Morkey

TOR GOING TO THE ROOT.

vol. X. No. 40.

December 22, 1923.

WEEKLY.

The Decay and Restoration of Civilisation.

THE DECAY AND RESTORATION OF CIVILISATION, Part I. The Philosophy of Civilisation, by Albert Schweitzer, translated from the German by A. T. Campion (A. & C. Black, 5s. 6d.).

The author explains that this work is the first part of a complete philosophy of civilisation, which he has developed in four parts.

He contends that the ultimate nature of civilisation is ethical; that the essence of civilisation "depends on the mental disposition of the individuals and nations who exist in the world; that that it is only in his struggle to become ethical that man comes to possess real value as a personality"; that if the ethical foundation is lacking, "then civilisation collapses, even when in other directions creative and intellectual forces of the strongest nature are at work."

He adds:

"Only as we succeed in attaining a strong and worthy theory of the universe, and find in it strong and worthy convictions, shall we again become capable of producing a new civilisation. . . .

"Civilisation, put simply, consists in our giving ourselves, as human beings, to the effort to attain the perfecting of the human race and the actualisation of progress of every sort in the circumstances of humanity and of the objective world.

existence as meaningless, there is no point whatever in desiring to effect anything in the world. We become workers for that universal, spiritual and material progress which we call civilisation, only in so far as we affirm that the world and life possess some meaning; or, which is the same thing, only in so far as we think optimistically."

All this contains much truth, but the author has not given us any, only a very guarded and slight definition of what he regards as an ethical basis of society. Opinion on ethics differs completely from age to age. Moreover, the various individual members of society in each period are at various stages of development regarding the ethical conceptions which are being gradually established or gradually passing away. The author would, of course, point out that a final standard of ethics cannot be set forth, because as we have observed, ethics, like all other features of human society, are evolving and are in a continual state of flux.

Nevertheless, since the author has promised "a complete philosophy of civilisation" with an ethical basis, it seems to us that he has laid upon himself the obligation to set forth a general working programme of ideals and conduct to be applied to the main human relationships and conditions of life in the present age.

So far as the present volume is concerned, Schweitzer has made no such attempt. The nearest he gets to it are in the following passages:

"Civilisation is, then, two-fold in its nature; it realises itself in the supremacy of reason, first, over the forces of nature; and, secondly, over the dispositions of men.

"Which of these kinds of progress is most truly progress in civilisation? The latter, though it is the least open to observation. Why? For two reasons. First, the supremacy which we secure by reason over external nature represents not unqualified progress, but a progress which brings with its advantages also disadvantages, which may work in the direction of barbarism. The reason why the economic circumstances of our time endanger civilisation is to be sought for partly in the fact that we have pressed into our service natural forces which can be embodied in machines. But with that there must be such a supremacy of reason over the dispositions of men that they, and the nations which they form, will not use against one another the power which the control of these forces gives them, and thus plunge one another into a struggle for existence which is far more terrible than that between men in a state of nature. . . . ''

"And what is meant by the supremacy of the reason over human dispositions? It means that both individuals and the mass let their willing be determined by the material and spiritual good of the whole and the individuals that compose it. . . ."

Only under a free communism could the author's broadly indicated ideas for an ethical social basis be realised. Only under communism could the evils he castigates in the present system. This is our view. To us free communism is the essential ethical basis of society.

Schweitzer, however, glides over the economic basis of society in a few cursory phrases, refusing to commit himself to any view:

"We are, indeed, far from unanimity as to the plan needed for the reform of our anti-democratic plan; others believe that our arrangements: one section sketches out an mistake lies in the fact that democratic principles have not yet been applied consistently; others again see salvation only in a Socialist or Communist organisation of Society."

Schweitzer is apparently searching for the key to the social riddle which others have discovered. It is daily offered for his inspection, but he thrusts it aside, refusing to recognise it for what it is. He is like a man who wan ders in a dark room praying for light, though all that is needful to obtain it is to draw the curtains.

Schweitzer's criticisms of present society are nevertheless, in many respects, remarkably true and scathing. They may lead others to a point at which they will see further than he has done.

He observes that philosophy, once "an active worker producing universal convictions about civilisation," has come to mean merely the history of philosophy, the creative spirit having disappeared. Philosophers may now reflect on the results achieved by historical and vatural science, for the purpose of establishing a theory of the universe, but they give no attention to developing ideals of civilisation.

Scheweitzer says in one part of his book:

"The only conceivable way to bring about a reconstruction of our world on new lines is first of all to become new men ourselves under the old circumstances."

Yet, in spite of that saying, and in spite of his belittling of the importance of economic institutions, he goes not to show how fundamental economic circumstances affect the people in just this very matter of becoming new social beings.

He asserts that ability to be a pioneer of progress; in others words, to understand what civilisation is and to work for it, depends on being a thinker and on being free. The more completely the activities are absorbed in the struggle for existence.

"The more strongly will a man's impulse to improve his own conditions find expression in the ideals of his thought. Ideals of self-interest then get mixed up with and spoil his ideals of civilisation.

"Material and spiritual freedom are closely bound up with one another. Civilisation pre-supposes free men, for only by free men can it be thought out and brought to realisation.

"If society had so developed that a continually widening circle of the population could enjoy a modest, well-assured condition of comfort, civilisation would have been much more helped than it has been by all the material conquests which are lauded in its name."

All this is an argument for Communism, whether Schweitzer is aware of that or not. He adds that even property-owners are more and more completely drawn into the struggle for existence, because of the insecurity of present-day economic conditions, a fact acutely felt in Germany.

He points to the growing lack of freedom resulting from the factory system, and from overwork. He observes truly, that "for two or three generations numbers of individuals have been living as workers merely, not as human beings."

The children are injured by the overwork of the parents, who cannot devote themselves to them. As they grow up the children, too, become the slaves of over-long hours. They feel more and more the need for external distractions. They lack the mental collectedness to employ their few hours of leisure in selfcultivation and serious thought. They require idleness, forgetfulness, entertainment. entertainment itself must be superficial, trivial. The theatres and newspapers, the novels, have been adapted to this condition. The institutions which should sustain the spiritual life are penetrated by superficiality, and exercise a reflex action, imposing on all a state of mental vacuity. There is a lowered conception of what mankind should be.

Specialisation increases production, but makes no call on the man, only on some of his faculties. The creative and artistic powers are atrophied.

Communism has its remedy for all that: useful labour at necessary productive work for all; leisure and opportunity to do creative work for all; abolition of the useless toil entailed by production for profit and buying and selling.

Schweitzer deplores the fact that modern life does not allow us to deal with each other as man to man, and that forgetting our relationship with our fellows, we are on the path towards inhumanity. The consciousness is lost that every man should be an object of concern, just because he is man. A social mentality is created which discourages humanity in individuals.

dent. Schweitzer adds that indifference, stand revolutionary proletariat, themselves handed the manœuvres of Seeckt and Ebert, and offishness and want of sympathy pass for the power first to General Kornilov and then to seriously believed that the state of siege was behaviour of the man of the world.

as such, a human value and a human dignity. socialist revolutionaries and mencheviks, call with the coup détat of the Bavarian Fascisti. Many sections of the human race are regarded Admiral Koltchak to power, who then, as was Again, let us take Red Saxony. While of the material world.

organisation which represses creative activity, to the German Koltchak, General Seeckt.

is also enlarged upon.

of discipline from childhood up that they lose the sense of individuality, and only desire to think in the spirit of some group or other. It is assumed that certain established views must be taken into account, which one cannot hope to alter, and which are determined by nationality, creed, party, or social position. People are lost in the mass. They lose concern for their own nature, and are acutely susceptible to the views which society and its organs of expression have put into circulation. They renounce the privilege of thinking as free personalities, and let themselves be guided by a clique. They cease to reflect lest they be brought into inner conflict with the body to which they belong. The opinion is current that the action of the community or the organisation, as the case may be, are not to be judged by standards of morality, but by expediency alone.

Schweitzer acutely observes that whilst nationalism has been invested with a halo, the closeness with which the nations are interrelated is shown by the fact that they have all suffered from the same decadence.

The author has made some acute observations, but in many respects he has not progressed so far as had William Godwin in his " Political Justice."

