. These people are revolutionists; they hold extreme views; and they propose to realise their object by REVOLUTION. All the other "Fats" trembled. Some were heard to mutter "My God"!

The I.L.P. delegates closed their eyes as if engaged in prayer. They were waiting their time. "he bourgeois government of this State has, not "Fat," trembling, said :- "Listen, gentlemen! Here stand back behind the capitalists and the mili- is their Fifth Maxim. [He reads same.]" "Fat," y of Roumania, undertaken a campaign of ex- by the time he had finished reading it, was boilnination against the Communist workers and the ing with rage. And then a man, with a reversed ith movement. A number of young workers collar said: "It's all a mistake, gentlemen! It e, therefore, been arrested and their organisa- is not the S.S.S. maxims my friend has been read-1 declared unlawful and forbidden. Those of ing. Listen, gentlemen! That maxim is pub-

"SAVE THE DREADNOUGHT."

A collier writes: "You know we are locked us over these stressing times, knowing how near out, but we are dreading lest the 'Dreadnought' her brother's heart our movement lay and his great omrades, your life in the army will make of should cease to be published as it is undoubtedly hope in Miss Pankhurst. a thinking human being, an automator; it the best weekly revolutionary paper, so we must

ENGINEERS and FIREMEN SUPPORT

The following resolution has been passed by the Gateshead and Newcastle joint branches of the

"That this joint meeting of A.S.L.E. and F. branches in the Gateshead and Newcastle promoting area do give our wholehearted support to the miners in their gallant struggle against accepting poverty wages. We hereby desire to link ourselves with the unofficial movement and withdraw our labour in the event of a strike on May 15th."-J. Foote (Chairman), A. Wright

The new events in the Balkans are bringing the economic and political crisis to a head there. They are a fresh proof of the defeat of a nationalist and aggressive policy of the Balkan bourgeoisie, but they are also a fresh proof that the Entente Imperialism by the "peace" it has made, is not in a position tor estore the economic life of the people in Central Europe or the Balkans. The Balkan bourgeoisie is not in a position to lift the Balkan peoples out of the crisis into which it has brought them. The Entente, who conquered the Balkans economically and financially, has no interest in them and does not trouble itself about restoring them. Quite the contrary: it is trying to chain these people still tighter, and to turn them into colonial slaves. It is trying to exhaust the last resources which these people have at their disposal, by using them as cannot-fodder in counter-revolutionary attacks on Soviet Russia. With such a policy, however, the Entente is driving the Balkan bourgeoisie to ruin, and is rousing against them the working masses in the Balkan The fight of the Balkan peoples for social freedom from the yoke of the bourgeoisie is at the same time a fight for the national people from Entente Imperialism. At the head of the fight stands the Communist Parties, united in the Federation of the Balkan and Danube countries. Their slogan of the Federated Socialist Soviet Republic of the Balkan and Danube countries is winning more and more support from the working and smallowning classes. The new events in these countries are preparing conditions for new and bitter struggles under the banner of this war-cry, which once the Balkan and Danube peoples combine together -can emancipate and save them.

We are very sorry to learn from Mrs. Whyatt that her brother. Mr. J. E. Phillips, died very suddenly whilst addressing an unemployed meeting on January 31st. She enclosed £3, to help to tide

Mr. Phillips was an old friend and supporter, deaden your ability to think over and iscus do our little bit to try to keep our paper and it is with deep sorrow that we learn this sad

OPEN LETTER TO COMRADE LENIN.

An Answer to Lenin's Brochure: "'LEFT WING' COMMUNISM: AN INFANTILE DISORDER."

(Continued.)

Thus in Western Europe, and especially in England and Germany, the big bourgeoisie and the big easants, the middle classes and middle peasants, the lower bourgeoisie and the small peasants, are ll united against the workers, through the monooly the banks, the trusts; through imperialism, the war, the revolution.* And, as the labour-question encompasses all things, they are united on

Here. Comrade. I must make the same remark I have already made with regard to the peasantquestion (in the first chapter). I know quite well that the little minds in our Party, that miss the strength to base the tactics on great, general lines, and consequently base them on the small. articular ones, that these little minds will call the attention to those elements among these lavers, that have not yet come under the ban of the

I do not deny that there are such elements, but I maintain that the general truth, the general tendency in Western Europe is, that they are under the ban of the great-capital. And on this general truth our tactics must be based!

Neither do I deny that there may be "rifts vet. I only say that the general tendency is, and will be, for a long time after the revolution: unity of these classes. And I say that for the workers in Western Europe it is better to have their attention directed to that unity than to these rifts. For it is they themselves that must in the first place make the revolution, and not their leaders, their Members of Parliament.

Nor do I say that (which the little minds will make of my words) that the real interests of these classes are the same as those of the great-capita I know that these classes are oppressed through

What I say is solely this:

These classes cling to the great-capital even more firmly than before, because now they also see the danger of the proletarian revolution ahead.

In Western Europe the dominion of capital means to them a more or less sure existence, the possibility of or at least the belief in a betterment of their position. Now they are threatened by chaos and the revolution, which for some time to come means a worse chaos. That is why they side with capital in the effort to lift the chaos by every possible means, to save the production, to drive the workers to longer working hours, and to greater patience in privation. For them the proletarian revolution in Western Europe is the fall and breaking down of all order, of all security of existence, be it then ever so insufficient. Therefore they all support the greatcapital, and will continue to do so for a long time, also during the revolution.

All Classes Fight the Proletariat.

For finally I must yet point out that what I have said applies to the tactics at the beginand in the course of the revolution. I know quite at the end of the revolution, when the victory draws near, and capitalism has been shattered, these classes will come to us. But we must determine our tactics not for the end, but for e beginning and in the course of the revolution. Theoretically, therefore, all this had to be so. retically these classes had to co-operate. Theoally this is an ascertained fact. But practi-

This I will prove next: For many years already the entire bourgeoisie, will make a dictatorship BETWEEN THEM. all bourgeois parties in Western Europe, also those that belong to the small peasants and middle bourgeoisie, have done nothing for the workers. And they were all of them hostile to the labour movement, and in favour of imperialism, of the war. to them; in all matters.

striking. Ever higher taxes were levied.

Imperialism, colonisation, marinism and militarism were supported by all bourgeois, also the smalland clerical, conservative and progressive, greatand small-bourgeois, vanished.

Everything which the social-patriots, the reformists said, about the difference between the parties, about the "rifts" between them, was a fraud. And all this has now been brought forward by you, Comrade Lenin! It was a fraud for all countries of Western Europe. This has been best proved in July-August, 1914.

At that time they were all one. And the repractice. Against the revolution, and consequently against all workers for the revolution alone can bring actual betterment to all workers, against the

In a word, the trust, the monopoly, the big banks, imperialism, the war, the revolution, have, also in practice, riveted together into one class all the great- and small-bourgeoisie and peasant parties of Western Europe, against the workers.†

Theoretically and practically, therefore, this is an ascertained fact. In the revolution in Western Europe, and especially in England and Germany, there are no "rifts" of any considerable importance between these classes.

Here again I must add something personal. pages 40 and 41 you criticise the Amsterdam Bur eau. You cite a thesis of that bureau. Parentheti cally what you say with regard to this is wrong -all of it. But you also say that the Amsterdan Commission, before condemning parliamentari m, ought to have given an analysis of the class relations and the political parties, to justify this condemnation. Excuse me, Comrade, this was not the task of the Commission. For that on which their thesis is based, to wit that all bourge parties in Parliament as well as more outhad been all along, and even now, were opposed the workers, and did not show the slightest "rif all this had been ascertained long ago, and was an established fact for all Marxists. In Western Europe at least. there was no need for us to analyse

On the contrary, considering you strive for compromise and alliances in Parliament, which would lead us into opportunism, it was your duty to demonstrate that there are any rifts of importance between the bourgeois parties.

