Burns Confesses He Spied on Oil Graft Jury

IN DEFENSE, PUTS UP AN AFFIDAVIT; PROMPTLY DENIED

Jurors Terrorized By Queer Phone Calls

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 7.—Wm. J. Burns and his son, W. Sherman Burns, of the Burns Detective Agency, admitted today before the grand jury and to the press that they were hired by H. Mason Day, vice president of the Sinclair Exploration Co., to put detectives on the trail of the jury sitting in the trial of Sinclair and former Secretary of the Interior Albert B. Fall for conspiracy to defraud in the matter of the Teapot Dome oil lands lease.

Wm. J. Burns tried a counter attack in the case which has been involving him deeper and deeper in the charges now made that the defense, with the assistance of the Burns operatives, wrongfully influenced the jurors in the big graft trial. He presented an affidavit from one of his detectives, a certain Wm. Long, that the government prosecution itself was trying to influence the jury, out of court. The trial judge and the man accused by Burns both deny important parts of the affidavit of the Burns man.

Burns Hiring Swears. Wm. J. Burns, on appearing before the grand jury investigating the jury fixing in the Fall-Sinclair "mistrial," announced he had presented Justice Siddons, the trial judge, with a complaint and affidavit charging a government official with having approached a member of the jury while the case was in trial.

Justice Siddons denied that he had received the Burns complaint.

Burns' complaint was in the form of an affidavit sworn to by Wm. Long, one of the Burns' operatives. It set forth that Norman Glasscock, one of the jurors, was observed to have been approached at a local flying field by a car which investigation showed to have been registered in the name of H. R. Lamb, an assistant to the attorney general.

Affidavit Denied. The Burns affidavits were seriously damaged by Lamb, who immediately came before the grand jury. Lamb said he had never seen Glasscock in his life, had never been to the Potomac flying field or on Eighth street where Glasscock lives.

On Oct. 22nd, the day that the operative reported, Lamb's automobile was in the shop being repaired. He got it in the early afternoon and went to play golf.

"I never had anything to do with this case," said Lamb. "It is true I own an Oakland roadster which I keep in a garage in the rear of my house. There have been times when the garage door was unlocked, but to the best of my knowledge no one has ever taken it except when it has been in the care of a very competent mechanic."

Fall's Man Hunted Him.

"I have never had any connection with any juror in this trial," Lamb said he didn't know the assistant to the attorney general, Dan

Anti-Imperialist League Greet Filipino Nationalists; Urges Reliance on Masses

Greeting him as the leader of "a home country of American imperialism,"

"Our league, which has national sections in eleven countries of Latin America as well as in the United States, wholeheartedly supports the demands of the Filipino people for liberation from American domination. We believe that all talk of 'further progress' in the Philippine Islands is a fraud and a sham so long as the twelve millions of Filipinos remain under foreign yoke. Imperialism does not mean progress, but in fact blocks the way to progress.

"President Coolidge belongs to the Party which appointed Governor General Leonard Wood, who systematically made himself the instrument for defeating all Filipino Nationalist aspirations, subjecting the Filipinos completely to Wall Street and Washington. General Wood earned the enmity of all.

MASS GATHERING CHEERS RELEASE OF CLOAKMAKERS

Cooper Union Filled By Left Wing

A mass celebration was held at Cooper Union last night to celebrate the release from Hart's Island of three members of the Cloakmakers' Union, victims of the right wing administration's policy of employer-labor collaboration, Harry Friedman, M. Borenstein and S. Grossman.

In addition to the prisoners J. Borochowitz, Ludwig Landy, manager of the Joint Defense Committee of the Cloakmakers' and Furriers' Union, Slonim, writer for the Day, Salomon and Louis Hyman, manager of the Cloakmakers' Joint Board, spoke.

Flowers and Applause. Flowers were sent by the Cutters' Welfare League and the workers of a number of shops. Enthusiasm marked the greeting of the released prisoners. The speakers were given prolonged applause.

"Every attempt to release the prisoners was met by opposition from the Sigman clique of the right wing international union administration," Borochowitz said. "Let the release of our

DISEASE, HUNGER LOOM IN CITIES OF FLOOD REGION

MONTEPELIER, Vt., Nov. 7.—Pestilence and fire have been added to the prospect of starvation for thousands by one of the most devastating floods in the history of New England. With the toll of the dead reaching at least 125, and with 50,000 persons homeless, the danger of typhus epidemic caused by the drinking of impure surface water is facing the thousands who were driven from their homes by the catastrophe.

With almost total suspension of industry in those sections near the river bank, thousands of workers face the prospect of unemployment for an indefinite period. Over 2,000 homes in this state alone are estimated to have been seriously damaged by the flood.

CENTRALIA BOYS GREET DEFENSE'S THIRD CONGRESS

I. W. W. Victims of the Legion Write Regards

Greetings and good wishes for success, is contained in the message sent the third conference of International Labor Defense which will be held in New York City on November 12 and 13, by Bert Bland, one of the defendants in the famous Centralia case, who is now serving a long term in prison with a number of his fellow-workers. They were placed there by the lumber trust and the American Legion.

"There is no one who would like more than I to see the membership of the International Labor Defense at a hundred and ten millions," writes Bland. "There is a case now which seriously needs and has always needed the attention of the International Labor Defense. That is the Centralia case. A more dirty piece of work has never been done by the capitalist system. The victims in this case were given sentences, not like many other class war prisoners, but ranging from 25 to 40 years. In the Centralia case, seven of the jurors have made affidavits that they rendered their verdict through fear of violence to themselves, and that their verdict should have been not guilty."

John Lamb Writes.

Bland's greeting is echoed by one of his fellow-prisoners in the Centralia case, John Lamb. "We are hoping," writes Lamb, "that the third annual conference of International Labor Defense is a perfect success. All labor organizations should be present."

Relief for Colorado Strikers To Be Urged

The story of the Colorado miners' strike will be told and support for the strikers will be asked at a second mass meeting called for next Saturday at 4 p. m., at the Labor Temple, Second Ave. and 14th St. The meeting is called by the New York Colorado Miners' Relief Committee.

Speakers will include Richard Brazier, of the Industrial Workers of the World; a representative of the Workers' (Communist) Party; Forest Bailey, of the American Civil Liberties Union; the Rev. Donald Tippett, of the Church of All Nations, and Edmund Chaffee, manager of the Labor Temple. Rev. Tippett formerly lived in the zone of the present strike.

A first meeting was held at the Church of All Nations last Saturday night.

OVER MILLION WORKERS MARCH IN MOSCOW ANNIVERSARY PROCESSION

Delegates From All Parts of World Honor Lenin; Celebrations Begins Early in Morning

MOSCOW, Nov. 7.—Women workers, bearing army rifles upon their shoulders, marched alongside the men workers, similarly armed, as a mighty procession of more than 1,000,000 workers and 50,000 Red soldiers and sailors marched through the streets here today to celebrate the tenth anniversary of the Communist revolution which put the Soviets in power.

From dawn to dusk the whole city was a seething mass and

Red Square, beneath the halls of the Kremlin, was a forest of rifle barrels and red banners as Soviet workers and delegates from all parts of the world paid homage to the memory of Lenin and to the memory of the thousands of Bolshevik worker soldiers who were killed in battle.

Recent rains and melting snows turned Red Square into a sea of mud, but this was not allowed to interfere with the parades. Thick fog hung overhead preventing airplane maneuvers.

One group carried a picture of a two-headed dragon, one head labelled "Chamberlain" and the other "Mussolini." Another carried a standard showing Chamberlain and Mussolini being decapitated by the sword of the world revolution.

Still another banner bore prints of two tombstones labelled "Chamberlain" and "Mussolini." One called Sir Austen and Mussolini "enemies of the Soviets" and depicted them as being dragged at the end of a rope pulled by workers.