Let us see what his future efforts may bring

The German Koltchak, by C. Zinviev.

examination, and they themselves are more Dictatorship of Seeckt." like buffoons than serious, active counter- Similarly, it would be just as incorrect to needs most for victory, namely, a fighting revolutionaries.

prudent section of the German Social-democrats Fascist organisations are not one and the same. to the German revolution.

Koltchakism (Seeckt) and the "November proletarian revolution in Germany, and the continue to pull the strings.] Republic "?

by General Seeckt, who for some time has been merely different forms of Fascism. playing a prominent, and indeed a decisive, Instead of encouraging the German workers that Fascism has defeated the November calculations upon such differences, it would be Republic in Germany, and that the dictatorship far better to study the facts carefully. Let us of Seeckt marks a military reaction to it. recall recent happenings. The Bavarian Fasaccurate.

Koltchakism developed in Russia.

"revolutionary demogracy" itself. The revo-fully that considerable sections of the social-

Individuals are looked on as figures or objects Something similar is now taking place in 60,000 troops of the White Reichswehr in

With the first German revolution (November, threw the workers' Government of Saxony. Political, religious and economic associa- 1918) power passed entirely into the hands of Take, again, Thuringia. The Fascisti were essence. tions aim at the greatest possible inner the social-democrats, who set up the first concentrating their well-armed forces on the cohesion, with the highest external activity. "revolutionary" Government of "national frontier of Thuringia, where also a workers' People are so much imbued with the thought representatives," consisting of social-democrats Government was in power. The whole socialand independent social-democrats. Five years democratic and democratic press raised the have elapsed since that period. During these alarm that the Fascisti were about to occupy five years the German social-democrats and Thuringia, whereupon General Seeckt, in order birds flying over it. Why is it, why?" independents have been employed in handing to save the situation, and with the blessing of power over by instalments, first to the bour- Ebert, sent his republican Reichswehr into but may not wed: geoisie and then to the reactionary militarists. Thuringia. Thanks to the efforts of the social-German social-democracy "begat" the democratic press, many social-democratic November democracy. November democracy workers regarded the occupation of Thuringia "begat" the German Koltchak, Seeckt.

ism in its time, is the logical development and Reichswehr did not occupy Thuringia, they derful woman!" consummation of the idea of revolutionary said, the Fascisti would. While the right democracy, or, adapted to Germany, of the social-democratic leaders are terrifying the ciality enlightened Russians, of all peoples, idea of the November Republic. One cannot workers with the spectre of Hitler Fascism, therefore assert that any distinction or contra- they are in fact setting Seeckt on the Fascist diction exists between the November Republic throne. In short, the heroes of the November and the dictatorship of Seeckt. Seeckt is the Republic, the German social-democrats, are child, the legal heir, of the November Republic, handing over power to Seeckt by instalments. as Koltchak was the legal heir of the revo- The thistles of German Koltchakism are springlutionary democracy of Kerensky.

The revolutionary democrats are unable to social-democracy. bridle the communist proletariat, and therefore a Koltchak or a Seeckt inevitably comes to possible. There can be now little doubt that bridle revolutionary democracy. That is the Germany will have to pass through a period logic of things. The German proletariat of White Terror. There is also little doubt having shown that it is as yet unable to exer- that the path of the German proletariat will be cise its dictatorship immediately, the November a difficult one, and that many and heavy sac-Revolution must in its logical development lead rifices will be demanded of it. It is now certain inevitably to the dictatorship of General Seeckt. that the path of the German proletariat revo-General Seeckt has not defeated Ebert. As lution will be much more painful than we at a matter of fact, Ebert needs General Seeckt first believed. But the fundamental factors much more than Seeckt needs Ebert. It is which are dragging Germany to the edge of very possible that when Seeckt finally estab- the abyss, and which are leading to a revolishes his dictatorship, he may think it advis- lutionary crisis-viz., international politics, the able to make the social-democrat Ebert his financial crisis, the food crisis, etc.—are still President. Why not? In a big affair like operating and are steadily becoming more that, a social-democratic President would be acute. It must be admitted that the probability of a very useful asset. But Ebert, on the other The German proletariat will have to pay a Seeckt becoming the dictator in the very near hand, could not remain President for a day heavy price for its victory, but nothing can future is a serious one. Hitler and Co. are without the support of General Seeckt. Seeckt cheat it of that victory. Koltchakism will be heap. They that sow in tears shall reap in The book and the sect are typical post-war German Purishkeviaches.* They have a cer- and Ebert are the two sides of one coin. On a no more permanent phenomenon on German tain backing among the nationalist petty- the front are the words, "The November soil than it was on Russian soil. The German bourgeoisie; but their programme will not bear Republic," and on the back the words, "The proletariat is being tested in the fire of painful assume that a fundamental antagonism of in- temper, distrust of the social-democrats, and But General Seeckt is another proposition. terests exists between General Seeckt on the military preparedness. Revolutionary deter-His movements are secret and cautious. He one hand and German Fascism on the other. has managed to secure the backing both of the It is true that Generel Seeckt and the official and of the big bourgeoisie headed by Stinnes. But even Admiral Koltchak, in the first period His policy is to consolidate the big bourgeoisie of his activity, was in favour of the Constituthroughout the country and to creat a solid tional Assembly, and not of a "united and bourgeois constitutional régime. To this ex- indivisible Russia," and certainly not in favour forming a united front between the communists The immaterial and the ideal clearly transcend mans must turn away from "strange gods," tent Seeckt constitutes a most serious menace of "autocracy, orthodoxy, and nationalism." and the social-democrats. In practice this the material in their hold on the characters, be their names Vivekananda or Newton, Berg-If we talk not of trifles, but of serious matters, united front means that the communists back immersed as many of them are in sordid cures son or Lenin, Darwin or Wilson." He asks: What is the relation between German i.e., the victory of the bourgeoisie over the the social-democrats, and the social-democrats and vices. In the roadside tavern are from foreign vampires? " "Germany is sick consolidation of the bourgeois dictatorship, The November Republic is personified by then the Fascisti, Seeckt, and Ebert are en-President Ebert, the social-democrats, and the gaged in one and the same business, in which more "freedom-loving" section of the bour- a certain amount of division of labour has been geois-democrats. Koltchakism is personified arranged. Seeckt, Ebert, and Noske are rôle in every German democratic Government. with the talk of differences between General We are again hearing the assertion made Seeckt and Fascism, instead of basing our These assertions are, to say the least, in- cisti effected a coup détat. What did General Seeckt and the social-democratic President For the sake of analogy, let us recall how Ebert do? They took advantage of the fact in order to declare a state of siege throughout Koltchakism in Russia was begotten by the whole of Germany. This was done so skil-

Quite so: humanity is considered improvi- lutionary democrats, forced to the wall by the democratic workers were at first deceived by General Alexeiev? Did not the revolutionary declared, not as a measure directed against the Society has ceased to allow men and women, democrats, in the person of the Siberian revolutionary proletariat, but in order to deal merely as raw material and property. War is only to be expected, turned upon the General Seeckt, with the approval of the socialtalked of as mere operations on a chess-board. revolutionary democrats and rent them? democratic President Ebert, was concentrating Germany. What we are now observing Saxony, it was given out that the concentration The lack of spiritual independence in the amounts to this: the German November demo- was directed against White Bavaria. But people of to-day, the stultifying effect of over- crats are handing over power by instalments when the concentration was complete, the mask was discarded and the White Reichswehr overby the republican Reichswehr almost as a vic-German Koltchakism, like Russian Koltchak- tory for the German proletariat. If the them in my dreams . . . splendid, woning up thickly in the flower-beds of German

Will this go on for long? It is hardly experience, and is acquiring the qualities it mination will be hardened under the blows of

Our comment upon this article of Zinoviev is that, whatever its author may have intended,

WORKERS' DREADNOUGHT Reunion and Sale.

WORKERS' FRIEND HALL, Fieldgate Street, Whitechapel. Saturday, 22nd December, 1923.

6 p.m. to 11 p.m.