You wish to lead us, here in Western Europe, into compromising. What Troelstra. Henderson, the time of evolution, you wish to do during the revolution. You have to prove that this can be

Opposing Capitalist Forces unite to defeat

And this not by means of Russian examples these are easy enough, to be sure, but with West-European examples. This duty you have fulfilled in the most miserable way. No wonder you took almost exclusively your Russian experience, that of a very backward country, not that of the Western Europe, of these modern days. In the entire booklet, which deals with these very questions of tactics, the Russian examples excepted, to which I will soon proceed, I find but two examples from Western Europe: the Kapp putsch in Germany, and the Lloyd George-Churchill Government in England, with the opposition of Asquith. Very few examples indeed, and of the poorest nature, that there are "rifts" between the bourgeois, and in this case also the social-democratic

If ever a proof were needed that between the ourgeois (and in this case also the social-democratic parties), there are no important rifts as regards the workers, in the revolution, and here in Western Europe; the Kapp putsch furnishes that proof. The Kappites did not punish, kill and imprison the democrats, the Zentrum people, and the social-democrats! And when these came into power again, they did not punish, kill and implison the Kappites. But both parties killed the Communists!

Communism was too weak as yet. That is why they did not TOGETHER make a dictatorship. Next time, when Communism will be stronger, they heads, here in Western Europe and in the revolu-

For years already there had not been a single what the Communist Members of Parliament ought legality or of missing the benefit of a "rift" (in do party in England, in Germany, in Western Eur- to have said to make the workers see this rift, Parliament!), we in Western Europe, and under ope, that supported the workers. All were opposed and take advantage of it-in such a way, of course, the present conditions, choose our tactics and re-ion. as not to strengthen the bourgeois parties. You ject yours. There was no new labour legislation. Conditions cannot do this, because in the revolution there is grew worse instead. Laws were passed against no rift of any importance. And it is of the time

And it was and is your duty, Comrade, before beginning to lead us, in Western Europe, to show where those rifts are, in England, in Germany, in Western Europe.

rifts have been artificially made by the bourgeois ope after Russia. revolution they all stand together without one sin- side to the other, and back again ad infinitum, here again you let yourself be misled by the Rus-And as through the war, the crisis and the re- To this end they even at times admit two co- will point out why in this case, in the March days volution, all social and political questions have come ponents to the one government. Lloyd George and in Germany, this "pure" socialistic Government was to be connected in practice with the question of Churchill. And Comrade Lenin lets himself be not to be supported all the same.

the revolution, these classes in Western Europe caught in this trap, that is well night a century stand together in all questions, and in opposition to old! He strives to induce the British workers to base their politics on this fraud! At the time of the revolution, the Churchills, Lloyd Georges, and Asquiths will unite against the revolution, and then you, Comrade, will have betrayed and weakened the English proletariat with an illusion. It was your duty to point out not by means of general, fine and brilliant figures of speech (as in the entire last chapter, on page 72 for instance), but accur-ly, concretely, by means of clear examples and cts, what those conflicts and differences are not the Russian ones, nor those that are of noin ortance, or artificially made-but by means of the actual important, West-European examples. This you do nowhere in your brochure. And as long as you do not give these, we do not believe you. When you give them we will answer you-until id then we say: It is nothing but illusions that mislead the workers, and lead them into false tactics. The truth is, Comrade, that you wrongly assume the West-European and the Russian revolution to rabe alike. And through what reason? Because rk. you forget that in the modern, that is to say West- Iv En opean and North American States, there is a of pover that stands above the various kinds of cap talists-the landowners, industrial magnates, and merchants: the banking-capital. This power, which is identical with imperialism, unites all capitalists, including the small peasants and bourgeois. One thing, however, remains to you. You say there are rifts between Labour parties and the bourgeois parties, and that these can be made use of. This is right. We might aver to be sure, that these differences between the social-democrats and bourgeois in the war and in the revolution have been very slight and have disappeared in most cases! But they might be there. And they may arise yet. Of those we Scheidemann, Turati, etc., could not accomplish in must therefore speak. Especially as you bring for ward the "pure" English Labour Government, Thomas. Henderson, Clynes, etc., in England, against Sylvia Pankhurst, and the possibly "pure" social- -0' istic government of Ebert, Scheidemann, Noske, Hil-iven ferding Crispien, Cohn, against the K.A.P.D. ++

You say that your tactics, which direct the workers' attention towards these Labour Governments, encouraged them to promote their formation, is clear and profitable; whilst ours, which is opposed to their formation, is harmful.

No. Comrade, our attitude with regard to these cases of "pure" Labour Government, where the rift between these parties of workers and those of the bourgeoisie become a split, is again quite clear, and profitable, to the revolution.

It is possible that we shall allow such a Government to exist. It can be needful, it can mean a progress of the movement. If this is so, if we cannot proceed any further yet, we will let them exist criticising them as keenly as possible, and replace them by a Communist Government as soon as we can. But to promote its coming in Parliament and through the elections, this will not do in Western Europe. And we will not do this, because in Western Europe and in the revolution the workers stand all alone. For that reason everything-do you understand this?—everything HERE depends on their will for action, on their clearness of brain. And because these, your tactics of compromising with the Scheidemanns and Hendersons, with the Crispiens and their followers among the English Lidependents, of the opportunist Communists of the Spartacus League or the B.S.P.—because these tactics incide and outside of Parliament confuse the tion-making the workers elect someone of whom they It was and is your duty, Comrade, to point they know beforehand to be an impostor, and because out in what way the Communists could at that our tactics on the other hand render them cleartime have taken advantage in Parliament of that sighted, by showing them the enemy as enemy, berift (?)—in such a way, of course, as to benefit cause of all this and, even at the risk of losing prothe workers. It was and is your duty to tell us a representative in Parliament in periods of il-(To be continued.) ar's

* It is true that through the war an infinitely of the revolution that we speak. And it was your greater number of various elements has come down no duty to point out that if in special cases there to the ranks of the proletariant. All elements, art. should be such rifts, it would be more advantage- though as good as any element that is not probourgeois. parties. The difference between liberal ous to direct the attention of the workers in that letarian, clings desperately to capitalism, and if direction than to the general tendency towards need be will defend it by armed force, being hostille to Communism.

 I lack the space here to point this out Jetail. In a brochure, "The Basis of Communis have done so at length.

† We Hollanders know this only too well. We This you cannot do either. You speak of a rift nave seen the "rifts" disappear before our eyes, between Churchill, Lloyd George, and Asquith. of in our small, but, through our colonies, highly which the workers are to take advantage. This in perialistic country. With us there are no longer is altogether pitiful. This I will not even discuss democratic. Christian, or other parties. Even the with you. For everyone knows that since in Eng- Dutch can judge of this better than a Russian, volution has made them even far more united in land the industrial proletariat has some power, these who, I regret to say, seems to judge Western Eurparties and leaders and are yet being made, to † It is yet the question whether these "pure" mislead the workers, to entice them from the one Labour Governments will come here. Maybe that thus to keep them for ever powerless and depende t. sian example-Kerensky. In the following lines I

Editor: SYLVIA PANKHURST. Acting Editor: JACK O'SULLIVAN.

daner for Publication to be Addressed to the Editor business Communications to the Manager: ers breadnought, 152, Fleet Street, London, E.C.4. LELEPHONE: CENTRAL 7240, SUBSCRIPTION: THREE MONTHS (13 weeks) ... Post Free 2/9 SIX MONTHS (26 weeks) UNE YEAR (52 weeks) 10/10

Vol. VIII.. No. 10. Saturday, May 21, 1921.

THE FUTURE WORLD WAR-ACT I

On May 13th, in the House of Commons, Mr. Lloyd George made what is perhaps the most important speech he has made for a very long time, concerning Silesia and what may develop out of the situation there. The miners' lock-out and the industrial unrest are insignificant matters beside it; for it deals with the excuse for the rapidly approaching world-war. There will be a readjustment of alliances; our late allies may be our enemies and our late foes our allies. The visit of the Crown Prince of Japan is intimately connected with it also.

Mr. Lloyd George said :-

"The problem of Silesia is the problem of peace in Europe, and the problem of peace in Europe is the problem of unrest in England."

He denied Poland's claim to Silesia, which had certainly not been Polish for 600 years. The Commission which met to consider what should be done after the plebiscite was taken in Silesia, which was six to four in favour of Germany, had a majority (the British and Italian delegates) in favour of those Communes which wished to belong to Poland, going to her, and the rest of Silesia going to Germany. The French took a different view. This report was to have been considered in London, but did not arrive in time. They were about to consider it, when Korfanty raised an insurrection of the Polish population and tried to rush the situation and put us in the position of having to deal with a fait accompli. It was a complete defiance of the Treaty of Versailles, and we must deal with these things that happen with stern justice.