The procession of the Red soldiers and sailors was preceded by thousands of men and women workers, armed with rifles, and by delegates from trade unions, students and Pioneers.

(Special Cable to DAILY WORKER.)

MOSCOW, Nov. 7.—The celebration member revolution began in Moscow of the tenth anniversary of the November Revolution.

The official celebrations began at nine o'clock in the morning in the Red Square where the platforms were filled to capacity by representatives of foreign sections of the Communist International and members of foreign delegations.

Stages of Revolution.

On the platform on the top of Lenin's mausoleum were representatives of the Communist Party, the trade unions and various Soviet organizations. The Kremlin wall was draped with the red cloth, bearing inscriptions symbolizing the revolution has passed in the last ten years.

Uglanoff, chairman of the Moscow Soviet, opened the meeting in the name of the Moscow Committee of the Communist Party. On behalf of the Central Executive Committee, Kalenin declared:

Kalenin's Speech.

"The toiling masses, all honest citizens of the Soviet Union are celebrating today the ten years of existence of the Soviet system. After long battles and great sacrifices, the working class of the Soviet Union has achieved victory. We are celebrating the jubilee in the midst of our task of socialist construction. MINE GUARDS ATTACK STRIKERS IN BLAIRSTOWN, OHIO; JUDGE UPHOLDS COAL DIGGERS FAMILIES' EVICTION

20 Miners Burned in Hooversville, Pa., Explosion Have Narrow Escape

Union to Fight to Last Ditch Against Pittsburgh Injunctions and Starvation

BLAIRSVILLE, O., Nov. 7.—Striking miners were attacked here today by mine guards following an argument on the picket line.

The situation here has been increasing in tensity since a young miner, John Picetti, was shot by a scab near Rose Valley last week. Ten thousand striking miners followed his body to the cemetery and many floral wreaths were sent by miners' and railwaymen's local unions.

The memory of the steel strike at Yorkville in 1922 when steel company gunmen shot up the town has not tended to ease the situation.

Judge Upholds Miners' Eviction.

EBENSBURG, Pa. (FP).—Judge John E. Evans rejected the plea of James Miller, a coal miner, that the Springfield Coal Corp. be restrained from evicting his family from their home in Nanty-Glo. Miller argued that the lease provided a guaranteed tenure. Many miners are being evicted during the strike.

20 Miners Burned.

(By Federated Press.) HOOVERSVILLE, Pa. (FP).—Twenty miners were burned, one seriously, in the Knickerbocker Coal Co. mine here. The men were on a man trip into the mine when a powder explosion occurred, giving them a narrow escape from death. Stephen Malak, 21, is in Johnstown Hospital, terribly burned about face, chest, legs, arms and hands.

Miners Won't Give Up in Pittsburgh District.

INDIANAPOLIS (FP).—The United Mine Workers of America will fight the anti-union Pittsburgh coal operators to the last ditch. This was the answer of the union to injunction victories won by the coal companies in the Pittsburgh district against striking coal miners. The union's policy in the strike, which is now in its second year, was discussed at a meeting here of union officials. There will be no change in tactics. "It is a question of which side can hold out the longest—the operators against financial loss or the workers against privation," said union leaders.

Barracks have been constructed to care for the miners' families and public buildings have been pressed into service to house the evicted ones.

Lightermen's Strike Off, Workers Return

The skippers of the harbor lighters on strike for a week voted to go back to work yesterday at a meeting held Saturday at their headquarters 210 Court St., Brooklyn.

J. K. Johnson, president of the local, said yesterday he feared an injunction might be issued if the strike continued. He also said that another strike would be called when conditions were more favorable for victory.

Fascisti Plan Death for Labor Leaders in Italy; Workers Party Calls for Protests

Outlining the progress of Mussolini's terrorism, which now threatens the death or life imprisonment of nearly ninety prominent labor and Communist leaders of the Italian workers, the Workers' (Communist) Party of America calls on workers everywhere to demonstrate their solidarity with them.

"Condemn this conspiracy of the fascist government against Italian labor," says the statement. "Demonstrate and protest in front of the Italian embassy and consulates!"

The text of the statement is as follows: Rally to the Defense of the Victims of Italian Fascism.

"Nearly ninety prominent leaders of the Italian Labor and Peasant movement, among them most of the Communist deputies of the Italian parliament, are being put on trial by the Mussolini government on the basis of the exception laws of November 19, 1926. This is an effort to deliver one more blow at the Italian working class and the anti-fascist opposition by crippling and destroying the most militant fighters against the fascist rule of Mussolini. Another Sacco-Vanzetti affair is about to begin. This time it is in fascist Italy.

"Some of the defendants are facing death as a result of this trial. Most of them are facing prison sentences for life under a regime of brutality and torture.

Labor Leader in Danger. "Among those facing the heaviest penalty are Professor Graciani, the most outstanding theoretician of the Italian labor movement and the father of the shop committee movement, which stands in the very center of the present-day struggle against fascism; the popular leader of the peasants, Picelli, one of the most courageous fighters against fascist rule and imperialist war; deputies, scientists and prominent labor leaders like Fabrizio, Maffi, Riboldi, LoSardo, Alfani, Tracini, Ferragni, Scoccimarro, Tagliati,

DARCK ARRESTED AT UNION OFFICE IN STRIKE CASE

Window Cleaners Claim Leader Is Framed

Five members of the industrial squad of the New York police department went into the office of the striking Window Cleaners Protective Union to arrest Secretary Peter Darck on felonious assault charges yesterday morning, according to a report by Harry Feinstein, business agent.

The officers were accompanied by Joseph Katz, business agent of the Affiliated Window Cleaners Union, the dual company union, Feinstein said. Protective Union pickets were at that hour reporting for duty.

Darck Arrested.

"I don't see the man I want here," Katz said to the officers, according to Feinstein. Shortly afterward Katz is said to have added, "I want Darck."

"Is Darck here?" a detective demanded, according to the Protective Union business agent.

Darck is reported to have stepped forward saying, "Here I am."

He was placed under arrest and taken to the Fifth St. station and thence to a magistrate's court for arraignment on the felonious assault charge.

Anthony Jacob, a picket, was arrested on a similar charge.

Darck Not Present.

Katz charges strike-breakers were attacked at Broadway and Spring St. Saturday morning. Officers of the Protective Union say Darck was at his office throughout Saturday forenoon.

Since October 6 about 800 union window cleaners have been on strike in New York for $46 a week and union recognition. Darck was black-jacked by unidentified gangsters on October 14 but no arrests were made.

"The present arrest of Darck is a frame-up attempt to break the morale of our men," Feinstein continued. "The employers have been trying for six months to have Darck removed from union affairs because of his loyalty to the men."

2,000 Philadelphia Workers Cheer Ten Years of Sovietism

(Special to Daily Worker).
 PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 7.—Over 2,000 workers jammed the Labor Institute, 808 Locust St., Sunday to listen to speakers relate the achievements of the Soviet Union during ten years of Bolshevik rule—at one of the most enthusiastic meetings in the history of the Workers Party here.

"Mother" Bloor, William F. Dunne, of The DAILY WORKER, Benjamin, organizer Philadelphia Workers Party, George Papen, and Jack Stachel, national organizer of the Workers Party, were among those who told of the remarkable progress made in the First Workers' Republic. "Mother" Bloor made a collection of $140 at the meeting.

A tableau entitled "Old and New Russia," in which a large number participated preceded the speeches.

State Politicians in Fight With National For Inheritance Tax

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—A campaign to contest invasion of "states' rights" by congress, with particular opposition to a federal inheritance tax, was mapped out here today by the National Council of State Legislatures.

Ex-Speaker Lee Satterwhite of the Texas legislature, who presided at the gathering, asserted that representatives of every state in the union have joined in the fight.