FROM THE PUBLISHERS

THREE SISTERS and other plays by Anton Tchehov, translated from the Russian by Constance Garnett (Chatto and Windus),

These short plays, translated with consummate skill and great beauty of language, are full of the magic of Tchehov; that strange subtle melancholy interwoven with details that are sordid and coarse, crude, vivid, commonplace and strange, from which there rises a rare spiritual beauty, a poetry of the finest

Mysterious and sad is the title play, the brief tale of three unfortunate women.

"Tell me, why is it I am so happy today?" asks Irina, "as though I were sailing, with the great blue sky above me, and big white Vershinin says to Masha, whom he loves, "You are a splendid, wonderful woman.

Splendid! Wonderful! It's dark, but I see the light in your eyes. . . . "I love your eyes, your movements, I see

Ah; these marriage tangles whose artifi-

Masha in the midst of her trouble speaks ever and anon a strange refrain:

have been best able to understand!

"By the sea-strand an oak tree green . . . upon that oak a chain of gold." At the tragic close of the play Olga, the schoolmistress, embraces her sisters, musing: "Time will pass, and we shall be forgotten, our faces will be forgotten, our voices, and how hany there were of us; but our sufferings will pass into joy for those who will live after us, happiness and peace we only knew-if we only knew!"

twigs of the tree growing from the rubbish industry.

What a tremendous range of subjects has and pompous, or fallen and struggling with class; the workers; the submerged waifs of poverty. All this society of shams he seesand knows that it will pass.

e few rude benches; pilgrims, beggars and her blood." He adds: avellers. The old pilgrim is tenderly waited on by strange women. The factory lad addresses him with reverence. The fallen, penniless landowner craves the innkeeper for more vodka, offering in return his overcoat, s sole garment, though he has nothing under it save his skin. The innkeeper refuses to ommit the sin of accepting his only garment. The landowner in his agonised longing for drink, accusing and yet excusing himself for he deed, at last offers a gold locket containing the portrait of his wife, who left him on their wedding day for a lover, and for whose sake he has gone mad and fallen to this degraded

The pilgrims and wayfarers crowd round to see the portrait. A traveller, once a serf of the landowner, enters and tells the story, of bygone superstitions, are some ignorant The wayfarers in pity give their money for people gulled in these days of trial in Germore drinks for the fallen landowner.

There is a carriage accident outside. A lady is brought in to rest: it is the land- fraudulent magic and vulgar superstitution owner's wife. She spurns him. He weeps than to face hard facts. at her feet.

A tramp who is a bully and a thief had previously terrorised all the company, forced the factory worker to vacate his bench for him, and the innkeeper to remove his boots. He springs forward, seizes the landowner's wife, and urges:

"Come, you might give him just one look!

The landowner's wife only resists the tramp, exclaiming: "Take this . . . crazy man away from me."

The tramp cries: "Then go to the devil, you damned woman!" He swings the axe. cheese and pudding for the dinner, added The crowd drag him back. The coachman carries the lady out of the inn.

The landowner clutches at the air with his hands: "Marie . . . where are you,

The tramp asks: "Have I killed her?" life's safe this time."

Then, strangely, the tramp weeps:

"I didn't kill her then. . . ." He and morning. staggers to his bench. "It was not my luck to die from a stolen axe." He sinks down on ing they possess for the princely sum of 2s. 6d. his coat, and sobs:

"Oh, misery! Cruel misery! Have pity on me, good Christians!"

FROM LUTHER TO STEINER, by Ernst Boldt, translated from the German by Agnes Blake (Methuen, 7s. 6d.).

This is far from being a clear and lucid To establish a logical connection will be established on earth, and they will between the ideas of Luther and Steiner and over the traces in this and similar Slave remember kindly, and bless those who have to give a rational historic survey of religious Colonies—such as Laindon Farm, Hollesley lived before. Oh, dear sisters, our life is thought lying between is not attempted. The Bay, and Belmont. not ended yet. We shall live! The music author confusedly indicates that Rudolf Steiner is so gay, so joyful, and it seems as though is a sort of theosophist called an anthroa little more and we shall know what we are posophist, and that he is the founder of the 184, St. Leonard's Road, living for, why we are suffering . . . if sect which, beside a variety of religious beliefs, advocates what is called the "Three-fold Thus beautifully is expressed the prevailing Commonwealth." This apparently includes thought that has animated a generation of three Parliaments, one for spiritual matters, Russian literature; hope arises out of sorrow, one for personal rights (which is to be backed the almond blossom breaks forth on the bare by the police and military), and one for products of a defeated nation.

The perilous economic situation of Ger-Tchehov! What a knowledge of life among many has produced, on the one hand, a desire all classes! What a sympathy and under- for State assistance to industry; and on the standing for all frailties! The nobility, rich other, a rebellion against the tyranny of the profiteer. Therefore, in harmony with the debt and poverty; the small, striving middle- times, the author and the sect advocate that men should be overseers, not owners, of property and industries. The aggressive nationalism is also significant of the time. A ghost sketch "On the High Road" is Boldt declares: "The German Spirit is to-day it exposes the futility of the Moscow policy intensely dramatic and moving. Only a fulfilling its appointed task through the agency (largely sponsored by Zinoviev himself) of Russian could have produced such a drama. of Rudolf Steiner." He protests that Gergathered a crowd of poor people, prepared to from foreign campires? " "Germany is sick spend the night huddled up on the floor, or because of the un-German taint now poisoning

'. . . Only when we Germans, through a true apprehension of the Living Essence of Christ, shall come to apprehend the I—CH dwelling within us. Then, too, shall Germany be made whole; then, too, shall we bring health to all the other peoples of the earth—that true health, for which, albeit unconsciously, all are yearning, but to which they can never attain of their own unassisted efforts. What Lucifer and Ahriman have to bestow, that each one of them possesses; but that which verily is CHRIST'S, they must consent to receive from

"O German spirit 'tis thy goal Once more a sick world to make whole." Thus, with patter called from a hocuspocus many. Not alone in Germany, for there are many here also who prefer rather to dabble in Unemployed Workers Organisation.

There has been trouble at Ockendon Farm Colony, run by the West Ham Distress Com-Comfort him with one kind word! For God's mittee. On December 5th the meat served up for dinner was rotten. The men declined to touch the dinner (with the exception of two weak-kneed, spineless individuals); they also decided not to return to work. Eventually, the superintendent substituted bread and bacon for tea, and promised there would be no such meat in future. This satisfied the men, and they returned to work after a delay of about two hours.

The washing arrangements on this Colony are far from being what they should be. No The innkeeper answers: "Thank God: your hot water is provided for the men to wash their shirts and underclothing, neither is any light provided for them to wash themselves night

> The men also wear out what relics of clothper week, in addition to board and lodging served out in well-known institution fashion: this in and in return for working during the duration of daylight.

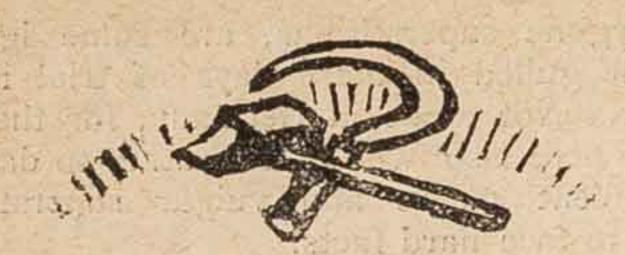

> Thus does the West Ham Distress Committee make these men more distressful and despondent than ever-and in a borough "represented" by three "Socialists" and a "Labour" Council, if not a "Labour" Board of Guardians. It is time the men kicked

> > G. RICHARDSON, (Sec., U.W.O., Poplar).

UNEMPLOYED WORKERS' ORGANISATION.

All communications for the Unemployed Workers' Organisation should be addressed either to A. J. Mummery, Secretary of the Area Council, at 19, Leonard's Buildings, Old Ford; or to C. Soderberg, Secretary of the Central Committee, at the Bromley Public Hall, Bow Road.