"If the peace of Europe is disturbed, I cannot see what is going to happen to the world, and I am alarmed-I use the phrase quite deliberately-I am

The Polish Government repudiates responsiblity, but arms and Polish officers are passing from Poland. It is a repetition of what happened at Vilna, which was given to Lithuania, but is still occupied by Polish

"The future is dark and uncertain; no one can tell what it is charged with. The only thing I venture to predict is that force will count less with the Treaty of Versailles, and that the honour and credit of Germany, her signature and bond, will count more and more. But if circumstances change, and if the power of these 60,000,000 people-very powerful as we know from experience, able, courageous and resourceful—is, I will not say regained, but becomes more vital because of the changed circumstances, it ought, and it will, count more and more."

"Germany will have the right to say to us: 'You are asking us to honour our bond. . . . What did you do when Poland defied you over Silesia? Were you equally insistent then?' I am entitled to say, and I say it solemnly to Britain and the Allies, that it is not merely a matter of honour and that, surely, is not to be despised. It is not merely a matter of honour, it is a matter of safety; it is a matter of security that we should show that He insisted that the Germans were entitled to everything the Treaty gave them; they must have fair play. There were two ways of dealing with this situation; one was that the Allied troops should restore order, but against that was the fact that we had withdrawn our troops and could not insist on the other Allies sacrificing their soldiers' lives. The other alternative was to allow the Germans to do it, if the Treaty were not respected. "Not merely to disarm Germany, but to say that such troops as she has are not to be permitted to take part in restoring order in what, until the decision comes, is their own provincethat is not fair. (Cheers.)

ite To

This sudden change of face takes one's breath away, when one thinks what a short time has elapsed since nothing was bad enough to say of the "Huns," and how the reparations must be exacted to the last farthing. But now these people must be conciliated; they are our potential allies. And not they alone but the Russians also, as the following extract shows:-

That country is not going to remain as it is. Can otherwise. anyone tell me what it is going to be? It will not be what it is now for long, but that it is going to dominant country, that it is going to have a say in the future of Europe and of the world, everybody freely to decide. knows. What view will it take, on whose side will We desire to take our readers fully into on fidence and plainly state our case. IT BE, AND WHO WILL BE ITS PARTNERS IN THE SCHEME

Mr. Lloyd George stated on behalf of the Government, that whatever happens, we cannot accept a fait accompli. He threw down the gauntlet to the ately precedes that action, all the power of the French and Poles, but ended up with a peroration appealing "to all concerned to do what is right, to do what is fair, to dismiss prejudices, to be upright, and

It is not surprising that Mr. Lloyd George is frightened: he is gambling in the lives of the world breaking with the French, and yet is not sure of his future allies. Russia is an unknown quantity to him; he does not understand why she will be the dominant

For some time past it has been the dream of the German Monarchists to link up with the Russian Monarchists, and when the situation is ripe, they think they can win over the Russian workers and defy the world. They still have plenty of arms, and the British militarists know both these facts. Lloyd George wants to be on the winning side, and he thinks that Great Britain, Japan, Germany and Russia (?) will be more than a match for France and America.

Remember, the Soviet Government was recognised as the de facto Government of Russia last April, with adversaries just as dangerous. when relations were strained between France and England; the judges have decided that Russian goods and money cannot be confiscated in this is a particle of purely individual initiative. country, and trade is to be resumed. It is a market we need, and may be an ally we need very soon, for events move very rapidly these days.

But there is just one little factor Mr. Lloyd George turn. does not seem to have taken into account, and that We are inclined to believe that there are s, what attitude will the workers take up? Will they and firms who are now heavily interested-fi be deluded into a world-war by talk of "British -in commercial undertakings that were honour," to defend German rights this time? Will "enemies." Even as far as the Argentine Ren they think it better to be killed in the trenches than not to mention Peru, there are City capitalists wh to die of starvation in unemployment? Or will they interests there. upset all these diplomatic plans and decide the fate of nations themselves? We wonder!

MONEY AND PLAIN TALKS TO COMMUNISTS.

In our last issue we stated that unless we received the sum of £30 from voluntary subscribers, we should be forced to cease publication.

We wrote those few lines with an aching heart. They appeared in small type, yet good enough for friends

The response came rapidly. A group of Comrades have written (see page 8, column three), that they will make up to that figure any difference from money we may receive from the usual sympathisers.

Thanks, hearty thanks!

When last week we forcibly put to Comrades our position, we did not overstate it. Let us examine it.

Anybody conversant with the production of a paper, be it weekly or daily, knows that no paper can live on its own sales unless it carries advertisements. Take away the advertisements from the Daily Mail and it would cease publication within a fortnight unless the "Carlton" came to the rescue. It is more so with a paper that defends a Cause, that fights for a Cause. There is only a certain class of advertisement that we could carry: books, workers' needs, notices for the co-operative movement, etc.

A great many advertisements we should naturally

This subsidy can only come from those who are both the Workers' Dreadnought and the A fully in sympathy with our work. We have no Press. 'secret funds." We do not engineer campaigns, that would finally pay. We are not alone in that; it is the Dreadnought Front Page, Editorial Page, Back position of all the Communist, of all the hones workers' press.

Therefore, the fact is: we must be subsidised.

* * * * * For many months the Workers' Dreadnought has been run at a loss. We do not blame our comrades. We probably failed to make the paper interesting enough for them; we were probably too theoretical; aye, probably we gave the reader too much small print, whereas modern conditions, factory conditions and rush and uncertainties of life have lessened the power of concentration, and brought to the fore a desire for short, snappy paragraphs.

We may have been wrong, but we thought that food for the mind—if only we could give it—was the thing

Be it as it may, the Workers' Dreadnought has been strength of our failures. run for the last months by comrades who gave all they possibly could to keep it afloat.

Our appeal for funds is an appeal from friends to pressure: friends; from co-workers to co-workers. It is just as well, at this juncture, to state that the but a huge reality, living, working-forging expenses of production of the paper consists of the By the massive weight of her freedom, imposi "Russia is now a broken Power, exhausted and usual printing costs, paper, postage, and routine disin the hands, as I think, of a hopeless despotism, tribution. There is not a penny spent on the Editor's which is running the country upon impossible prin- side of it. For the past years, Comrade Pankhurst ciples. But it is a great country; it is a gigantic gave her services free to the paper, and those who, country; it is a country of almost inexhaustible re- though ill-fitted for the work have, temporarily, during sources, and it is peopled by a very gallant race . . her imprisonment, taken her place, have not done

* * * * * The question now arises: is it worth while to the portance to that of Russia-France slowly aw be a powerful country, that it is going to be a movement to keep the Workers' Dreadnought alive?

It is an important question. It is for the com-

It might be divided under various heads. Whilst we strongly believe that at any mome decisive action, and even in the period that in initiative, thought or leadership, we do not shad opinions expressed by some comrade, that the wo

Independently from questions of finance is fundamentally wrong, from the view-point presentation of our case to the unconvinced. Modern society, although clearly sub-divided tween exploiters and exploited, has produced classes with a different psychology-even unionism has done that-and it is childish to that one organ only could fulfil all the requirement Whilst we do not assent to the idea of a single inside the movement, yet we fully agree, once

That is indispensable. The scission of the former Socialist parties, in we may term petty-bourgeois and class-conscion need an intensification of propaganda greater than for we are faced. not only with enemies Any contribution to the common Cause show welcome, not discouraged, even if at the bottom

that there is an imperative need for commun thought and direction.

There is the question of "foreign money." always so when the workers' movement takes not know frontiers. The provincial press is full of talk of foreign paying for "Red" propaganda.

Capital, in its various forms of exploitation.

If the Moscow Soviet, who sent greetings to rade Pankhurst, were to send us some contribution should promptly acknowledge it and consider

Yet we are fully aware, and we openly disch that a shilling from a factory girl, say of P would carry more weight, in so far as it would from one who is actually suffering under the sam ditions from which we suffer.

No one, we hope, would charge us -on this of being biassed by a national or race prejudice. As a matter of fact, we are constantly remoney from foreign parts. Owing to the wide of the English language, there are a great nu our subscribers who live abroad-some of them at contributors-and who are very keen on k their subs. up to date.