Plans were laid for the appearance of spokesmen before the House Ways and Means Committee tomorrow to urge repeal of the inheritance tax on the ground that it is a state field of taxation.

WRICKING LABOR BANKS

The collapse of the Labor Banks and Investment Companies of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers.

By Wm. Z. Foster

NOWHERE in the records of American labor history can such sensational treachery of labor be found as presented in this remarkable new book. Looting the treasury of a great union; rifling the insurance funds and pension money; corruption of leaders; speculation with the savings of workers—all the tragic abuse of leadership and policies that nearly wrecked the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers are presented in this book.

The facts are brought to light by the author from the official records of the convention just held which lasted for seven weeks at a cost of hundreds of thousands of dollars.

"Wrecking the Labor Banks" stands out as the most dramatic exposure of the dangers of class collaboration that has yet been written. It is a book that should be in the hands of every worker.

Toronto Workers Win War on Injunction to Bar Sympathetic Strike

TORONTO, Nov. 7.—Declaring that a threat to call a strike does not constitute an illegal act, justice Logie of the Ontario High Court, dissolved an injunction against the Toronto Building Trades Council, which was secured 3 days earlier by building contractors.

The injunction was obtained to prevent the building trades union striking in sympathy with the strike of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of the closed shop. There was no malicious intent in the sympathetic strike, justice Logie ruled. The contractors have appealed to the divisional court and asked for an immediate hearing. But they received another setback, being told they must wait until the court docket is open.

 Another of the members of the I. W. Thousands of miles across the country, in Sing Sing prison in New York, Joseph Perlman, one of the members of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union serving a term in prison for his activities in the cloak-makers' strike, also sends greetings to the conference. "I voice my earnest prayer," he writes, "that the third annual conference to take place in New York City on November 12 and 13 will prove to be a successful undertaking, and that it will tend to further inculcate harmony and cooperation within the rank and file, and enhance the enthusiasm of our comrades to the end of attaining the realization of our righteous cause."

Northwestern Railroad Clerks Get Portion of The Demanded Increase

By HARRY KLETZSKY.
 CHICAGO, Nov. 7 (FP) — An increase of 7 per cent to clerks and 4 per cent to freight handlers employed by the Chicago Northwestern R. R. is awarded in the decision of the arbitration board in the wage case of the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks, Freight Handlers & Station Employees and the road. The award gives clerks an increase of approximately 4c an hour and freight handlers a fraction less than 2c an hour increase. The brotherhood asked for 15c. Nearly 8,500 workers are affected, 5,000 of whom are clerks. 40 per cent of the workers live in Chicago.

Management arbitrators, William Walliser, Northwestern vice-president, and C. H. Westbrook, general auditor, filed a bitter dissenting opinion. They deny that living costs have increased and that they are relevant to the wage issue. "The public will have to stand the cost of this increase," they pleaded, declaring the road's present financial status would not permit an added wage cost of approximately $510,000 which the increase will mean.

Only Part of Demand.
 Brotherhood officials see the award as a partial victory, although the workers received but a fraction of their demand. "We think the evidence introduced warranted a larger increase but the increase awarded is substantial," commented Thomas P. Davis, general chairman of the Northwestern clerks. "We had hoped for more," said E. L. Oliver, who presented the brotherhood's case, "but this is a victory."

The increase will raise the average hourly pay of class B clerks from 55c to 59c and the freight handlers from 47c to nearly 49c. The management urged that the board set the wage of freight handlers at a minimum of 30c an hour, allowing the road to pay the market rate for labor. This wage principle, on which the management's entire case was based, was thoroughly repudiated by the arbitrators.

Bridgeport Weaver Strike Continues; Boss Was Cheating

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Nov. 7.—The strike of the 300 weavers of the Salts Textile Mill is holding strong. The workers, organized in the "Salts' Textile Employees' Association," originally a company union, which the workers turned into an independent union, stopped the looms last Friday afternoon when the management seemed determined to carry out their policy of deducting fifty per cent of the piece rates on what they term "second grade" cloth.

This policy had been practiced for some time, and met with the bitter resentment of the workers, who very often lost from 10 to 15 dollars a week on seconds which the company sold as first grade cloth.

Refuse to Return.
 Production has been crippled. Two weave sheds are entirely closed, while the Salts Mill which is in the receiver-ship of the Harriman Bank of Wall St., has so far refused to meet with the strikers, demanding that the weavers return to their looms before they begin negotiations. This the workers refused to do, and voted to continue the strike which is growing in strength and numbers.

Heavy Orders.
 There is every prospect of a swift victory for the strikers. The Salts Mill manufactures mainly automobile upholstery and roof covers, and has been working on heavy orders from the Fisher Body Co., of Detroit. The strikers demand: Abolition of the seconds system, a 15 per cent increase in wages for all departments, time and a half for overtime, double time for Sundays, better sanitary conditions, i. e., better lights and cleaner wash rooms, no discrimination against any employee. The strike started Oct. 23.

Women Fight to Save Lives of Two Chinese Condemned to Death

HARTFORD, Conn., Nov. 7.—Last minute efforts were being made today to save the lives of two Chinese, doomed to die at midnight unless the pleas of Kitty Soo, young Irish wife of one of the condemned men, are heeded. Kitty Soo was fighting a lone hand for her husband's life until Mrs. Clara A. Ricker, Newark, N. J., welfare worker, became interested and joined forces with the young wife. The board of pardons will be urged today to commute the sentences to life.

Picking Judge to Hear Gov. Jackson Charged With Crime

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 7.—The arraignment of Governor Ed. Jackson and of his three co-defendants on charges of bribery on which they were indicted by the Marion County grand jury on September 9 today was postponed until 9 a. m. Wednesday, because of a hitch in the selection of a special judge to try the cases.

Jackson is charged with bribing Governor McCray of Indiana. McCray has served a term in prison. Criminal Court Judge James A. Collins announced it would be necessary for him to select an entirely new list of three judges Wednesday, since Circuit Court Judge Jerre West of Crawfordville declined to be one of the three judges from whom the presiding judge for the governor's trial was to have been named today.

Meanwhile the Marion County grand jury and the special county prosecutors turned their attention to sensational charges of illegal relations between large public utilities and the state government.

The announcement of Judge Collins will remove Grant Crumpacker, of Valparaiso, judge of the Porter circuit court, and Carl Morrow, of Anderson, judge of the Madison circuit court, from the list of possible judges. From the new list of three names the state will strike off one, the defense one, and the survivor will be the special judge.

"Catchim" Caught.
 Douglas "Catchim," the former assistant manager of the local Burns office, was the first witness of the afternoon session. Wearing a marine private's uniform, he was taken from his guard and marched into the grand jury room.

Assistant United States Attorney Burkinshaw would only say of "Catchim" that "he proved to be a very interesting witness."

The witness was apprehended following a tip that the ex-Burns man had boasted he "would be fixed for life" if he got out of the country, and was found enlisted in the marine corps, just ready to ship out to Haiti on a government troop ship.

Next, in turn, the grand jury heard from Miss Bernice Heaton, Bradner W. Holmes and Robert C. Flora, all jurors in the Fall-Sinclair trial.

W. Sherman Burns in his confession that Sinclair's man Day hired his detective agency to spy on the jurors, said: "Mr. Day told us that inasmuch as the jury was not to be locked up he wanted them placed under surveillance—for their own protection naturally."

The Burns defense was outlined by W. Sherman Burns and his father, Wm. J., as being that the "operatives" merely followed and watched the jurors, but did not bribe or terrorize them.

Scared Jurors.
 It became known today, from testimony of the jurors, however, that practically every one in the jury box had the impression that they were being spied upon, and that when their shadows were made aware that the victim was aware of the operation, strange voices called them up over the telephone and tried to convince them that it was the prosecution which was eves-dropping on them.