Paris	5
Work	E
Fruitfulness	5
Truth
ANATOLE FRANCE:
The Red Lily	9
Thais	5
Penguin Island
The Crime of Sylvestre Bonnard	9
Crainquebille	7
The Human Tragedy, with 16 illustrations by Michel Sevier	10
Ditto
Majesty of Justice
SIR J. G. FRAZER:
The Golden Bough: A Study in Magic
and Religion (12 vols.) (each)	12
Folk Lore in the Old Testament	18
JOHN GALSWORTHY:
In Chancery	9
Tatterdemalion	7
Saint's Progress
Beyond
The Country House 6/- and	- 12
The First and the Last 6/- and Fraternity 6/- and
The Patrician 6/- and
The Inn of Tranquillity
The Island of Pharisees
The Man of Property 6/- and
Awakening	. 7

Warkers' Dreadnought Founded 1914. Editor: SYLVIA PANKHURST. 4 4 4

All Matter for Publication To THE EDITOR Business Communications — To The Manager. WORKERS' DREADNOUGHT, 152, Fleet Street, London, E.C.4. SUBSCRIPTIONS. Three months (13 weeks) Six months (26 weeks) 6s. 6d. One year (52 weeks) .

Vol. X. No. 40. Saturday, Dec. 22nd, 1923.

Subscriptions can start from any week.

Our View.

MR. W. STEWART, M.P., in the Glasgow Forward, asks: "What kind of Government shall we get?" and answers: "We shall get a "Forward" Capitalist Government," because "there is a Capitalist majority in Policy. Parliament." The statement is absolutely correct (though there are also additional reasons why there will be a Capitalist Government at the present time).

It is interesting to observe that there is a strong cleavage of opinion between the Scottish Labour M.P.'s who write in the Glasgow Forward, and the other Labour politicians whose utterances are published in the New Leader. Mr. Stewart, in the Forward, urges that the Labour Party must wait to take Office until another General Election has given it a victory at the polls.

the Forward, says:

certain to do, and the King sends for Mr. calling an immediate General Election. Ramsay MacDonald, a Labour Government will be formed. Before Mr. MacDonald could do anything he would require to come to the country for a mandate. He would carry his Budget, or take over the mines and railways."

Forward, says:

"Insidious attempts are being made in ways, were to be passed; (2) to form a also to reform the electoral machinery and Labour Government and pursue a watered Parliamentary procedure.

Liberalism stands for the defence of com- railways. progress in the future will be the extent to distribution of the national wealth."

disastrous. I could understand a Labour it the support of the public, but for which, any large and contentious measures." because of its very Socialist nature, they would expect no support outside of Labour in the House of Commons. . . . A bold policy might even now be triumphant at the polls. A colourless, diluted policy would be rejected with contempt, and the people plausible proposals of a Liberal mounte-

"It must also be borne in mind that the Labour Party has to face not merely a hostile House of Commons, but an even more hostile and united House of Lords. We are now entering into close grips with the forces of Capitalism. We require greater courage and more formidable weapons. Nothing is to be gained by attracting the support of a few weak-kneed people. In the desperate struggles of the immediate future they would be only in the way. It would be political madness to leave the impression on the public mind that the Labour Movement is not a menace to vested interests. These interests are keeping our people in the depths of poverty, and are now actually threatening to throttle our national existence. We must destroy them rapidly in self-preservation. The people of Glasgow will support us in this task, and so will every other section of the populace, if we nail our colours to the mast and leave timidity in the rear.

"Our people are prepared for annual ment. Elections. It is obvious that we stand to gain by the frequent collapse of Capitalist Governments and the frequent presentation these, save the abolition of the capitalist of our case to the public. Let us look on system itself. Indeed, since their roots are reformed for the final battle."

So much for the policy of the Forward group; it is a refusal to remain in office Mr. Thomas Johnston, M.P., the Editor of without power-an affirmation that, should the Labour Party be called to office, it must "If Mr. Baldwin resigns, as he is almost either decline or accept only on condition of

Mr. H. N. BRAILSFORD, editor of the require to get a majority before he could New Leader, adopts the diametrically opposite view. He urges that The "New the Labour Party should accept Mr. John Wheatley, M.P., also in the Leader" office for a short term, in order Policy. to deal with unemployment, by The result of the great subsidies would be the Press to influence Mr. Ramsay Mac- by "humanising the working of relief," to creased taxes, and inevitably the unpopularity Donald to adopt one of two courses: (1) To initiate a housing scheme, to recognise Soviet of those who promoted the schemes. The enter into a coalition with the Liberals on Russia, and to set up inquiries into the subsidy plan has been tried in Germany: its condition that certain Socialist proposals, Capital Levy, the relations of finance and results are manifest. such as the nationalisation of mines and rail- currency to unemployment, on agriculture, Parliamentary policy to which Liberals and This is, of course, the "watered" promany Tories would have no deep-rooted gramme denounced by Mr. Wheatly. Mr. pacification of Europe, the provision of relief out from some of the extensive programmes age pension law, and more generous treat- speeches and in print." Evidently he is Policy. ment to ex-Service men and the dependents referring to such programmes as those put of the dead. The Capital Levy would be forward by Mr. Wheatly and Mr. Johnston, petitive Capitalism. The measure of social Mr. Wheatly adds " measures for the better working overtime making gas masks. If the which competitive Capitalism is destroyed. Mr. Johnston adds measures to relieve un- the masks might be needed. We do not anti-Labour's policy is diametrically opposed to employment, widows' pensions, improved old cipate that the Labour Party will find the that of Liberalism. . . . age pensions, and the cutting down of Cabinet business of coercing France so easy as it whether a Labour Government can prove of "Such a coalition or compromise is Ministers' salaries to the £400 a year of an fancies. It may well discover discretion to it would break the hearts of those gallant Mr. Clifford Allen, Treasurer of the I.L.P., the task. Mr. MacDonald would nevertheless men and women whose sacrifices and also writing in the New Leader, adopts an take care that the protagonists of the next war enthusiasm have carried our movement to attitude similar to that of Mr. Brailsford, do not draw him into their toils. We regret to the gates of the promised land. . . . urging that the Labour Party is still con- If the men who work in the pits are baulked "The second course would be but a coali- office as an emergency government to deal firmedly national in its views, and has no con- in their effort to secure increased wages by Mr. Sidney Webb, M.P., also wants to take Government being formed to promote a bold office, though he admits "the plain impossi-Socialist policy with a view to soliciting for bility of passing into law in this Parliament

Mr. Macdonald merely asks the rank and file to trust the leaders.

The Labour Party Executive has answered all speculation by declaring its willingness to take office. A full Party meeting is called for January 8th to decide what (if any) terms it might again turn in desperation to the will lay down. We may take it that the Labour Party will take office if it can, in spite of the Scottish objectors.

> It remains clear that the Capitalist parties have a Parliamentary majority, and that the Labour Party can only retain office by pursuing a policy which is acceptable to the Capitalist parties. By doing that it will soon wreck the hopes of those who look to it for substan.

The programme of both factions of the Labour Party are superficial and unscientific. We observe with interest that the C.P.G.B. advocates Labour Party acceptance of office. Is this Moscow policy? Alas, alas, how are

TO ASSUME that unemployment and foreign policy can be dealt with by agreement, as though they were minor Unemploy- isolated matters, is utterly absurd. There are no more bigger, more fundamental and more difficult questions than in calmness and confidence while the in the capitalist system, these questions cannot shattered forces of the enemy are being be dealt with without attacking large capi-

> The Labour Party's Unemployment Bill, with its proposed colonies for the unemployed and doles to the wives and children left at home, would still fail to solve the pressing problem of financing the unemployed relie and would be immensely unpopular with the unemployed themselves. The I.L.P. programme of large subsidies to municipalities would have to be paid for somehow. Moreover, it would be rejected by the Tories, unless it were coupled with the Tory industrialist demand that great subsidies shall also be granted to private capitalist employers.

"big constructive works," and inflated currency, increased prices, and

AS TO FOREIGN POLICY, the Labour

ments of Europe to mind their p's and q's, and that France relegated to a Committee of Inquiry. who both advocate, as first measures for a especially shall be brought into line with "Our Leader is too wise and too faith- Labour Government, nationalisation and British policy. Such things are easier said ful to adopt either of these suicidal courses. democratic control of the land, mines and than done, even when they are worth doing. The The Daily Express says that Woolwich is Miners. Labour Party were to attempt to coerce France impossible. Were it possible, and adopted, ordinary Member of Parliament. be the better part of valour when it essays tion of ideas, and be equally treacherous and with unemployment and the European chaos. ception of internationalism.