There is another explanation we owe to our i and to our comrades. During our "interimate," viz., after Pankhurst had gone to prison, a change took pl the sub-title of the Workers' Dreadnought. It is due, both to our supporters and to Pankhurst, to let it be known-since it is no purely Party knowledge—that such change was by the following letter of the then Secretary Communist Party:-DEAR COMRADE,

At an Executive meeting held to-day, the res of the 1st. inst. (January 16th, 1921), of which have had notice, threatening a repudiation an cott of both the Workers' Dreadnought & Agenda Press, was again considered, and by a u ous vote, it was decided to repudiate the Therefore, it plainly follows that our press must be Dreadnought as official organ of the Com Party, B.S.T.I., and also to institute a boycott

I would ask you, therefore, to remove and bottom of Back Page, the intimation the Workers' Dreadnought is the official organ Party or is published by the Party.

Although this letter was sent to all branches former Communist Party, whilst Comrade Pan was "away," and, of course, unable to clear th it is not argued that it did affect our circulati point of fact we took it as an ill-graced comrades who thought, in their earnestness, the doing the right thing. We publish it to-day without rancour or f space will be given to the members of that Con if they feel the need for a response.

We ask your support. We do so-paradoxically as it may seem-This is the paper we should have liked to he duced, and failed, to a great extent, owing to mo

There is Russia-Soviet Russia, not an expe self on the effete Chancelleries of Europe. We wanted to give you trustworthy news of a replica of The Times information, but thing. We have done something, but we kn could have done better. There is the Continental movement: Italy ta the throat by the newly-formed White Guard many where the Communist Party is second (Comminmed on page 8.)

By E. SYLVIA PANKHURST.

Ideas for Red Army-Lefebre, who died in the Artic Sea-The British Delegation-"This has not been said before"-A new rig-out of Clothes for our "Leaders"-A fire in the train-The Polish War.

meals a day. This was the dinner served to all Red soldiers surrounded me, declaring that I tions. A young officer was pressed for the work. the island visitors on that day.

The visitors come normally for two weeks, but if they are in poor health they may stay a third week. If their health is not then restored they may go to a sanatorium where they may stay up to six months if necessary. Over 4,000 workers were accommodated at one time in the islands during the summer of 1920, and arrangements are being made to house still larger winter also, but only some of the houses possess the necessary heating facilities.

Many stories have been told of the destruction wrought by the revolutionary proletariat, but no one can fail to be struck by the perfect preservation and the absolute cleanliness of these houses, built for the occupation of a few people and their servants and now tenanted by a numerous stream of people such as was never contemplated by the architects. The delicate fabrics are everywhere unspotted; the polished furniture shows no scratch. In rooms that are much loose washing covers on the chairs, but in most cases the original upholstery is uncovered, and is entirely like new. Again and again Stephanoff calls our attention to the fact that the inmates of the houses are genuine proletarians.

The visitors do no house work of any kind. The servants who wait at table and undertake the other domestic duties, are on duty during sixteen hours one day, and have the next coming the entire day through. as to the health of a lovely dark girl with a scarlet handkerchief adorning her long black wood, and a log, falling upon her head, had ground that it consumes too much bread. story of ill-usage.

The Saturday work parties, in which probably was not. square pegs.

members of the Communist Party, but in Petro- women and men, both soldiers and civilians. grad the great mass of the workers join them. Foreigners passing through the city on a Satur--day afternoon, are surprised to find themselves jeered at for not being at work.

CHAPTER XVI. At a Camouflage School.

I refused, but with an insistence that was unable to comprehend a single sentence of really a genial compulsion, and with laughing French or English, but he agreed to do his best. chatter about proletarian discipline, they dragged He afterwards informed Comrade Lefebre ar Comrade Raymond Lefebre of France, Comrade myself that he had composed good speeches to Steinhardt of Austria, and myself into a motor us, though he did not quite know what we had! car and drove off at a mad pace. The interpreter said. Comrade Steinhardt spoke in German; and moving spirit in the escapade was a Swiss large proportion of the audience obviously unde comrade who had attached himself to the Red stood and warmly applauded him. Th numbers during 1921. Visitors come in the Army. As the car dashed along, jolting over the Russians follow with intense sympathy th rough road, the glass wind screen in front was struggle of the German Communists. suddenly broken, cutting the face of the Swiss After the meeting an entertainment was given comrade who sat on another soldier's knees. by artistes from the principal theatres of Mos-The blood gushed out and poured down his face cow. There was a scene from King Lear, songs and neck in thick streams; he wiped it off un- and recitations of which was put on as a deconcerned. I had imagined that the meeting terrent from alcohol. Such entertainments for would be close at hand; but to my surprise, the the soldiers and people of the district were given went speeding away out of Moscow by the high at the camouflage school open-air theatre three road from whence Napoleon with his advancing times a week. troops first gazed upon that city.

At last we stopped, in a pleasant birch grove, before a wooden chalet curiously ornamented used, for meals, concerts and so on, there are with painted carving. The chalet was quaintly and very comfortably furnished. A large hall, lit from the roof, and with a gallery, seemed to me like a studio. We learnt that this had been a millionaire's pleasure house and was now a Red Army camouflage school.

In a cosy little room we found a party of young officers seated at a table eating bread and jam. They invited us to join them, and set before us glasses of Kvass, a drink made from rye pletely free. This arrangement they have sub- bread, which tastes and looks rather sour, weak stituted for the eight-hour working day by their red wine. The young men seemed jubilant at own choice. On the alternate days when they having Kvass to give us, and anxious to hear us are nominally on duty for sixteen hours, they say that we liked it. They were so full of of course do what is necessary in the house from joking excitement that I guessed there was some morning till night; but they are actually work- little mystery about the drink and that it had the savour attaching to forbidden fruit, when Our guides enquired with anxious solicitude the peccadillo incurred for procuring it is not too serious. I asked whether Kvass was intoxicating, and with bursts of laughter some of our hair. All dimpling with smiles, she assured them hosts declared it was not, whilst others sa'd one she was well. She had taken part in a could manage to get drunk on it if one drank "Subbotnik" (Saturday volunteer work) a a great many bottles. I learnt afterwards that fortnight before. The work had been piling the making of Kvass was prohibited, on the knocked her senseless for a time. Therefore The little repast we had shared was like the she had been sent to the islands for three weeks' Norwegian "bread and butter" which precedes rest. She had completely recovered, and was the real meal. We had barely finished it when enjoying herself immensely. If the incident a simple but good and substantial supper was came to the ears of any counter-revolutionary brought in. There was a bottle for each one of grumblers, it has probably given rise to a serious us of some sort of drink made from pears, which we were told was not intoxicating, and which volunteers gather to do any necessary work they Several times I asked whether there really can, frequently devote themselves to the essen- would be a meeting, for the night was wearing tial and simple task of carting wood fuel. From on. Our hosts always laughingly replied that this circumstance has probably arisen some of it would take place in good time. Finally they the many stories about dressmakers being set to led us round the house to a clearing surrounded carry wood, and round holes being filled with by fir trees. Here, ranged in front of a little stage, were rows of wooden benches; children The Subbotniki were originally started for occupied the front seats, and behind them were

A Soldiers' Theatre.

The charming little proscenium and all the regiment.

Everyone on the islands has five substantial meeting where Trotsky spoke, when some young little electric lights, masked by scarlet decoramust go with them to speak at another meeting. of translating the speeches. He was apparently Educating the Red Army.