Reports made by the Burns detectives mention conversations with some of the jurors, and attempted conversations with others.

Juror Dislikes Publicity.
 Edward J. Kidwell, the Fall-Sinclair juror whose alleged loose talk brought the oil conspiracy case to a mistrial, today filed through his attorneys a petition asking that Don Key King, reporter for the Washington Herald, and Ray Akers, street car employe, be cited for contempt of court.

Mussolini Wages War at Home in Preparation for War Abroad.
 "Let no one mistake the purposes of the Mussolini government in this trial. For the intention of the fascist gang is to go the limit against those who take light-heartedly the trial of these Italian labor men who already have passed through a year of torture in the fascist jails. For the Mussolini government sees that the labor movement and the Communist Party are its deadliest enemies.

"Mussolini is aggressively putting into life the imperialist policies of Italian capitalism. He has established over Italian labor a regime of virtual slavery, cutting wages, and outlawing unions and strikes. He has established the same sort of regime over the peasantry. Mussolini is preparing for new conquests in Africa, in Asia, in the Balkans, and elsewhere, to bolster up his prestige at home and to strengthen the position of the Italian capitalists abroad.

"The only force in Italy struggling today against the war machination and violent labor reaction of the Mussolini government is the militant labor movement inspired and guided by the Communist Party. That is why Mussolini is landing now with such terrific force upon the labor militants and the Communists. That is why the danger is now so great, of this trial resulting in the murder of several prominent labor leaders and the imprisonment for life of many more.

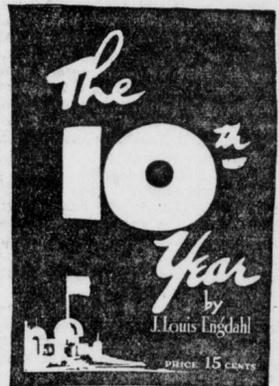

Halt the Hand of the Fascist Murderers.

"The Workers (Communist) Party of America appeals to the American workers and to all labor organizations to join in mighty protest against this fresh attempt of Mussolini upon the Italian working class. We also appeal to the working and exploited farmers to raise their voices in the severest condemnation of the fascist oppressor of the Italian peasantry. We call upon all sincere opponents of fascist rule, all those opposed to new imperialist wars and the fascist government as one of the chief fomenters of imperialist war to stand up in defense of the labor leaders now on trial before the fascist court.

"Condemn this conspiracy of the fascist government against Italian labor. Demonstrate and protest in front of the Italian embassy and consulates. Demand the release of the Italian labor men and Communists now on trial. Save the lives of the active fighters against new imperialist wars and against fascism.

"Central Executive Committee, Workers (Communist) Party of America."

SPEED UP NORTHERN KNITTERS AMSTERDAM, N. Y., Nov. 6 (FP).—One of the large knit underwear mills of Amsterdam, N. Y. is beating southern competition based on cheap labor by speeding up its northern workers. An official disclosed his methods to the Daily News Record, a sale paper.

Knit goods workers are plentiful Amsterdam but only the "fastest, most skilled workers are taken by this plant. They are promised steady employment to stimulate greater production efforts.

SOVIET PROGRESS IS DESCRIBED IN OFFICIAL SURVEY

Growth of Rail Mileage and Trade Stressed

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7. (FP).—Railway mileage in the Soviet Union is close to 47,500 miles, as compared with 36,500 miles in 1913, and 42,500 miles in 1917, says Harold Kellook of the Soviet Union Information Bureau in Washington, in a statistical summary of Soviet progress since the 1917 revolution.

This rail mileage serves a total population of 146,304,931, according to the last census, taken early in 1927. The population in 1913 in the same territory was about 143,000,000, but during the world war and the civil war it sank to about 131,000,000. Hence there has been a gain of 15,000,000 in the past six years—an effective answer to the charge that Russia was committing suicide.

Retail Prices Drop. Retail prices in September showed a reduction of 15 per cent since last fall. The retail price index for September was 198, compared with 100 in 1913. This is no higher, in proportion, than the index in some other European countries. The national budgets have been balanced since the currency was restored to a gold basis in the summer of 1924.

Cooperatives have grown until the consumers' cooperatives have 12,000,000 members, and operate 60,000 stores; the farm cooperatives have 7,500,000 members. Last year these organizations handled 44 per cent of the internal trade and more than 10 per cent of the foreign trade.

Trade Increase. Foreign trade turnover increased from $199,000,000 in 1922-23 to about $800,000,000 in 1926-27, with a favorable balance of $30,000,000. American-Soviet trade last year was $90,000,000, compared with $48,000,000 in 1913.

AIDE ROBS ALFONSO. NAPLES, Nov. 7. — An aide-camp of King Alfonso, of Spain, has been arrested at Seville in connection with the sensational theft of jewels which the king was bringing to Naples as nuptial gifts to Amedeo, Duke of Pigiie, and Princess Anne of France, according to a private dispatch from Madrid today.

ARE YOU GETTING THEM?

November 7, 1926

By MARGARET GRAHAM. The same Red Square... the same Kremlin wall, only dull gray in the heavy mist... with its turrets in the gray. Behind the mausoleum, against the wall, a magic number—9—the birthday of the Revolution.

No need for banners flaunting victory. No need for pageantry, for speeches, for martial strains, stage settings. The deed is in that single number NINE. Next year it will be TEN and then ELEVEN and so on down the years until there is a new number, another ONE and that will mark the first anniversary of the INTERNATIONAL REVOLUTION.

Gray buildings opposite the flying flag, which is also gray, hanging stiffly in the heavy air. Gray soldiers filling the Red Square solidly. Patches of red and blue and green and black. Those are the caps, marking the sections.

Horses saddled in blue and red, white horses and brown and black, riderless, waiting the signal for mounting.

Overflying down the hill soldiers, orderly masses of gray, headed by brass bands, also waiting.

Suddenly from up the line a trumpet call... the strains of the "International." Clatter of horses hoofs, swiftly striking the cobbled pavement... Voroshilov. He sweeps past each detachment and as he comes each band takes up the strain...

The army fills the Red Square. A giant voice speaks to them. No one can see from where the voice comes; but ten magnifying horns mounted on electric light poles give forth the words: "COMRADES... WORKERS... PEASANTS." The content is in a strange tongue, but of the music of this powerful voice one feels the words... and again the refrain: "COMRADES... WORKERS... PEASANTS... THE INTERNATIONAL... VICTORY."

Budenny's march... Budenny himself on the rostrum... inside, so quietly lies Lenin... one remembers the tired, patient, beautiful smile.

Budenny's march... and the soldiers begin to file past. Gray soldiers in the gray mist, marching. Gray soldiers telling the workers of the world that next year it will be TEN and the next year ELEVEN and so on, until there will be a year ONE and that will mark the INTERNATIONAL REVOLUTION.

Their caps tell them apart... otherwise all are alike. It takes one hour for them to march past. As each detachment passes the mausoleum, a salute, a shout, then the black or the gray or the red or the blue or green caps disappear down the hill behind the fantastic turrets of the church of Ivan the Terrible, past the stone base where stood the gallows...

A pause. The soldiers have passed. The crowd strains a little impatiently. The crowd is hungry for heroes. It surges forward to look at the rostrum. It asks: Trotsky? No. Stalin? No... Ahh... Kalenin. It has found Kalenin. It fasts on him. The mounted police press back this hungry crowd... the procession of workers has started.

The square is again filled... this time with red banners. The square is filled with the red banners of the marching workers. Factory after factory... Dynamo, where they make motors for street cars... Amo, where they make automobiles... Textile factories... Mines. There is a stir ahead. The British Youth Delegation, with its flying red banner mounts the rostrum to the left of the speakers. The British Youth, symbol of International Solidarity. Young miners among them, for whom Russian workers have given and give so courageously. Mounted above the millions, they review the spirit of the revolution. Much is expected of them. Fifteen youths, there is much for you to do at home.