MR. MUSSOLINI has dissolved the Italian Parliament. He wishes to be a democrat Prime Minister like those of Democra- other countries. Since his electic White- toral law enables him to nominate a majority of members, should he win only 25 per cent. of the seats uring the Election, his Fascist forces can be rusted to do the rest. They are already on the war path, smashing the printing presses of heir opponents.

THE LIBERAL Manchester Guardian has rongly protested against the rumoured proposal to make Mr. J. H. Thomas Foreign Secretary, and Mr. Tom Shaw Under-Secretary at the Foreign Office, if and when a Labour Government comes in. The Liberal organ urges that Mr. Thomas has neither the experience nor the qualities necessary for the post: it observes that it yould be necessary for Mr. Thomas to egotiate with the Ministers of other countries. loubtless, the blood of those persons is conidered bluer than that of Mr. Thomas. It is narkable, however, that the Guardian hould prefer, as it says, to confide the oreign Office to Mr. Ponsonby, Mr. Roden Buxton, or Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, than to Thomas and Mr. Shaw. Messrs. Pononby and Buxton are, of course, newly come om the Liberal fold. Nevertheless, this is a poor recompense to Messrs. Thomas and Shaw for joining the Guardian in its support of the various Governments that ran the late War. It is also a poor complement to Messrs. Ponsonby, Buxton and MacDonald to aggest that their pacifism is so weakly and heir foreign policy is such that a Liberal rgan should prefer them.

ment. Mr. Das is the Leader Hopes and of the Non-Co-operators who approve of taking part in the Elections to the British-made gislative bodies. Mr. Das (like Mr. Mac-Donald, if he takes Office), would have been It is true Mr. Das had a Parliamentary majority, but the British Government has the right to refuse legislation passed by the elected representatives of India, and also to impose Labour Party. decrees of its own. Mr. Das would either confidence of the Indian people. o-operative Movement can only advance the working class. ently of the British legislative bodies.

The Irish Sinn Feiners learnt the lesson of perous Capitalism. that it will force all the Govern- struggle with Capitalism.

> agreement under which they are working means that they intend to use he Labour victories at the polls and the expected Labour Government to secure a higher subsistence level for themselves.

The miners' effort touches the root question economic value to the working class. The success or failure of the miners' effort will do much to determine the degree of popularity which Parliamentary Labourism can maintain amongst the workers.

their leaders' fear of jeopardising the success

THE NON-CO-OPERATORS having of the Labour Party at the next election; in secured a majority in Bengal, Lord Lytton has a settlement like that of the agricultural called Mr. Das to form a Govern- labourers to keep wages at the existing level is arranged by the leaders of the Labour Party; then the spell of the Labour Party will be largely broken.

The Labour Party is essentially a Trade Union party; a party not to abolish capitalism and the wage system, but to secure high wages and short hours. If it fails, as we able to do very little. He has declined the offer. believe it must, to secure high wages and short hours, not merely for a small section, but for the mass of workers, the ideals of the workers will speedily advance beyond the

The Labour Party would gain, for a time, have had to admit his efforts abortive, or fall great popularity were it able, through a comn with the views of the British administration, bination of circumstances, which must inin which case he would at once have lost the clude a great trade revival in this country, to assist the Trade Unions to secure a substan-Eventually, it will be proved that the Non- tially higher standard of life for the British dependence of India by working indepen. Even in that event, the ideals of the people could not stop short at the wagedom of pros-hostility. This policy might include the Brailsford adds: "The danger before us leaps Party would have a difficult task, even had it a mindependence when their representatives The miners' wage struggle, which is only majority behind it. The Labour refused to take their seats at Westminster. one of the industrial upheavals which will work for the unemployed, reform in the old- which have already appeared in Labour Foreign Party has adopted the position The workers will eventually learn it in their develop in the early future, is one of the rocks on which the fortunes of the Parliamentary Labour Party will be riven.

FROM OUR BOOKSHOP.
CHARLOTTE PERKINS GILMAN:
Moving the Mountain	6/-
What Diantha Did	6/-
The Man-Made World	6/-
The Yellow Wall-paper	2/6
Human Work	5/-
In This Our World	6/6
The Home	5/-
Women and Economics	7/6
Concerning Children	6/6
OLIVE SCHREINER:
Woman and Labour	4/6
Woman and War
Dream Life and Real Life	1/-
Dreams	2/-

	,
The Sunlight Lay Across My Bed	6d
Trooper Peter Halkett
Story of an African Farm
G. Bernard Shaw:	107
The Miraculous Revenge	1/
Socialism for Millionaires	1/
Plays Pleasant
Plays Unpleasant	1000
Cashel Byron's Profession	2/
WILLIAM MORRIS:	0.1
Useful Work and Useless Toil	2d
Monopoly	2d
News from Nowhere	3/6
Early Romances
The Life and Death of Jason	6/
L. A. MOTLER:	2/6
Poems	1/-
The Revolution To-morrow	2d.
SYLVIA PANKHURST:
Housing and the Workers' Revolution	1d.
Soviet Russia as I Saw It	1/
Writ on Cold Slate (Prison Poems)	1/-
The Birth Rate	1d.
The Schooling of the Future	1d.
Lloyd George Takes the Mask Off	1½d.
Tactics for Communists (readly shortly).
S. PANKHURST, P. LYNCH, and
M. O'CALLAGHAN:
Rebel Ireland	2d.
A. Pannekoek: Marxism and Darwinism	0.1
EMILE ZOLA:	8d.
Attack on the Mill	1/-
The Fortune of the Rougons	5/-
Abbe Mouret's Transgression	5/-
The Conquest of Plassans	5/-
The Joy of Life	5/-
His Masterpiece	5/-
Germinal: Master and Man	5/-
Dram-shop	5/-
The Dream	6/-
The Fat and the Thin	5/-
Money	5/-
The Downfall 5/-
Doctor Pascal 5/-	9d.
Lourdes	186
Rome	5/-

Lessons for Young Proletarians

GEORGE STEPHENSON.—VI.

The Killingworth colliery and the Stockton and Darlington railways were the first big landmarks in the progress of the locomotive. The next was the Manchester-Liverpool railway over Chat Moss, a tremendous under-

In 1821 Joseph Sanders formed a committee of Liverpool men to consider this project. the cost.

violence. They were stoned, colliers threatened exhaust the supply altogether. the railway would pass, regarded it as a trial development in the nineteenth century. nuisance. They sent their tenants and em- The railway company desired to secure the Queen's Bench Prison as a debtor.

The Liverpool committee had by this time taking into the hands of Stephenson. raised £300,000 for constructing the railway, The first task was to find means to lay a proved wholly inadequate.

manager of the Duke's canal property, even also to the feet of his plough horses. Lordship was interested, and calling on land- formed to assist in draining. owners to oppose the projected railway, and to Great difficulty was experienced in forming by them. of the railway company might be detected, and thousand cubic yards of moss, as dry as it document, believed the surveyors had permis- of the Moss and emptied into the bog where after costing £32,000. Committees of the line, declaring that the poisoned air of the loco- were disappointed and alarmed by the cost and motives would kill the birds in the air and delay, and discussed abandoning the project; render the preservation of game impossible; but Stephenson persevered, and finally the emthat houses would be burned; that horses would bankment began to rise above the surface, and become extinct, and oats and hay would there- success was assured. fore be unsaleable; that the railway would be The line over the Moss cost £28,000. It dangerous to travel upon, and that the boilers proved the cheapest part of the railway and land. of the engines would burst; and locomotives the easiest to run upon. miscarry at sight of the trains.

Committee asked whether he was a foreigner. attempted up to that time.

if Stephenson expressed his opinion that the points of danger, designed the bridges and that his attack on Stephenson should be erased hour the Bill would be defeated. They and planned every section of the line. He had besought him to keep his estimate down to 10 only a few pupils, learning their business from miles an hour, and even argued that the usual him, to assist him with the draughtsmanship. speed would be only four or five.