The arrangements for entertaining and ed cating the Red Army are on a vast scale. In January 1919, there was not a single sch in the Army, there were only two clubs, and a single travelling library. By December 1919, there were 3,800 Army schools for political and general instruction, 1,315 clubs and 2,392 travelling libraries. During 1920, these in tutions have been still further extended

Trotsky, in reporting to the All-Ruist gress of Soviets, on December 7th, clared that the educational work in the would send the soldiers back to their and workshops head and shoulders above unc

In addition to the Army schools for genera culture, there are numbers of Red Army school of military technique. Workers from t factories and villages take courses wh qualify them to enter the lower ranks of office After experience in the fighting detachments the more able pass through a higher military school and become commanders of regiments and brigades. The most able are then selected study at the general staff academy and academ. of artillery and engineering. Some of the bes. officers, however, have passed through no military school; they have gained their knowledge by experience in fighting for the Revolution. Some officers have come over from the Czar's régime. Working with last, there is always a Commy ist police commissary, not merely to prever any the wiery on their part, but also to arouse in the soldiers the revolutionary enthusiasm which is an enormous asset to the Red troops. The old-style military com manders, in many cases, admit the value of the political commissaries and their propaganda. Trotsky reported that when inspecting a regiment at Zerkoff in 1919, he found that a quarter of the officers were Mensheviki. They were brave fighters, but when any hitch or dissatisfaction arose, these Menshevik officers, because they desired victory, always asked for more Communist agitators and literature to be sent to the scenery and equipment of the stage were the Soviet Russia continually hopes and strives work of the soldiers of the camouflage school. for peace with the capitalist aggressors; but it We sat amongst the children, who quickly made knows that such a peace could be no more than friends with us, until the lingering light faded an armed truce, and that whilst Communist and and the tardy twilight began to fall. Then we capitalist governments exist side by side, war The audience were streaming out of the great were asked to mount the stage, illuminated with may break out at any moment. Therefore, if soldiers of the Red Army back to agriculture and opinion. But the flow of British Trade Union audience, appealed for the display of brothe industry, but at the same time form a people's oratory could not be stopped, and even the silent love towards all men, the interpreter transform militia, always kept in training, and always members were soon making speeches. Mrs. the utterance to a call for class-solidarity in fin ready for swift mobilisation. Already the De- Philip Snowden proved one of the most obstin- ing the counter-revolution. When the change partment of Universal Military Training is pro- ately determined not be influenced by the pre- explained to him, Lansbury took it in good not ceeding with this work.

chalet till day, but Lefebre and I 'nsisted on re- and anti-Communists, who supplied her with a old.' But they regard him as a sincere man. turning to Moscow. The motor had broken down, jumble of feeble and mutually conflicting stories, so we were obliged to make a slow journey through the night in a horse-drawn carriage.

A Counter-Revolutionary.

"These two comrades will go with you," said our hosts, as a young soldier and a man of middle age climbed up and sat opposite to us. Lefebre soon fell asleep, and as we drove home in the early morning hours, the elder man opposite, an artist employed to teach camouflage to the Red soldiers, made a vigorous attempt to prejudice me against Communism and the Communists, cynically explaining his hostility by the phrase: "I am bourgeois," as though that fact were an all-suffi-

Communist friends to whom we related the incident, dismissed it as unimportant. "Many bourgeois technicians sell their skill to us at the highest possible price, give us as little service as they can, and slander us all the time. Their abuse does not matter."

CHAPTER XVII. What Russia thought of the British Labour Delegation.

How the Delegation got Soviet Clothes. The official British Labour Delegation to Russia has not left behind it an imposing impression. All sorts of humourous anecdotes are told at its expense. In recording some of these, it must be understood that I am not disclosing official confidences, but the current talk of Moscow, in which I fancy there is more than the proverbial grain of

It is said that when met on the frontier by Melanchansky and other Russian Trade Union officials, the British delegates, with high pomposity, declared that they would only consent to visit Russia on condition that they were able to go where they pleased, and to see what and whom they chose, without interference. Melanchansky, a jovial fellow, has, nevertheless, an iron will and a keen sense of the dignity of the Soviet Republic. Doubtless it was with a very scathing politeness that he told 'he Labour delegates they might go where they pleased, but they would be treated as guests and not as judges.

dently strong enough to make the explanation Cheka, but this may be a joke.

were called the guests of the Russian Trade Unions. A number of banquets and other functions were arranged to welcome them. The Russians there deliberately incited the British to respond to the toasts, in order that they might commit themselves to public statements regarding Soviet Russia, before returning to the chilly atmosphere of capitalist Britain. There seems to have been an understanding, either expressed or implied, that no member of the delegation should make a statement except by general agreement. But the opportunities for making speeches to big enthusiastic crowds under picturesque circumstances, proved irresistible to some members of demanded that there should be no more speech- tionary church.

peace is concluded, it is intended to send the making and no more individual expressions of When Lansbury, in addressing a proletant villing atmosphere. She bolstered up her original The young Russian Communists say of La The Red soldiers urged us to remain at the prejudices by visits to counter-revolutionaries bury: "He does not understand; his mind is which she has recently published in book form. She is said to have told nussian audiences "and most of the working people in Britain own their own houses, and that the bourgeoisie are the main sufferers from poverty in this country. What she actually meant is probably conveyed in this passage from her book on Russia:-

"Most of the organised workers of Great Britain (and probably America) possess a little property, if it is only the dividend they draw from the Co-operative Stores. The illiterate man or woman is practically unknown among them. Their children enjoy free education. Their cities are organised and comparatively healthy. With the power of the franchise and the industrial power of their trade organisation, they can achieve any reform they may desire. They possess a tradition of freedom of conscience, of speech, of Press, of general living, which no tyrant in office would dare long and without good cause to defy."

Russian workers who had spent long years of exile in the dismal quarters of British cities, realised the falsity of such statements.

When the British Labour Delegation was in Russia, it was high summer, and the heat was put on a coat and a pair of shoes. It was t almost unendurable. Perhaps this was why the pleasant. It might have meant getting members of the delegation accepted as a gift death of cold in mid-winter. As it was, I from the Soviet authorities a complete rig out of chill from it, which kept me in bed for seven new clothes. But knowing that they did so, and days. remembering the great heat of the season, one received a little sceptically such phrases as these Owing to shortage of lubricating oil, the bearing

"Those dear Russian people thought we ignite. This is another effect of the capital were attired like princes . . . They patted and blockade which makes it dangerous to undres stroked our dresses and coats. They turned a Russian train, no small consideration in longing eyes upon our boots . . . I gave the country of such long journeys. girl who looked after my room a warm woollen Later, when we were travelling back to Mi an old flannel nightdress gave to a sick then had to be packed with cotton waste, when

ceedingly hostile to Communism and the Soviets. had been started by the big sparks and burning munists, still wear fussy, unpractical garments, not possibly be checked exactly. When the British delegates discovered that His professions of pacifism and of regret that charcoal flying from the engines constructed When the British delegates discovered that this professions of pachish and of region and the British delegates discovered that this professions of pachish and of region and the Communism there will be professions of pachish and of region and the counter-revolution are considered as a counter-revolution and the counter-revolutio Melanchansky and his colleagues were staying in Soviet Rusia should possess an army, and some the same hotel with them, Tom Shaw and some use it to defend herself from attack, were regarded of the blockade and the counter-revolution public opinion against making things to wear public opinion against making things to wear of the others declared that they would immediately return to England, as they considered that a British military title and had assisted in the tan extravagant amount of labour. At present that most of the proletarian families there had under observation. Melanchansky had to explain independently reported to the Cheka the opinion that Soviet Sussia does not keep numbers of guest that the conduct of Captain Guest was suspicious. told me. I felt that wish was father to the though houses half empty for passing strangers, and that They urged that he was possibly a secret agent of that September would prove the hungriest me that the september would be september would b both they and he were staying in the only house the British Government, and asked that he available for visitors. The delegates' curiosity as should be kept under observation. It is said that to what could be seen in Soviet Russia was evi- he was accordingly watched by agents of the

In the first days of their arrival, the British The Soviet Government not wishing to receive Labour delegates declared that they wanted to the British Labour delegates as its guests, they have just the same rations as the ordinary workers. "No, no," they were told, "you are not used to such a plain diet. You could not stand it; one has to come down to it gradually."