Past the British Youth march the Youth of Russia... Siberia... Ukraine... Caucasus. Past the British Youth march delegations of Chinese and Japanese... march Pioneers, march mothers with babies in their arms, march grandfathers.

Past the British Youth march the workers of the Comintern, the Profintern. Fifteen youths, there is much for you to do at home. The crowd is hungry for heroes. The British Youth pleases them. But again, Trotsky? Yes, there at the corner of the rostrum... in the big brown hat... Ahh Kalenin, he is coming down. The crowd surges against the fence behind which lie the dead heroes of the Revolution. They surge back. They see Rykov, then Budenny. They do not see Trotsky lean against the mausoleum and weakly find his way down the stairs, supporting himself with a cane.

It is wet, it is cold. For three hours, for four, for five. Only one district has passed. It will keep on until six in the evening... banners, bands, men, women, children, the workers of the U.S.S.R. The amplifiers announce each delegation. Communist Youth, Hurrah... Hurrah shout the workers and peasants. Street car workers, Hurrah, Hurrah shouts the crowd.

Down the hill, disappearing behind the fantastic turrets of the church of Ivan the Terrible, past the stone base where stood the gallows... into the gray mist, passes the singing crowd... passes the celebration of the ninth anniversary of the Revolution.

As each detachment passes the mausoleum, a salute, a shout, then the black or the gray or the red or the blue or green caps disappear down the hill behind the fantastic turrets of the church of Ivan the Terrible, past the stone base where stood the gallows... for this the sacrifices.

A swift movement across the square... the cavalry is mounted... the cavalry marches. Waves of cavalry. Rhythmic movement with the rise and fall of the swing of the galloping horses. Along the flank of each division, like a fork of lightning, the leader charges past his men. Waves of men and horses. Shining steel.

Quivering horses flying with cannon behind. There must be men there too, but one sees only horses and cannon disappearing down the hill behind the fantastic turrets of the Church of Ivan the Terrible, past the stone base, where stood the gallows.

A pause. The soldiers have passed. The crowd strains a little impatiently. The crowd is hungry for heroes. It surges forward to look at the rostrum. It asks: Trotsky? No. Stalin? No... Ahh... FILIPINO REBEL JOINS FIGHT ON U.S. IMPERIALISM

Enlists Under Banner of Anti-Imperialist League

Pablo Manlapit, fighting Filipino labor leader and recognized as the outstanding revolutionary figure among Filipino nationalists, has become a member of the All-America anti-Imperialist League. This step, taken at a time when Manlapit is at the height of his popularity in the Philippine Islands as well as among Filipino workers in Hawaii and throughout the United States, is of the utmost consequence for the future of the Filipino nationalist movement.

In his letter of application, made public today at the headquarters of the U. S. section of the All-America anti-Imperialist League, 29 Union Square, New York, Manlapit declares that the whole policy of the official Philippine Nationalist Party headed by Manuel Quezon has been wrong. He comes out for a more radical policy and a leadership maintaining close ties with the labor movement in the United States.

Distrusts Politicians. "Like you" he writes, "I am not inclined to think too highly of the politicians. I opine that the Philippines should have new men to lead the struggle for independence."

"The capitalist press misleads American public opinion by saying that only Filipino politicians want independence. This statement is unqualifiedly false. The truth is that the masses of the Filipino people want independence, and that American capitalists and imperialists are there (in the Philippines) to exploit our resources..."

"The big interests—the Wall Street gang of privileged brigands and crooked politicians—are responsible for the outrageous exploitation of my homeland... I hope that the American people may have the courage to establish a labor government."

Then my country can hope for absolute, immediate independence.

Has Confidence of Masses. Manlapit has often been referred to as the potential leader of a truly revolutionary nationalist movement in the Philippine Islands. He is the only leader possessing the confidence of the Filipino masses, whose love he won during his leadership of the great sugar strike of Filipino and Japanese workers in the Hawaiian Islands in 1924—as a result of which he was framed up and set to jail by the U. S. Sugar interests in Hawaii. He was released from prison only a few months ago, after serving his minimum sentence. So greatly was he feared by the Sugar Trust that his release was made conditional upon his leaving the Hawaiian Islands. It being stipulated that he could not go to the Philippines, he was forced to come to the United States, where he is remaining temporarily.

Contrasts Manlapit and Quezon. Commenting upon Manlapit's letter, Manuel Gomez, secretary of the U. S. section of the All-America anti-Imperialist League, pointed out the contrast between Manlapit's declaration and the published statements of Manuel Quezon, president of the Philippine senate, who is in this country conferring with President Coolidge.

"Unlike Quezon (the 'official' leader of Filipino nationalism), Manlapit does not place his reliance for Philippine independence upon some special dispensation from the agents of American imperialism at Washington but upon the revolutionary will of the Filipino masses. When Quezon comes to the United States he visits Republican and Democratic politicians, bankers, businessmen, 'influential people' generally. Manlapit, on the other hand, establishes contact with workers and looks upon the working class as the only essential ally of Filipino freedom in this country. It is significant that Quezon has had not one word to say in support of Manlapit, nor did he make any effort to see him altho he knows of course that he is in this country."

Helps Anti-Imperialist League. The affiliation of Manlapit, following upon the affiliation of Aracelo Almenara who joined some time ago, gives the All-America anti-Imperialist League an excellent starting point for effective work in the Philippine Islands. National sections of the League exist in eleven countries of Latin America and in the United States, but up to the present no section has been organized in the Philippines, altho correspondence with the Islands has been maintained. Scott Nearing recently visited the Philippine Islands for the All-America anti-Imperialist League, stopping off on his way to China.

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 7. — General Jose Gonzalo Escobar today advised President Calles he expected to capture General Hector Almada, the only surviving leader of the counter-revolutionary outbreak of last month, at an early date. He reported that he was hot on Almada's trail. General Jacinto Trevino then will remain the only reactionary leader of consequence at large.

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 7. — Juan S. Adona, former minister to Spain, today was banished from Mexico. He was put aboard a steamer bound for Havana, at Vera Cruz.

The government charged Adona with complicity in the Gomez-Serrano counter-revolution. He will go to Madrid to live, it is understood.

ABYSSINIA Wavers As U. S. and Britain Yelp for Fat Morsel LIVERPOOL, Eng., Nov. 7. — Dr. Wargneh Wagner, who represented the Abyssinian government in negotiations with the J. G. White Engineering Corporation, of New York, for a concession to construct a $20,000,000 dam at Lake Tsana, Abyssinia, declared today that no formal contract had been signed.

"No contract has been signed and so far as I know no misunderstanding exists. We are only too anxious to meet the wishes of Great Britain if the British Government does not approve the scheme that is the end of it."

Berlin Workers Fight Back as Police Attack Tenth Anniversary Meet BERLIN, Nov. 7. — One Communist was shot and seriously wounded and several arrested when police attacked demonstrations in honor of the Tenth Anniversary of the November revolution here yesterday. The demonstrators fought back and injured a number of policemen.

PABLO MANLAPIT

Millions in Moscow Celebrate Anniversary

proves that the toiling masses of all countries look to the achievements of the masses of the Soviet Union as the achievements of the international working class.

Bukharin congratulated the workers of the Soviet Union, the Red Army, the world proletariat, and the oppressed masses of all countries on the occasion of the Tenth Anniversary for having conquered Russian capitalism, seized power and heralding the world revolution.

"We Will Not Rest." "Our best men have given their lives to the revolution," he said. "We will not rest until we have built Socialism. Should our enemies violate our frontiers, disturb our work of peaceful construction, the Red Army will draw its sword to repel the attack of capitalism. Long live Socialist construction! Long live our victory."