William James, a surveyor of West Bromwich, Session, employing a firm of engineers and sur- Edward Pease was dissatisfied, and wished to who had already laid down some colliery rail- veyors of the highest repute. They also suc- retire from it, but Stephenson had not the of gambling in railway stocks, the aristocracy (1) for Cooks, etc., (2) for Waiters, etc. ways, offered to survey the land at his own ceeded in conciliating the Marquis of Stafford, money to buy him out. Robert, on returning. expense, but his means did not suffice, and the largest shareholder in the Duke of Bridge- succeeded in putting the factory on to a better Sanders and others gave him £300 towards water's canal, by offering him a thousand footing. shares in the railway company.

The opposition which the landowners had The Hon. Edward Stanley (afterwards Earl shown to the Stockton-Darlington railway was of Derby and Prime Minister) and Sir Isaac as nothing to that encountered by the sur- Coffin opposed the Bill with all the old arguveyors of the Manchester-Liverpool line. ments, adding that it would result in increasing Organised mobs met them with personal the price of iron by 100 per cent. and perhaps to hurl them down the coal pits, farm workers Lords Wilton and Derby continued the oppoattacked them with pitchforks, the theodolite sition in the House of Lords, but the Bill (measuring instrument) was smashed to pieces. passed, nevertheless, having cost the promoters Lords Derby and Wilton, through whose lands £27,000. So vested interests retarded indus-ployees to the attack. The canal owners, services both of Stephenson and of George especially the Duke of Bridgewater, also helped Rennie, whose firm had been engaged to get to organise the opposition. As a result, the the Bill through Parliament on the second survey was practically worthless, and though occasion. Rennie did not fall in with the James got some further financial help from arrangement: he proposed to make six visits Sanders and his friends, he was overcome by a year to the railway, and to appoint a resident pecuniary troubles and incarcerated in the engineer of his own choosing. The company declined this offer, and gave the whole under-but they had lost confidence in Mr. James, and railway over Chat Moss, an immense peat bog leaving him to languish in prison, they about twelve square miles in extent. It is a appointed George Stephenson to undertake the mass of spongy vegetable pulp of bog mosses, building of the railway. It was thought that one year's growth of which rises over the other, this would be done for £400,000, a sum which the older growths remaining in partial preservation through the antiseptic properties Stephenson met with the same troubles as peculiar to peat. James, when surveying the had beset James. Lords Derby, Wilton, and Moss, had been nearly submerged, like many Sefton, and the Duke of Bridgewater organised other people; but a farmer, named Roscoe, of Peterloo, and brickbats were thrown at him. their tenants and employees to drive off the had learnt to cultivate the Moss by wearing surveyors, as before. Mr. Bradshaw, the large wooden pattens and fitting such patterns went so far as to fire guns across the land to Stephenson adopted the same principle in prevent Stephenson's party from advancing. building his railway. Drains were cut in the Stephenson and his men met their assailants Moss, and on the land between them were ning it carried nearly half a million passengers both in hand to hand encounters and by spread branches of trees and hedge cuttings, a year. strategy. Part of the land was surveyed by and in the softest places hurdles interwoven moonlight, the keepers having been drawn off with heather. Over these gravel was sprinkled. in pursuit of pretended poachers who were On this floating bed the sleepers, chairs, and firing guns some distance away. Lord Sefton's rails were laid in the ordinary manner. The farmers were deceived by the production of a sleepers were packed with cakes of dry turf or printed resolution, purporting to come from bundles of heath. 'An underground sewer of the Old Quay Canal Company, in which his wooden tar barrels covered with clay was afford every facility for a survey of the in- an embankment on the edge of the bog at the tended line, in order that errors in the scheme Manchester end. Six hundred and seventy for some years. In the case of the Londonits defeat ensured. The farmers, seeing this could be obtained, were taken from the edges Commons, but was thrown out by the Lords of his ideas on the rights of Labour and the I claim these five Unions are of no use to the sion of the landowners, and permitted them to the embankment was to be formed. The stuff House of Lords were at that time open to all proceed. continued to sink to the bottom for weeks, and peers. The measure was re-introduced, and Meanwhile the press was active against the no visible progress was made. The directors cost £72,868 to get through Parliament in the

would be too heavy to move. Moreover, cows On other parts of the railway no fewer than would cease to give milk, and women would 63 bridges had to be constructed. At Mount Olive red sandstone rock had to be cut through The Liverpool-Manchester Railway Bill went for a space of two miles, and in some places into Committee of the House of Commons in more than a hundred feet deep. Labourers to his interests. In the course of his speech March, 1825. George Stephenson was called worked on the line both day and night, work- he accused George Stephenson of dishonesty. to give evidence. His Northumbrian dialect ing in the dark by torch and fire light. This Stephenson warmly defended himself, and occasioned surprise, and one member of the was the greatest undertaking of the kind ever

The promoters of the Bill were afraid that Stephenson worked with the men at the vice there. Lord Wharncliffe ended by asking locomotive could go at a speed of 20 miles an working plant, superintended the manufacture from the records.

His son, Robert, who had helped him in the The opponents of the Bill denounced the use Stockton-Darlington railway, was abroad, at of locomotives and contended that it was im- Bogota, the capital of New Granada, whither possible to lay a railway over Chat Moss un- he had gone to take charge of the operations less a solid bank of earth were built up from of the Columbia Mining Association. He had the bottom at an impossible cost. They de- accepted this position largely with a view to clared Stephenson to be an ignoramus. All the improving his health, but as a matter of fact civil engineers were opposed to his views. The the climate there seems to have injured his Bill, which was for power to build a railway, constitution. The engineering factory at Newand said nothing of locomotives, was rejected. castle had suffered whilst George was occupied The promoters re-introduced it in the ensuing with the railway and Robert was abroad.

It was now required for building the locomotives for the Liverpool-Manchester railway: but this was not yet realised by the directors. who had not made up their minds what mode of traction should be employed. After much discussion they permitted Stephenson to construct an engine for experimental purposes, which was used for transporting material and removing refuse during the making of the railway. Still the question of permanent traction on the line was undecided, and the most noted engineers of the day still reported against the locomotive. Finally the directors agreed to offer a prize of £500 for the best locomotive which would fulfil certain tests on a given day. For this competition George and Robert Stephenson built an engine which contained several inventions, its most important features being the steam blast and the multi-tubular boiler. It was called "The Rocket." It easily outstripped its competitors in every way, and attained a speed of 29 miles an hour, which was regarded as a great miracle in those days. On September 15th, 1830, the railway was opened, eight locomotives, constructed at the Stephenson works, being placed on the line.

The Duke of Wellington, then Prime Minister, rode in the "Northumbrian" train driven by George Stephenson from Liverpool. When the Duke reached Manchester he was met by placards about the franchise massacre The Duke did not alight from the train, but returned to the safer atmosphere of Liverpool.

The railway soon carried an average of 1,200 foresec. passengers daily, and five years after the open-devising improvements in the railway and the trains, signals, safety appliances, and so on.

In the meantime, both the Stephensons were active in the construction of new lines which began to spring up rapidly. Between 1839 and 1840, 321 miles of railway (exclusive of the London-Birmingham railway) were constructed

The landowners continued their opposition Birmingham railway the Bill passed the following session-a striking evidence of the evils of the Parliamentary system. Jobbery and railway Bills went hand in hand. The Bill was carried only because the landowners were "conciliated" by paying them three times what had been estimated as the cost of the Lord Wharncliffe, of Killingworth Colliery, was interested in the Manchester-Sheffield line, which passed through his colliery; but he rose in Parliament to oppose the Manchester-Leeds line because he thought it might be prejudicial pointed out that he had greatly improved Lord Wharncliffe's collieries during his period of ser-

Opposition to the railways vanished when it A REVIEW OF THE STRUGGLES OF became clear that they brought prosperity to the landlords, and new markets to farmers, and increased business to coaches in conveying passengers to and from the trains; whilst even the canals did more carrying business because of the general development which took place.

The landlords who had driven the railways rom their lines perceived that higher rents could be had for farms near stations, and began to petition for branch lines and sidings.

The Stock Exchange had at first looked askance at railway projects, and respectable and all sorts of people not usually concerned in shares joining in the game.

and railway Bills went through unopposed. In been united to fight the Boss. 1845, powers were granted to construct 2.883 Even the excitement of this Capitalist war railways was that they should not come any West End nearer to him than to run through his bedroom Trade Unions, old style, are no use to the Scarlet Plague, 18.6d.; The Strength of the with the bed-posts for a station. The Marquis worker. of Bristol said that rather than be defeated in Strikes, old style, are of no use to workers. House of Pride, 18. 6d.; Love and Life, 18. 6d.; undertaking, the Norwich-London line might make a tunnel beneath his drawing-room. workers.