But the delegates persisted, and finally had their way—at one meal only. That was enough; they made no more requests to live like other

As to the decoration said to have been granted young. Their carriage was upright, their to Robert Williams for "service for direct shone, and they displayed a strong steady patient action on the home front," Moscow gossip says under any sort of delay or discomfort. that this was not the "Order of the Red Flag," goods wagons of passing trains were crowded w

but a simple badge that anyone may wear. George Lansbury's first telegram to England Men, women, and youngsters sat on the steps the delegation. Once on their feet, their caution from Soviet Russia was received by Revolutionary the passenger carriages, singing and ance to more cordial expressions of friendship ordinary that a man who is supposed to be a but one saw little sign of it in the people. and much more revolutionary sentiments than the leader of British progress and enlightenment, physical condition was infinitely superior to silent members of the delegation were prepared to should single out as the first matter for rejoicing, of the Germans as I saw them in Berlin, Franki a people, in the main, comfortably clad. approve. Reports of these speeches were sent all the fact that, though bread may be lacking, there and Stuttgart in December, 1919, and Janua he harrowing pictures of poverty and famine over the world by the Soviet wireless. It is said is still gold on the domes of the churches, and 1920. The German workers looked pale the others tell of I did not see; but I am left that in consequence, there were meetings amongst poor people are still held by chains of ignorance tired, hopeless and discontented. An express had been sometimed to free cure and maintenthat in consequence, there were meetings amongst pool people are sufficient to free cure and maintenthe delegation, and those who had not spoken and superstition under the influence of the reac of weary peevishness and despair was completely and those who had not spoken and superstition under the influence of the reac of weary peevishness and despair was completely and those who had not spoken and superstition under the influence of the reac of weary peevishness and despair was completely and those who had not spoken and superstition under the influence of the reac of weary peevishness and despair was completely and those who had not spoken and superstition under the influence of the reac of weary peevishness and despair was completely and those who had not spoken and superstition under the influence of the reac of weary peevishness. During disable-

CHAPTER XVIII. A Fire in the Train.

During the night journey between Moscow Petrograd, I was thinking sleepily: "I am go to have a sore eye; what a nuisance!" The fellow passenger jumped down from an i berth, crying out:

"There's a fire in the train! The sm would have suffocated me if I'd stayed there much longer!"

A shower of sparks and glowing charcoal swa past the windows on either hand, and as the d of our compartment was opened the smoke ca pouring in. We gasped for breath, our streamed with tears and smarted horribly. struggled to find our clothes. The train rus on for a few seconds and then stopped. with bundles in their arms dashed past u jumped down on to the line. We stood or stones and grass beside the track for ha hour whilst a hose-pipe sprayed water on train, and one carriage was removed. It had be impossible to dress; the smoke was too suffor and painful: one was lucky if one managed

A common occurrence this, in Soviet Russ in Mrs. Snowden's account of her visit there: become red-hot, causing the wooden carriages resulted in constant stoppages and much del Mon

"This is the worst month of the year,"

The shortage of medicine was brought he me. Kind Mrs. Pelman, at the Hotel Intertional, sent for the doctor (whose services co nothing), and it transpired, incidentally, that stock of medicine at the hotel was near at an end. "Hot milk would do you good said Mrs. Pelman, "but I can't get any for you

CHAPTER XIX.

What and where is the Shortage. to Moscow, and in the surrounding count happy appearance of the people, especially people whose legs hung dangling over the side amongst the faces I met by the way and ces.

abound also in British cities. They are ever, food was abundant. rywhere about me in the East End of London. I I take the 'bus in the morning and look wn on the women in the crowded market cets, I can seldom discover one of them who ot marred by gnawing anxiety, chronic underrishment and lack of health. When I chanced a crowd of Frankfort children going into hool, I was shocked to see at least a third of m seriously deformed by rickets, and hardly hild unblemished by mal-nutrition. It was a ession of twisted and shrunken limbs; of e pinched faces and bulging foreheads. Rick-, wasting babies are one of the commonest s of East London, but I was not used to ing such a large proportion of older children ruelly deformed.

rom Russia, on the other hand, I brought with me a prevailing memory of beautiful, -grown children and healthy people.

appears that a happy contentment and yant, confident enthusiasm is radiating from active makers of the revolution and builders it is not the exaltation of revolutionary your which produces this evident mental and sical well-being, it must be the freedom from vidual anxiety, which the absolute assurance of even a low minimum scale of food, clothing nd other necessaries provides. Perhaps both se things operate together.

It is constantly said that clothing is scarce in ssia, but people, in the mass, appear much tter clad than in other countries. Most people lution. d and unserviceable, foot-deforming shoes with high public opinion against making things to wear peo ecessity compels that factory-made clothes shall

At the summer theatre when Chaliapine, who and the consequent reduction in his food. pports the revolution, sang in "Boris Goudenan audience of peorle in Russian blouses ked to hear him. Ploletarian boys and girls From Murmansk to Petrograd, from Petrogram the seats and ran to the front of the audim to applaud him at the close of every act. was constantly impressed by the healthy and Monday night at the ballet, in which the cers were said to be revolutionary, members a gorgeously dressed and in the latest styles. ie sees people riding into Moscow from 'he try on farmers' carts, with worn shoes and by clothing; one also sees people shabbily sed, who live in Moscow and Petrograd; bark bes are still worn in the country, and canvas assed together in public meetings. There was Petrograd was certainly short of food; Moscow, minimum pay of the district for a 60 per cent.

Shortage of transport is one of Russia's main difficulties now that the Red Army has won back the rich territories which were cut off from her by the native and foreign counter-revolutionaries. The transport difficulties are at once patent to anyone who visits Russia. The fact that Russia is a vast agricultural country that hitherto has dren of the soldiers get the same pension as the only developed industrialism on a small scale and Red soldiers. is cut off from the manufactured products of other Victims of the counter-revolution are also comcountries, is the greatest cause of shortage, and pensated. incidentally includes the transport difficulty also. The fact that Russia's production, both agricultural and industrial, has hitherto been remarkably low, having regard to her size, population and resources, must be borne in mind.

J. Larin, the well-known Soviet economist, estimates that the output of manufactured goods in Soviet Russia in the year 1919-1920 was only 20 per cent, of the pre-war average. His estimate of the agricultural production is also low.

I find it exceedingly difficult to accept statise proletarian State, to wider and wider sec- tical estimates regarding Russia, especially in res of people. Though some sections have been gard to agricultural production, because exact enced more or less, when one compares even the Revolution, and even yet it seems impossible outermost fringe with the poor of other that exact statistics can be obtained about Russia's agricultural production. It is notorious that the peasants conceal a considerable proportion of their produce. Larin himself admits it in his articles. The cruel terrorism of the old landlord and tax collector was undoubtedly able to force more from the peasants than the Government of the Peasants' and Workers' Soviets could or would do. The peasants, who are the vast majority of the Russian people, be it remembered, have enormously benefited by the Russian Revo-

e well-dressed, with a refreshing, graceful sim- Larin further says, that between 1908 and Congress of the Third International, he and the city. At the great theatre meeting in Moscow, 1916, the daily average food standard for an adult other Polish delegates had now hastened away to ch celebrated the close of the Third Interna- working-man in Russia was 3,289 calories, and Poland, leaving the Congress still in session. tional Congress, almost all the men and women that at the beginning of 1920 the workman's. Other members of the Polish Revolutionary Congress, almost all the men and women that at the beginning of 1920 the workman's. ore Russian blouses of bright-coloured cotton daily average of food calories was 2,980. Happily, mittee were Dzerjinsky, organiser and president ff. Hardly a woman had a hat. No one was Soviet Russia's supplies of food and raw material of the All-Russian Extraordinary Commission for jacket, and she fell on her knees and covered mansk, the white metal in the bearings agged or untidy; no one was dirty. The are now greatly increasing; but still, I cannot Combatting the Counter-Revolution, Unschlicht, the engine, again, for lack of lubricating antioning of clothes, and the supply of half the accept Larin's estimate as anything but a rough a famous Commissary of Food in Soviet Russia, "One thinks of . . . how much comfort grew molten hot and spurted out. The bearing attended to the sources of supply from and Felix Kohn, one of the most learned Polish meed an effect that any artist would welcome. the private trader and from relatives in the Communists, and a leader of the Left Socialist oreover, the rationing is wiping out class dis. country, now open to the Russian worker, are Party called the "Levitsa." Captain Guest was regarded in Russia as ex- We passed in the night, many forest fires where the comprehensive still wear fussy unpractical garments. They can be checked exactly the check Comrade Fineberg, who left London for Russia and Yours!" an extravagant amount of labour. At present, friends in the country who sent them regular supplies of food. I do not know whether, in judging that the Russian workman before the Private trading in clothing, as in many other war had an average of 3,280 calories, allowance amodities, still continues. Goods that were was made for the periods at which, through sickden away in the early days of the revolution ness, unemployment, or short time, his wages still being produced for sale. Probably, too, were reduced, and with it the amount of his daily ere has been smuggling by counter-revolution- calories. I do not know whether any allowance ries to counter-revolutionaries across the was made for the burden cast upon the worker of supporting sick, aged or unemployed relatives,