Asks Unity With Ranks. Speaking on behalf of the Communist International, Gallagher declared, "I have come from a country whose government has been openly hostile to the Soviet Union. I say that if the capitalist government of my country attempts to disturb the peaceful life of the Soviet Union, the British working class will do everything possible to transform an imperialist war into a social revolution. I declare that the unity of the Communist International alone ensures victory. Everyone who attempts to destroy the unity of the Communist International is the enemy of the revolution."

"Under the Leninist leadership of the Communist International we will execute all of the tasks following from the November Revolution."

Red Army Parade. Following the speeches a parade of the Red Army was held, in which contingents, fully armed, marched in the huge square to the music of military bands, wildly cheered by the thousands of workers as defenders of the workers' republic.

In the meantime the streets of Moscow were filled with mass demonstrations, which after eleven o'clock, took the form of a parade marching to the Red Square. The march past Lenin's mausoleum continued until late hours.

Million In Procession. Over a million people—members of the Party, of trade unions, of the Pioneers—participated in the largest demonstration which has ever been seen in Moscow. Many lorries, decorated with red and filled with children whose young voices mixed with the cheers of the crowd, moved down the streets. Members of the "Osoviachim" marched in the parade.

Innumerable red banners and posters—satirizing the British war-mongers and their satellites—the reformist leaders—were a feature of the parade. Much merriment was caused by an ox—wearing a high hat—representing the British Tories—marching down the street.

Many workers carried posters with figures, showing the rise in production since the first revolutionary years, others with sums of money subscribed by various organizations to the industrialization loan.

Among the marchers were many Chinese working men and women, showing in allegorical groups the struggle of the Chinese against foreign imperialism.

In the evening Moscow was brilliantly lit, workers spending their evenings in the theaters, movies, clubs. Entrance everywhere was free.

Moscow gave itself full-heartedly to the celebration of this workers' holiday, at the same time warning its class enemies that they will meet with strong resistance.

Bratianu Gets Hundred Legal Sharks for Trial Of Leader in Carol Plot BUCHAREST, Nov. 7. — More than 100 lawyers will be present to represent the government and the defendant when M. Manoiescu, under secretary of finance in the Averescu cabinet, is arraigned on Thursday charged with treason in connection with the alleged Carolist plot.

The witnesses will include leaders of the opposition party, several ministers and a son of Premier Bratianu. Manoiescu was arrested late in October at the frontier while returning from Paris, where he had interviewed former Crown Prince Carol.

"WE ARE INVINCIBLE," BUKHARIN TELLS MEETING OF MOSCOW SOVIET

"Our Cause Is the Cause of World Revolution," Communist Leader Says at Anniversary Meet

(SPECIAL CABLE TO DAILY WORKER.) MOSCOW, Nov. 7.—"We are invincible because our cause is the cause of the world revolution," declared N. Bukharin, chairman of Praesidium of the Communist International, addressing official meeting of the Moscow Soviet at the Grand Opera House last night, at the celebration of the tenth anniversary of the November revolution. Scores of delegates from all over the world, addressing the Soviet in the brilliantly decorated theater, voiced their determination to defend the gains of the revolution.

In the center of the stage of the brilliantly decorated theater was a huge red star, with rays—made of red cloth—stretching out to the boxes and the galleries, and bearing the names of world capitals. Against the Red Star stood a bust of Lenin, surrounded by flowers. Nearby stood a guard of honor.

Building Socialism. A stormy ovation greeted Ulanov, chairman of the Moscow Soviet, when he extended his greetings to the foreign workers' delegations. An inspiring speech was made on behalf of the Central Committee of the All-Union Communist Party by Bukharin, who was wildly applauded when he appeared on the platform.

"In our country we are building up Socialism," Bukharin declared. "We are building up Socialism on the basis of the victories won in the fierce struggles of ten years ago. Our Revolution is the bulwark of the international struggle of the proletariat. Hundreds and thousands of the best sons of the proletariat of all countries have died and are dying for our cause. Let their memories be glorified and their names live thru the centuries."

New Historic Epoch. "Our revolution opened a new epoch in the history of mankind. In the ten years before the November revolution capitalism was growing stronger than ever. But at the same time within the very heart of capitalism phenomena were developing which fell on mankind as a tremendous cataclysm—the imperialist war. The war left behind a trail—a picture of the 'general madness of capitalism.' The phantom appeared to threaten the ruin of all human culture."

"Amidst the hurricane of the war appeared the first rumbles from the ranks of the Russian proletariat, which grew into a great force in the form of a huge revolutionary movement. Our revolution having fought off the onslaughts of world capitalism, has stirred the masses to creative work. The Soviets are the new watchword and slogan thruout the world. In our country they are deeply rooted and have become the backbone of the dictatorship of the working class. 'The working class is all-powerful and we to him who will raise his hand against it.'"

Constructive Tasks. "Our constructive tasks are enormous and without assistance we can conquer the most difficult problems which capitalism will find itself unable to solve."

"Our revolution began under the banner of the proletarian revolution. We stand in the vanguard of the world labor movement; we are the only force that can free mankind from barbarity and we claim that this liberation is inevitable."

Revolution Invincible. "We speak in behalf of millions of workers and peasants in the name of the future of mankind. On the tenth anniversary of the November revolution, the All-Union Communist Party calls to the toiling masses of the world and declares confidently, let us one attempt to snatch away the fruits of our victory, the fruits of the victory of the world proletariat. We are invincible because our cause is the cause of the World Revolution."

The last words of Bukharin's speech were drowned in a storm of applause, the whole assembly standing up and singing "The Internationals."

Greets Moscow Workers. On behalf of the Moscow Committee of the All-Union Communist Party, Ulanov, secretary of the Moscow Committee, in a brief speech greeted the workers of Moscow. "The Moscow Party," declared Ulanov, "is the rock against which all attempts to shake the Party will be broken. The Moscow Party is the bulwark of Lenin's will."

Following Ulanov representatives of the foreign workers' delegations spoke, declaring that the Tenth Anniversary is the cause for celebration not only for workers in the Soviet Union but also for workers thruout the world. Workers of Moscow warmly welcomed each foreign delegate and heartily applauded their speeches.

British Delegate Speaks. J. T. Murphy, speaking for the Communist Party of Great Britain, declared that the first duty of the British Party is to defend the first proletarian revolution and to further the revolutionary cause in all countries. "Not only does the Communist Party, but the whole British working class realizes that the proletariat of the Soviet Union opened the way for a better future for mankind. British workers support the Russian Revolution despite the treachery of the British reformist leaders."

The appearance of Clara Zetkin, veteran revolutionist, on the platform was the signal for a tremendous ovation. Zetkin brought to the workers of the Soviet Union greetings from the German Communist Party and from the working masses of her country.

"Germany, through its working masses," declared Clara Zetkin, "regards very sympathetically the building of socialism in the Soviet Union. The late John Reed wrote a book on the November Revolution which he called 'Ten Days That Shook the World.' These ten days have turned into ten years and have given a new direction to the whole epoch. The existence of the Soviet Union shows that the class conscious will of the proletariat can change the world."

Greet Coururier. Warm greetings from the sons of to the workers of the U. S. S. R. by the Paris Commune were transmitted by Vaillant Coururier. The speaker declared that this was his third visit to the Soviet Union. His first visit took place during the terrible famine period; his second visit synchronized with the beginning of the restoration of economy in the Soviet Union. Now, he said, he was witnessing the unprecedented task of building up Socialism.

"You," declared Coururier, "are the future of the world."

Aged Veteran Pledges Aid. Coururier was followed on the platform by an aged veteran of the Paris Commune, Antoine Gay. The speaker expressed his gratitude to the Soviet Union for having received him. "I swear to defend the Soviet Union with gun in hand if any of the imperialist powers dare attack it," concluded Gay.