Railway prospectuses were now headed by Members of Parliament. George Hudson, known as the Railway King, paternal guidance by the Congress.

was one of those who exploited the railway As Trade Unions can only function in sobogus dividends, and bringing about a crash use to workers in "bad" times. which ushered in a slump in railway stock.

were only animated by the desire of gain.

In the next years Stephenson was busy joined together in what was called a "butty ing Worker. gang" of ten or twelve members, making con- All these five Unions have highly paid the character of the land. They often worked to help to pay. boots, and leather belts.

the reputation of being kind-hearted, but some million pounds. prerogatives of capital would be looked on with Catering Worker.

Government that Sir Joshua Walmsley's com- mittee. any should be given land and be allowed to The members themselves should send a dele- £164 19s. 81/2d. ed and clothe several thousand men from the recall the delegate. anish convict prisons—the convicts, who The local Workers' Council should elect a were not regarded as having any rights at all, delegate to County or Borough Council, and of George Stephenson.

at Capitalism does not develop, but, on the Union for the whole of the Working Class. ntrary, exploits, industrial progress.

THE END.

THE CATERING TRADE WORKER. VIII.—UNIONS OF THE PAST— ORGANISATIONS OF THE FUTURE.

We have described the life in general of several grades of Catering Workers. We now come to their attempts at organisation.

Some twenty years ago the conditions of the workers of the Catering Trade were as bad as they are to-day. Paul Vogel spent his life in endeavouring to make up these workers. About 1911, a few Revolutionaries, French, brokers had been reluctant to do business in German, Italian, etc., met and formed the railway shares; but about 1844 began a period French Cooks' Syndicate in two sections-

1914 saw the "Great War," and the breakup of this Union. German comrades were in-Members of Parliament who had obstructed terned, French and others were conscripted to the growth of railways also caught the mania, fight each other, where previously they had miles of new railways at a cost of £44,000,000. could not altogether subdue the discontent in In 1846, powers were asked to raise the Catering Trade, so, about 1917, there was £389,000,000 to construct further lines; 272 formed in the City (the patriotic stunt still Mutiny of the Elsinore, 2s.; Revolution, 2s.; railways Acts were passed in 1846. The Rev. holding sway) the British and Allied Catering The Human Drift, 2s.; John Barleycorn, 2s.; F. Litchfield, at a meeting in Banbury, said Union. About this time the Workers' Union The Jacket, 2s.; The Red One, 2s.; War of the that the only limit he set to his approval of had formed a Catering Union Section in the Classes, 28.; The Night Born, 18.6d.; When Talking with employers is of no use to

The Trade Union Congress proposed that 10. strings of peers, landed proprietors, and five existing Unions should enrol the Catering Workers, each to have a given area, with mania, buying up numbers of railways, paying called "prosperous" times, they can be of no

In all these five Unions the officials boss The railway engineers were forced to depend the members, the officials talk and sign agreeon the operations of the money-makers and on ments with bosses, the officials call a strike-the self-seeking manœuvres of Members of that is to say, the worker leaves the job at Parliament. They spent weeks at a time in the order of the officials; the officials give the the crowded, low-roofed Committee rooms of employer notice of strike; the members of the the old Houses of Parliament, contending for Catering Sections of these five Unions have to opportunity to develop their work, with men accept the existing rules, benefits, and conwho possessed no technical knowledge and stitution, which may differ in each of the five

As to the railway contractors, many of them. One can imagine the confusion, jealousy, went bankrupt because the work proved much etc., if, say, the Catering Workers in one greater and more costly than anyone could Union want to make it their own Union, and another of the five Unions, by the small mem-The railway navvies, who sprang up to do bership of Catering Workers, will not support e actual work of making railroads, travelled No. 1 Union. Appeal is made to Congress, about the country from work to work. They and they are to decide the action of the Cater-tracts to cut out so much "dirt," according to officials which the Catering Worker will have from 12 to 16 hours at a stretch. They wore As these five Unions have failed to maintain white felt hats, velveteen coats with square the standard of living of their already existing HEAD READING, by an expert phrenologist. tails, scarlet plush waistcoats with small black members, how is it possible for them to better spots, corduroy knee breeches, high laced the position of the Catering Worker? Even H. Morrison and other Trade Union officials Unlike most inventors, the Stephensons have admitted that wages have been taken from WANTED, a copy of "Theatre Craft" (No. 3). became wealthy men. George Stephenson had the workers to the amount of six hundred

He formulated a proposal to the Spanish workers should themselves form a Shop Com- 2/-; H. Taylor, 3/-; E. T. Leonard and shop-cut timber free to construct a railway, and gate to a local Workers' Council, with their should bring in their goods duty free. In instructions. If one delegate fails to fulfil turn for these concessions the company should those instructions, the Shop Committee should being forced to work for no other recompense so on, until we get a National Council of an bare food and clothes. The Spanish Workers' Committees, built up from the Government made no answer to the proposal. bottom—the workers—owning and controlling Leopold, King of the Belgians, was much their own organisation, deciding their own impressed by the importance of railways, and actions, with no highly paid officials, no decided that the railways of Belgium should be reliance on Parliament, no Labour M.P.'s, no WORKERS' OPPOSITION un by the State. He procured the assistance one thousand and one Unions with thousands of officers to keep up. thousands of officials to The history of the locomotive clearly shows maintain in huge salaries—but one industrial

One goal should be in view: the complete destruction of the Capitalist System and the substitution of the Workers' Soviet Republic. THAT IS OUR ONLY HOPE.

Our Bookshop.

Peter Kropotkin.—Conquest of Bread, 25.; Fields, Factories and Workshops, 2s.; Mutual Aid, 28.; War, 2d.; Modern Science and Anarchism, 18.; Appeal to the Young, 2d.; Expropriation, 2d.; The Wage System, 2d.

De Leon.-As to Politics, 9d.; Two Pages from Roman History, 4d.; Socialism v. Anarchism, 3d.; Who Pays the Taxes? 2d.; Burning Question of Trade Unionism, 2d.; Marx on Mallock, 2d.; Preamble of the Industrial Workers of the World, 2d.; What Means This Strike? 2d.; Berger's Hit and Misses, 9d.; Fifteen Ques-

Wilhelm Liebknecht.-No Compromise, 8d.; Memoirs of Marx, 3s. 6d.

E. Lipson.—Economic History, Middle Ages,

Lissagarry.—History of the Commune, 1871 (translated by Eleanor Marx Aveling), 4s. 6d. Jack London.-Michael, Brother of Jerry, 28.; God Laughs, 18. 6d.; The Road, 18. 6d.; The Strong, 1s. 6d.; Before Adam, 1s. 6d.; The Children of the Frost, 1s. 6d.; The Valley of the Moon, 28. and 6d.; He Renounced the Faith, Karl Marx .- Capital (Vols. I., II., III.), each 128. 6d.; The Paris Commune, 2s. 6d.; Value, Price and Profit, 6d.; Wage Labour and Capital, 3d.; The Gotha Programme, 3d.; Critique of Political Economy, 6s. 6d.; Poverty of Philosophy, 6s. 6d.; Revolution and Counter-Revolution, 2s. 6d.; Civil War in France, 3s.; Civil War in France (Kerr's edition), 1s. 6d.

Marx and Engels.-Communist Manifesto, 3d. Olive Schreiner.-Woman and Labour, 4s. 6d.; Woman and War, 6d.; Dream Life and Real Life, 18.; Dreams, 28.; The Sunlight Lay Across My Bed, 6d.; Trooper Peter Halkett, 1s.; Story of an African Farm, 3s. 6d.

GERMS OF MIND IN PLANTS. By R. H. France. The author shows us the dramatic experience of plants; how they feed the insects honey to reward them for carrying the fructifying pollen; how they know the law of gravity; how they bait and trap their prey. Still more, Mr. France shows us how the sense organs communicate news to the whole plant, and proves that plants possess a high degree of consciousness, and even the germs of mind.