The great boon which the Soviets have brought to the Russian workers is the security that whatever food and clothing Russia has, they will have

The fact that all the children's food is free is in itself a wonderful thing to have brought into e old bourgeoisie half-filled the theatre, the the world. Free feeding for the children of Petrograd began in May, 1918, at first for the children up to fourteen years, and later, for those up to sixteen. By June 16th, 1919, 80 per cent of the Petrograd children were taking free meals in the Nursing mothers still work in the Russian was thrown to the winds, and they gave utter- Russia with amazement. It is regarded as extra- merrily. There was talk of the food shortal best with wooden soles are used to substitute factories, but they are liberated on full pay for her; but the general impression left by all eight weeks before and eight weeks after childnumerous crowds that passed before my eyes, birth. They have an additional grant to the value of a fortnight's minimum pay at the time of the confinement, and their pay is increased by onefourth during the nursing period of nine months.

ment they are entitled to the full average thing strange to me in such faces. In Germany Murmansk, and the Northern villages were short disablement; to a three-quarter's pay for a 45 ev were at that time more general; but of some kinds of food. In some districts, how- to 60 per cent. disablement; half pay for a 30 to 45 per cent. disablement. The family of a deceased worker is entitled to pension. One dependent gets 60 per cent. of the worker's minimum pay, two dependants get 75 per cent., and three or more get 100 per cent.

> Soldiers' pensions are on the same basis as those of the industrial workers; widows and chil-

CHAPTER XX. The Polish War.

Soviet Russia thrilled with confident expectation that Warsaw would fall to the Red Army, that the Polish workers and peasants would rally to the Red flag, and a Polish Soviet Government would be established straight away. Communist Poland would then form both the link with Communist Russia and the bulwark against attack by Entente Capitalism, which were necessary to secure a successful Communist revolution in Germany and Austria. Revolutions in Italy and the Balkan States would immediately follow, and e touched by it, it seems that all have been statistics were not a feature of Russian life before with the greater part of Europe already submerged by the Red tide, the world proletarian revolution would go marching forward.

> This was the news which greeted me when I reached Russia in the first days of August, 1920. Already, on July 31st, a revolutionary committee had been set up in Poland. Its members were as familiar and popular in Soviet Russia as in their native land. Its president was Marchlevsky (Karsky), an old colleague of Rosa Luxemburg and Leo Yogehes, the story of whose lives he recently wrote for the Moscow "Communist International." Marchlevsky had actually spoken in Moscow a few days ago at the Second

Poland with the watchword: "For our Freedom

The Polish Revolutionary Committee.

The Polish Revolutionary Committee issued a manifesto hailing the advance, announcing the fulfilment of the dreams of those Polish Revolutionary heroes who threw themselves into the struggle against Russian Czarism, to free, not merely the Polish people, but the Russians also. The manifesto proceeded:

"A secure peace is only possible between a Communist Russia and a Communist Poland governed by Workers' Councils. The factories and mines must be wrenched from the hands of capitalist speculators and usurers, and handed over to Workers' Committees. The land and the forests must also be owned and administered by the people. The landlords must be expelled, and their estates admin'stered by committees of agricultural workers, whilst the soil of the peasants who work their own land shall remain untouched. In the cities the power is already passing into the hands of the workers' delegates; in the villages, provisional councils of workers are being formed. As soon as the Government which plunged the country into this criminal war has been overthrown, the Councils of workers' delegates from the villages and the towns will establish in all Poland a Communist Soviet Republic."

"Soviet Russia as I saw it in 1920," by E. Sylvia Pankhurst, is copyrighted in accordance with the regulations of the Copyright Act, 1911 (1 and 2 Geo. 5, Ch. 46). American copyright has been applied Provided acknowledgement is made to the "Workers' Dreadnought," Communist and Labour papers can reproduce for the purposes of propaganda any part of this book.

A FURTHER REPLY TO WARD NEWTON.

To the Iditor.

see our Comrade Ward Newton in his "Industrial tings" of May 7th replies to my letter in the breadnought" of April 30th. His point is much re clear to me now. Our Comrade's contention is t industrial unions make for strength, and craft ons tend towards weakness. I would agree with tn were it not for the fact that I have some ring instances in my mind of the much-vaunted ty being unity in theory only. When the time nes for unity and solidarity we generally find lunity among many of the industrial unions. To Tre an instance: In July, 1919, there was an unoffi-I strike upon the N.E.R. system against an unit eyesight test which affected the whole of the Ilway workers upon this particular system, but bre especially the locomotive fraternity. I was member of the all-grades union at that time, hat was the position? I found that the fight is being waged by a gallant little body of about)00 members of the locomotive fraternity with tle or no assistance from the other grades, in lite of the fact that all were in the same ornisation (N.U.R.). In spite of the fact that the her grades were directly affected by the unjust test 'ey remained at work. However, the fight ended accessfully for the workers, and remains as an estance of what a few determined men can do against a mass of workers who were at log-Trheads with one another.

I could go on relating many similar cases affectg other big unions, but I think our Comrade 'ill agree with me in this case at any rate that rie much-vaunted unity was a delusion and a snaie, and was the means of a great many of the locomotive raternity turning over to the A.S.L.E. and F. But, ; I said, I have been in the past a member of te all-grades union, and I can assure our Comrade nat. as a Trade Unionist and as a Communist, had many good reasons for leaving it. I would uch prefer to be among a body of strong, deterined Trade Unionists that remain in an organisaon, the member of which are driven about willy ally by selfishness and blind, implicit faith in)-called leaders.

As to our Comrade's remark, re "narrow deterination to manage its own business," by the S.L.E. and F., I must say to him that the best rson to manage Ward Newton's business is Ward "ton, and the same applies to the A.S.L.E. and They do the best for themselves, and surely up to other organisations to do the same. If misaurin made themselver 25 power-he A.S.L.E. and F., they could, acting in nction with one another, force the issue any me they desired. As to Comrade Ward Newton's emarks re "craft consciousness and individual sueriority," I may say that the A.S.L.E. and F. o not think themselves superior to the workers any other industry. They are workers before nything, and they are CLASS-CONSCIOUS. They ve never yet, to my knowledge, refused assistance any organisation in distress, and circumstances now taking place which will probably place the .L.E. and F. first in the field in support of miners. But as long as the workers of all nisations strive their utmost to overthrow the alist class which oppress us, then I do not why we should have any resentment or prejuby one organisation towards another.

"ASSOCIATED."

To the Editor.

Dear Editor.—Reading through your report of e Red Trade Union International Conference, which ook place at Friar's Hall on May 7th, I notice hat there undoubtedly exists some confusion with he above and the Third (Communist) International. Mr. W. J. Webb, of the E.T.U., who evidently has ris heart in the right place (as he puts it), in seconding the resolution calling on the Trades Union Congress to sever its connection with Amsterdam, etc., and to take immediate steps to be represented at the first congress of the Red Trade Union International at Moscow, on July 1st; and further stated that his union was holding a Rules Revision Conference, one of the items being affiliation to the THIRD International. I believe affiliation ito the latter is exclusive to the Communist Parties "of all countries who accept and adhere to the Statutes, Thesis, etc., they being the political party of the proletariat, through which we hope to shape and mould the machinery necessary to impose the Dictatorship of the Proletariat. The R.T.U.I. when its rules and policy is finally settled on July 1st, will organise the masses in their millions on the industrial field on a class-conscious basis, thereby creating the economic power from which the Communist Parties will function. Recent events vividly demonstrated the need for a strong industrial international as a fighting weapon for the workers, which in due course in conjunction with the Third (Communist) International will, as Engels states: "Transport the Capitalist State into the museum of antiquities, next to the spinning wheel and the bronze axe. This condition of society, without the State, is Communism." I sincerely hope this will not be taken as a criticism of the London Conference in any way, but I, in my humble way, feel that we should be quite clear as regards the relationship between these two internationals. The E.C. of the Communist Party of Great Britain pointed out in a circular to branches a few weeks ago that "while they were working in harmony to the fullest extent, the two organisations were not one and the same." This proves that they, too, evidently wished to be quite clear on this point, as it is just possible that some who may even be delegates would have some misapprehension, and also that members of unions who affiliate may take it for granted that they automatically become members of the Communist Party (in fact, cases now could be cited), but this is not so.

Yours fraternally, A. C. WEBB. Birmingham.