Speaking on behalf of the toiling masses of India, Saklatvala, member of the English parliament, described the brutality with which British imperialism exploited the workers of India. Men, women, and children, declared Saklatvala, worked not for themselves but for capital, their hours of work being limitless and their wages negligible.

Learn Lesson From U. S. S. R. They could not overthrow this yoke, he continued, because they had no organized leadership, but now after the November revolution they know the path they must follow.

On behalf of the Chinese delegation, Li spoke. "The toiling masses of China," the speaker said, "are now engaged in a particularly difficult struggle against their own bourgeoisie and against the foreign imperialists. However, they hope with the aid of the international proletariat and the aid of the workers of the Soviet Union they will free themselves from the shackles of imperialism."

Greet Barbasse. Henri Barbasse, noted French author, was enthusiastically greeted when he delivered an address on behalf of all of the foreign delegations. Sen Katayama, on behalf of the Japanese Communist Party and Max Klatt, on behalf of the Red Front Fighters of Germany, also addressed the meeting. Representatives of the Donetz miners and of the First National Cavalry Regiment of the North Caucasus, greeted the meeting. The Donetz miners brought two gifts, a miners' lamp and an ax, symbolic of Communist enlightenment, and the necessity for destroying the enemies of the proletarian revolution.

Exchange Greetings. During the meeting greetings were exchanged with similar meetings at Leningrad and Khar'kov. The meeting ended with speeches by representative pioneers who conveyed their greetings in the name of the workers' children of Moscow. The meeting concluded with the singing of the "International." After the meeting a concert and ballet was presented.

Greek Workers Turn Monarchist Meeting Into Labor Protest

(Special Cable to Daily Worker) By G. NICOLIS. ATHENS, Nov. 7.—A royalist mass meeting organized in Saloniki in honor of the monarchist leader Tsaldaris was turned into a labor demonstration yesterday, when workers, after filling the hall and booing the reactionary government and monarchists, marched thru the streets of the city. Tsaldaris cautiously refrained from attending the royalist mass meeting.

THE END OF A GOLDEN DREAM

This article is a chapter in a new book now on the press—"Wrecking the Labor Banks," by Wm. Z. Foster. The chapter, itself an astounding presentation of the inevitable tragedy and danger of class collaboration policies, is but part of the full exposure in the book, the facts of which were taken from official convention proceedings and other authentic documents.

By WM. Z. FOSTER.

THE golden dream is now quite at an end. The disillusionment came during the E. of L. E. convention held in Cleveland from June 6 to July 21, 1927. The delegates got the shock of their lives. They suddenly discovered their union to be plunged into one of the greatest financial failures in American history. The vast network of banks and investment companies, which they had thought to be such a glowing success, turned out to be nothing but a ghastly ruin, the whole thing tottering on the brink of bankruptcy, with sheriffs knocking on the door and lawsuits menacing from all sides. Their trusted and "brilliant" leaders they found out to be chameleons and grafters when not incredibly stupid and incompetent. They learned that not only were their banks and other financial concerns broke, but also that the union funds were gutted, and that they, personally, could be held liable for millions of dollars squandered in the incredible financial debacle. They confronted a desperate situation threatening the very life of their organization. It was indeed a rude awakening.

Faced by this crisis, the dearest in the 64 years' history of the B. of L. E., the delegates practically turned the convention over to a receivership, the Committee of Ten with an attorney, Judge Newcomb, at its head, to find a way out of the shambles. Then for six and a half weeks, the longest convention ever held by the B. of L. E., and at a cost of about $1,000,000, they struggled to rid themselves of the herd of financial white elephants thrust upon them by their leaders and to find a way to save their organization.

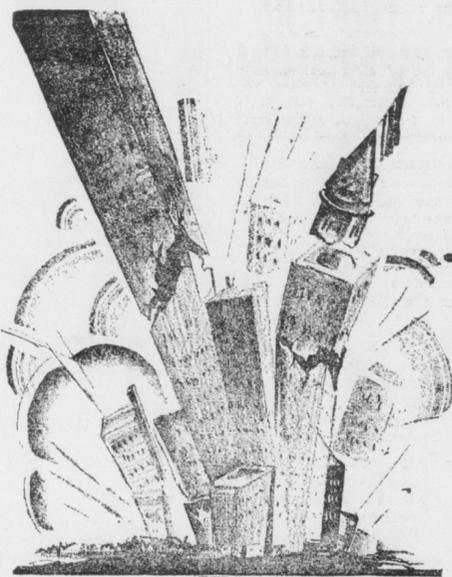

Finance is a Peanut Stand. The convention showed practically every enterprise of the B. of L. E. to be bankrupt. Judge Newcomb said: "The building of the home for the Brotherhood in Cleveland we think could be regarded as a wise move. Every other movement since that time impresses us as of very doubtful character." The lawyer, Soules, employed by the Brotherhood, condemned the whole system of financing in what

Newcomb called "the sternest arraignment from lawyer to client I have ever read in my experience." Delegate McIlvenny of the Committee of Ten sounded the general opinion when he said: "Some years ago a man came out here on this platform (Stone) and said that banking was just as easy as running a peanut stand and, by God boys, that's the way she has been run."

The loss from the many wrecked institutions runs into the millions. No very definite totals were developed. The Committee of Ten submitted no general balance sheet. After studying the financial maze for several weeks Del Van Peit of the Committee of Ten said: "Does anybody know what we owe? Does the Committee of Ten know? Not by a damned sight." Some approximation of the loss can be made, however, from the emergency measures adopted by the convention to meet pressing obligations. First, the convention plastered a $4,000,000 mortgage on the two Cleveland office buildings; then it put on a $7,200,000 assessment on the membership. After all this, Chairman Myers of the Committee of Ten said: "I want to say that at the end of two years the committee will be badly mistaken if we don't find ourselves with an indebtedness of approximately $8,000,000 hanging over us."

Thus the loss would be at least $19,000,000. And this does not take into account millions lost by members in buying stock for which the B. of L. E. cannot be made directly responsible. Del. Merriman even suggested a total loss of $30,000,000, and no one rose to contradict him. That the losses are huge, possibly as much as $20,000,000, was further indicated by the proposals of Mitten (to be dealt with later) which required that the B. of L. E. raise $25,000,000 to cover its bad investments. How hard the erstwhile rich union is hit was indicated by a statement of Del. Huff, a financial trustee: "On July 19th we owed $300,000 to the Corn Exchange Bank in New York and we didn't have a thin dime to pay it with."

Business institutions wrecked, union finances gutted, officials discredited, themselves tricked and robbed, the union itself menaced—it was not a beautiful picture for the delegates. Judge Newcomb rubbed more salt into their wounds when he pointed out that the individual union members were responsible for all the bankrupt institutions in which the Brotherhood held a majority of the stock or where it had guaranteed the investments and loans. He said they were in the same position as the Danbury hatters, and declared: "If there is any default on any of these guarantees, which have been made they can track you back to your homes and follow you down personally and individually to your last dollar."

The Morning After.

As the full force of the disaster hit the delegates they began to get an inkling of what the left wing meant when it had declared in season and out that trade union capitalism is fatal to trade unionism. Let a few quotations illustrate the way the convention was flattened by the news: "I liken this situation a great deal to the San Francisco earthquake, when the city was shaken down and turned up. It has hit us something like that earthquake." Del. Burbank. "You are still, in my opinion, going to have to pass through a baptism of fire; you are simply in the midst of it at the present time." Del. Smith. "We have been in the worst condition it was possible for us to get into." Del. Hedges.

"We have had a bitter, bitter experience." Del. Johnston.