Proceeds to "Workers' Dreadnought." -Apply, H., Box 20.

"DREADNOUGHT" £1,000 FUND. S. Llewellyn, 6d.; G. P. Bailey, 3/-; G. horror by the mildest Labourists in these days. In every hotel, restaurant, club, etc., the Brown, 3/-; L. Goldstein, 5/-; T. Vermont, mates, 5/-. Total for week, £1 1s. 6d. Total, PROLETCULT.

A monthly magazine for boys and girls, edited by TOM ANDERSON and published by the Proletarian Bookstall. 39, Shuttle Street,

IN RUSSIA,

By Alexandra Kollontay.

OUR BOOKSHOP.

A Merry Christmas to you, fellow worker, and may the New Year bring you good fortune.

A Merry Christmas.

It will bring changes, fellow worker; it will bring struggles. You must be up and doing in the proletarian cause.

The minds of the workers are on the march. They are on the eve of giving the Labour Party a chance.

When they have seen the failure of that, they will move on further.

The miners have turned a practical gaze on the situation.

"Labour victories at the polls," they say, "are all very well; but what about our standard of living? What about more comfort and less anxiety at home?"

"It is not Cabinet Ministers' salaries for our officials we are concerned about," they say; "we are out to drive the wolf of poverty from the workers' door."

So they have given notice to fight for a better standard of living, and they say to the Parliamentary Labour Party:-

"Show what you are made of." The Parliamentary Labour Party can do nothing substantial to help the miners.

The miners, and all of us, fellow workers, will presently see, very clearly, that we must learn to help ourselves.

The workers are the producers. They produce their own meagre subsistence and the luxuries of the employing classes.

The workers must learn to use direct action. They must manage their industries; they must manage them so that there shall be plenty for all.

They must form their Workshop Councils.

They must set up their Soviets.

We must be up and doing, fellow workers; getting the Workshop Councils into being, spreading the truth amongst our mates.

No more sloth! No more pessimism! No more apathy!

Educate! Agitate! Organise! Do not shirk the effort and the struggle. Consider this the time of your life, fellow worker.

History is in the making; forward and help to make it!

The Searchlight.

THE "ONE BIG UNION BULLETIN"

(Canada's Foremost Labour Paper). The One Big Union seeks to organise the workers on class lines. Read about it. Eugene Sue's marvellous story: "The Mysteries of the People," or "History of a Proletarian Family Across the Ages," now running in serial form.

10/- per year; 5/- six months. Plebs Buildings, 54 Adelaide Street, Winnipeg, Canada.

> THE "GERMINAL CIRCLE." 152, Fleet Street, London, E.C.4.

The "Germinal Circle" exists to assist in promoting the expression of modern ideas and aspirations through the medium of the arts. To the Secretary, "Germinal Circle."

wish to join the "Germinal Circle," and enclose one shilling to cover the annual subscription.

Name

"THE WORKERS' FRIEND," Monthly, 2d.

Monthly, 2d. I am sorry that I only see you monthly. I hope you will wake me up and then I shall be with you-weekly. - I was not tired, but you made me tired. Your sufferings which I could not bear to see woke me and I shall go hand in hand with you till we shall be free from slavery and starvation.

30. Shuttie Dermot.

SUBSCRIBERS.

A certain number of subscribers have fallen into arrears with their payments, and as we need funds very urgently we urge them to pay up at once. Their papers are marked each week with the date when their subscription expired. Rates: 1s. 72d. three months, 3s. 3d. six months, 6s. 6d. twelve months.

Some of our is. a week subscribers, too, need a reminder that their subscriptions are due.

Steam and General Machine Repairs, seeks employment or will undertake auto or mechanical repairs; 17 years experience States and Canada; 2 years proprietor of machine-equipped garage; estimates on reconditioning. -Box 76.

BOOKS IN ESPERANTO.
Melodioj de l'Nokto. Julius Kriss	9d.
Mondo kaj Koro (Kalocsay)	5d.
Omar Khayyam. (Pollen). (English	010
and Esperanto)	3/6
Parnaso de Popoloj (Grabowski)	2/-
Rolandkanto, D-ro Noel	2/3
Sinjoro Tadeo (Mickiewicz). A. Gra-
Trafendita Turo (poezio) (Cart)	2d.
bowski)	5/- Espero, La (Zamenhof). de Menil. With piano accompaniment; for baritone or mezzo-soprano	6d.
Espero, La (M) (Zamenhof), F. de Menil.
Postcards each ½d., doz.	6d.
* Four Songs for Children (M) (Applebaum), Mabon	1/-
Haleluja Hero (kvarvoĉa) (J. Edwards),
Handel	1d.
Kvarvoĉaj Kantoj (ses kantoj), Trickett	6/6
Mia Esperantistino (M) (Page), Moonie	3d.
	STEP I
- 1 1 1 D 1 1 F	4 (1)

From "Dreadnought" Bookshop, 152, Fleet St., E.C. 4.

The Irish Nation Read _

Weekly Review of Irish Republican Opinion

On Sale Saturdays

RATIONAL LIVING.

A radical, independent magazine for the workers, devoted to the teaching of rational methods of living in present society, always emphasising the socialeconomical-industrial background of wrong living. Stands for prevention of disease, for conservation of health, for drugless healing, and against all swindles in the healing professions. Special price for the readers of the "Workers' Dreadnought," 1.50 dol. (7/6 for 12 numbers). Our famous book, "The Child and the Home," by Dr. B. Liber, on the radical upbringing of children, special price for the readers of the "Workers' Dreadnought," 1.50 dol. (7/6). Address: Rational Living, 61 Hamilton Place, New

THE ANCIENT LOWLY: A History of the Ancient Working People from the Earliest Knewn Period to the Adoption of Christianity by Constantine. By C. Osborne Ward. Two vols., 12s. 6d. each.

ANCIENT SOCIETY; or, Researches in the Lines of Human Progress; from Savagery through Barbarism to Civilisation. By Lewis H. Morgan. 7s. 6d.

THE ART OF LECTURING. By Arthur M. Lewis. A condensed manual of practical information for those who wish to fit themselves to become public speakers, particularly on economics and social science. 3s.

CAPITAL TO-DAY. By Herman Cahn. A study of recent economic development. 8s. 6d.

THE CHANGING ORDER. By Oscar Lovell Triggs, Ph.D. A study of Democracy, of the rising tide of revolution, and of the ways in which the future self-rule of the working class will react upon literature and art, upon philosophy and religion, upon work and play. 5s. 6d.

THE END OF THE WORLD. By Dr. M. Wilhelm Meyer. Tells us of the dramas of sun, world and moon disasters in the heavens, how worlds explode, collide and are destroyed; what causes earthquakes, volcanoes, mountains. We learn that all planets grow cold or are destroyed, sometimes after living tens of millions of centuries, and Dr. Meyer assures us that our own earth is in the bloom of youth, likely to continue to exist for unknown ages, while our moon is now in its decrepit old age. Illustrated. 3s.

Germinal

ASK for No 2.

at your Newsagent. A Complete play by Toller. Stories by Marsden, Gorky, Grant, and others.

32 Pages—Sixpence

COMMUNIST WORKERS' MOVEMENT, meetings to explain the policy of this movement, can be arranged on application to the Secretary, 152, Fleet Street, E.C.4.

SYLVIA PANKHURST is booking provincial lecturing engagements.—Apply for dates to "Dreadnought" office, 152, Fleet Street.

FOR SALE. - Engineer's Taper Guage, £1; Radius Guage, 7s. 6d. (Starrett's). Proceeds for "Dreadnought" Fund.

WANTED .- Second-hand copies: "How the War Came," by Lord Loreburn; "Economics for the General Reader" (Clay); "Brass Check" (Upton Sinclair), cheap edition; "Ancient Lowly" (Osborn Ward).

YOUR SUBSCRIPTION

A blue mark in this space indicates that your subscription is now due.

The high cost of production of the paper necessitates prompt payment.

Published by E. Sylvia Pankhurst, at 152, Fleet Street, London, E.C. 4, and printed by the Agenda Press, Ltd. (T.U.), at 10, Wine Office Court, London, E.C. 4.