[We would refer our correspondent to items 5 and 6 on the Agenda of the Third Congress of the Communist International re relationship between the Communist International and the Red T.U. International. This matter has yet to be decided .-Ed.]

MONEY AND PLAIN TALKS (Cont. from p. 4). from an orgy of Imperialism; other countries, too, where the class-struggle is to the fore.

Not casual bits of information, but a series of articles enabling the British workers to get a true perspective. At home—the financial and political interests still playing their powerful game of chess for clique supremacy, for the enslavement of the workers, and that, in spite of many of our too-confident comrades, who lull themselves in the unfounded belief that Capitalism is tottering to its fall, of its own weakness. A steady educational work on the need of strong

Party organisation. A fearless criticism of the present-day Trade Unions, which, whilst able to resist, and not even that in all cases, wage reductions, have not yet the prescience to organise rapidly and revolutionarily for a wageless state of society.

In brief lines, such is the work-educational and yet, we think, highly revolutionary—we had set out to achieve.

You can make mistakes whilst you are living; you can't talk after death. Pardon the utter commonplace and vulgarity of this sentence.

A paper, to improve, must live. Live we shall, if, besides financial assistance, Comrades will give us-who are no better than they are, and are not preaching from a high pulpit, still less from an ivory tower-the assistance of their experiencetheir criticism-aye, their friendly criticism and sometimes of their patience.

You know the story: Some one with a liver not working properly, grumbled one day at the cumbersome title of our paper. "Never mind," said Comrade Pankhurst, "when we go down, we'll come up once more and call it the "Workers' Mate."

WELCOME TO SYLVIA PANKHURST.

All members of the Communist Party, and Comrades who wish to welcome Sylvia Pankhurst on her release from Holloway, should apply to E. Cant, International Socialist Club, 28, East Road, City Road, N.1., for tickets (free) for the Reception at the above address on Monday, May 30th, at 7.30 p.m.

A rally will be held on the same day outside Holloway Gaol at 7.45 a.m.

ITALIAN ELECTIONS. Approximate figures at the time of going to press. The final results may vary between the two sets of figures indicated below:-

sets of lightes marcared boton.		Same of the same
Mini	mum.	Maxin	num.
Governmental bloc	240		285
Socialists	90	1000	110
DOCIATISTS			in.
Popular Party (Catholics and			107
landowners)	90		107
	10		15
Communists
Republicans (capitalists)	10	3.000	15
Fascisti (White Guards: extreme		24.0
Pascisti (William Catalana	20		35
reactionaries)		2041	Ed HIERON
Ex-Servicemen	10		13
Gl Commana (from newly-Slavo-Germans (from newly-	10		11
conquered provinces)	10		77

Mr. J. H. THOMAS.

Mr. J. H. Thomas says that American Labour is 50 years behind British Labour, and yet the British workers have never given him the reception he received from the American workers. He was greeted on landing with boos and jeers because he had caused disruption in the Triple Alliance, and banners bearing such inscriptions as: "Thomas Fleeing from the Wrath of England"; "Judas Hanged Himself after Betrayal. Will Thomas Follow Suit?" He had to escape in a goods lift.

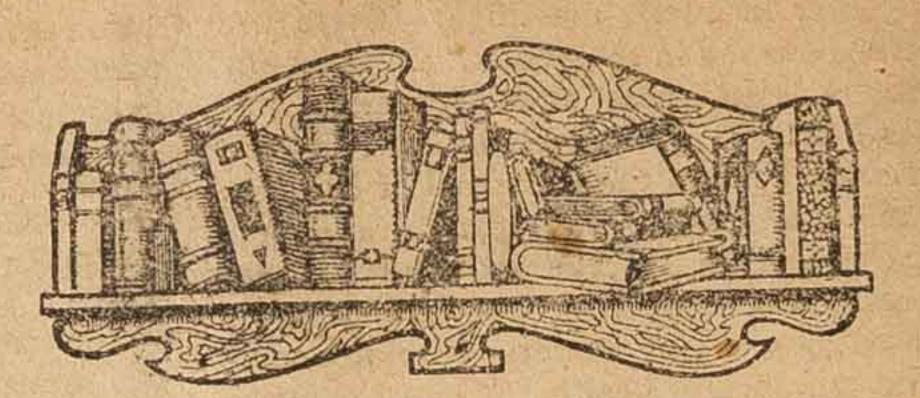

The Americans do not only pass resolutions, they are up doing!

A SUGGESTION.

Chandler says :-

"Be bold! Get out a special number at the time of Miss Pankhurst's release. Something quite out of the common, and get a splash advertisement in the Daily Herald. This helped The Communist and should help you.

"You may be surprised at the number of people who have never heard of the Workers' Dreadnought, and many of these, Daily Herald readers."

BOOKSHELF.

"THE YOUNG WORKER."

(The monthly organ of the Young Workers' League. 152, Fleet Street, E.C. 4. 3d.)

It is just as easy to get children to wave a red flag as a tricolour one: it is a matter of emotion, affecting us as the military brass band that set all feet a-tramping. It is another matter to instil in young minds ideas that will grow and germinate into a permanent sense of justice and a strong will to see that ideal put into daily practice.

Francisco Ferrer, a pioneer of revolutionary education, was shot years ago by the reactionary classes of Spain. In the stress and difficulty surrounding the working-class movement, he was one of the first to emphasize the need of education-free from capitalist bias-for the young generation. This work is at the same time most useful and truly difficult. It requires not only patience, but great psychological insight. It is a work of great responsibility.

Modern society, which has created the slums and their depressing moral atmosphere, has also given us the "penny 'orrible" and the "pictures," failing at the same time to give us a good and useful elementary education for the young workers.

"The Young Worker" is a praiseworthy attempt, by a group of young workers, assisted by a capable editor, to supply young workers with some good and readable educational matter.

Sixteen pages of interesting and elevating articles, in a convenient magazine size, even at 3d, should sell well, and we are looking forward with interest to the next issue for which, the whisper goes round, new interesting features are prepared.

We have received some very sympathetic and appreciative letters in response to our appeal, extracts from some of which we give below:-

I value very much indeed the pioneer work done by the Dreadnought in the coldy days, and from time to time I see articles there which are of the greatest educational value, that I don't see in any other paper. . . Yes, although I sometimes find very little time for reading the Dreadnought, if it ceased to be, I should miss it very much; but anyway, it must not be allowed to lapse, and so enclose really more than I can spare. Trust you will be successful in getting further financial support from your readers.

"I am sending this to say how deeply I regret it, but I have been out of employment for the last two months, and cannot send on any financial help as I should so much have liked to have done.

"The Dreadnought has been an education and an inspiration to me, and I am sure all who read it will feel a big loss, especially now, if it has to cease publication.

"We devoutly hope that the Dreadnought will hold out until Miss Pankhurst comes out, and we hope that a good response will result from your appeal for funds. For the coming week we will undertake to make good whatever may be short of the £30 required."

DREADNOUGHT DEVELOPMENT FUND.

Per E. Lagsding 10s, Mrs. Edmunds 10s, per E. Collins 2s 6d, A. J. Marriott 5s, A. Frayn 5s, E. Swift £1 5s, E. H. Fox 5s, Miss Widdicombe £1, Mrs Wyatt £3, C. Dunn 5s, J. Staples 9s, F. Dobson 2s 6d, per Mr. Pocock 12s 6d, S. A. Chandler £3. Hatfield Friends 1s 9d, M. Belkin £1, a Revolutionary 6s, L. Burgis 15s, S. N. Ghose 5s, C. Cole 5s, per S. Robinson 9s, L. Devereaux 5s, per M. Marsh 10s, G. L. Joines 5s, E. Gulland £1 1sa A. Holdsworth 10s, per A. C. Webb 6s 6d, R. C. 2s 6d, Redcap 5s, total £17 10s; grand total £81 1s 51d.

THANKS.

We are very grateful to the comrades who have helped us this week, especially that group which has promised to make good any deficit on the £30 this week. Who will follow their example, for the next few weeks?

One comrade says he will send 10s, a week if others will promise to do the same. Do not let us lose this offer! Another comrade has promised to send 10s. a month.

Published by E. Sylvia Pankhurst at 152, Fleet Street, London, E.C. 4, and printed by S. Corio at 10, Wine Office Court, Fleet Street, London, H.C. 4.