"We are broke and we know we are broke. What is the use of finding out any more about being broke. We are in the soup and the more of the committee (of Ten) we get the more we will find out about being broke. The idea is to get everybody at the pumps, get the lifeboats and save the day." Del. Nelson.

"There never was a bunch of men in the history of this organization or any other that went out (from convention) with such a task." Del. Barret.

"You stand here today confronted with a situation that I do not believe a labor organization at any time before this, in all the history of the world, had to combat." Del. McGuire.

Although the delegates were manifestly determined to save their union at all costs, something of a panic hit the convention as disaster piled on disaster. The lawyers, with their own financial plans in mind, cultivated this panicky feeling. Said a letter from Attorney Squires:

"We do want to impress upon you that in our judgment you are rapidly running to ultimate destruction of your Brotherhood itself and that no measures can be too heroic to be taken by you at once to save the situation."

And Judge Newcomb: "If in this matter I was representing a private corporation I would say 'Let the law take its course,' but I say to you men that I believe you will never under heaven save this organization unless you protect the financial end of it."

One thing the delegates learned—that they have had a sufficiency of trade union capitalism. All voiced that sentiment. It would have taken a brave "labor-banker" to face that disillusioned and enraged body of engineers and spin to them the fairy tales, formerly gospel in the organization, about labor becoming capital and the workers winning a competence by investing in labor banks and similar concerns. Even the most reactionary of the leaders had to yield to the spirit of disgust towards labor financiering that animated the rank and file. Del. McGuire of the Committee of Ten sounded the keynote when he said:

"I have been giving all my time for several weeks to studying this problem and it has resolved itself into three or four words, and they are: 'Get out of it, and the quicker you get out of it, why the better off you will be.'"

The leaders who managed to save their skins in the house cleaning which took place all came forth, for invention purposes at least, as "strong opponents of trade union capitalism and its works. They tried to get a fresh hold upon the rank and file by capitalizing the indignation and resentment in the latter's hearts. Thus, Assistant Grand Chief Engineer Edrington, himself all involved in the financial disasters, put into voice the determination of the body of delegates when he said:

"I hope to see the day come when we can forget about investment companies, holding companies, realty companies, and get back to the old Brotherhood as a labor organization."

Porto Rican Workers in New York

By ALBERT MOREAU.

For the last few years New York has witnessed the greatest inflow of Porto Rican workers that ever immigrated in this land of Wall Street imperialism. Porto Rican workers are leaving their native country where once life was easy and wage-slavery unknown.

At present, there are over 85,000 Porto Ricans in this city, the greatest number of whom are centered in the heart of Harlem.

Since American imperialism set its iron foot on Porto Rico in 1898, the economic life of that country underwent a thro change, always for the betterment of the plantation owners and worse for the native workers. Eager of possession of the tobacco, cane sugar and coffee plantations, the Yankee trusts sought a prosperous field that would increase their capital in reducing the island with its 1,800,000 inhabitants into an American colony. From 1898 to 1920 the wage workers were shifting from the tobacco factories to the sugar and coffee fields with the periodical unemployment. Men worked in tobacco factories in winter while their women in the sugar plants in summer. Men and women had their seasons respectively. The rapid development of the American technic in production, resulting in an intense exploitation of the working masses, brought about the awakening of their class consciousness with the sequel: spasmodic strikes. A general strike took place for the first time in 1919 which was ruthlessly crushed. Since 1920, over 90 per cent of the total production of the Porto Rican tobacco, coffee and sugar is imported in this country by Wall Street speculators. Fleeing from the hungry and misery-stricken abodes, the workers are entering the U. S. A. wherein they find a discrimination against their race, more exploitation and low wages. Most of them are unskilled workers; hotel workers, especially dish washers with an average pay of 10 to 12 dollars per week. Those who work in the tobacco factories are a little better off but the chronic unemployment makes them join the hotel and restaurant workers sooner or later. Still others toil in shoe and electric factories and constitute easy preys for the employers as they work in open shops and know not of the benefit of unions.

Segregated as a race in a limited neighborhood, the Porto Rican workers have to struggle with high rents which have reached the peak in Harlem. The sanitary conditions are dreadful as they crowd themselves in an apartment in order to meet the monthly high rent. Porto Ricans have been given the right of American citizenship and "political freedom" in return for their economic freedom. In spite of that, they deeply feel the rude expatriation. The colony has its main headquarters in Harlem. A few mutual organizations sprang up which promote as well as political rights to their members not through struggle but through the political influence of their leaders.

For Tammany these creole workers constitute a fertile source for an increase in number of votes, in time of election. Hence the appearance of demagogic leaders in these organizations who aid the workers in deviating them from the real issue, i. e. class struggle.

There are two Porto Rican candidates on the democratic ticket for the November election. It is doubtful whether Tammany will gather many votes in spite of the demagoguery of the political leaders of the organizations. Yet, promises and illusions may deviate a good number of these proletarians who belong only to the working class.

Porto Rican workers must understand that if Coolidge and his administration are responsible for the ruthless imperialistic policy towards the Latin American countries, it is because they are the agents of Wall Street. The republican party as well as the democratic party is the party of the capitalist class. It is an error to look upon the democratic party as the expression of a more liberal attitude towards these subjugated countries. If the democratic party were in the White House today, the same militaristic policy would have been pursued by its leaders.

The Porto Rican workers and all Latin American workers must realize that their national independence can only be gained through the downfall of capitalism which can be accomplished by the organized action of the workers on the industrial and political fields.

Other Manufacturers Blame Ford for Slump

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7. (FP)—Henry Ford's long suspension of motor car production, with consequent shrinkage of 500,000 in the year's sale of cars in the United States, is blamed for the business slump throughout the country, by officials of the National Association of Manufacturers and other industrial conservatives, following a suggestion to that effect by the National City Bank.

That one rich man should be able, by his personal choice of policy, to create unemployment and suspension of buying-power among hundreds of thousands of people, in scores of industries radiating out from his own factories, is looked upon as a normal incident of big business consolidation. It is further admitted that within five or ten years it may be possible for one or two or five men to tie up a controlling part of the industries, for any reason that may seem to them to be sufficient.

SANTA BARBARA, Cal., Nov. 7.—A slight earthquake shock was felt here at 3:42 o'clock this morning. Reports from Ventura and San Luis Obispo said the tremor was noticed in those cities. Recently severe damage was done to Santa Barbara by an earthquake.

Lenin Said:-

"Not a single class in history achieved power without putting forward its political leaders and spokesmen capable of organizing the movement and leading it."

And he proceeded to organize the Bolshevik Party of Russia without which the Russian Revolution would have been impossible. We must organize a strong party in this country that will be able to organize and lead the masses.

The Workers (Communist) Party asks you to join and help in the fight for:

A Labor Party and a United Labor Ticket in the 1928 elections. The defense of the Soviet Union and against capitalist wars. The organization of the unorganized. Making existing unions organize a militant struggle. The protection of the foreign born.

"Quality Street"

Marion Davies in Sir James Barrie's Mild and Innocent Comedy

IN that cozy little theatre the Embassy, Marion Davies is on display in the new movie, "Quality Street," a pictorial version of a play by Sir James Barrie produced here in 1902.

Those who like the whimsical juvenilia of that Britisher will undoubtedly be delighted with the present production which is about as far from substance or meaning as anything that can be imagined. The only adequate explanation why the story was resurrected in the present form is that Marion Davies needed something in which she might be cast to advantage.

The story is of a gentle maiden who has a lover who leaves for "twelve years of war" and upon his return finds that the maiden has become a matronly and unappealing schoolmarm. The rest of the picture deals with the wily efforts of the feminine pedagogue to recapture the affection of the handsome officer.

STATE AMENDMENTS TO NEW YORK WORKERS WORKERS PARTY POINTS OUT SIGNIFICANCE OF

The following statement on voting in today's election was issued last night by the New York district of the Workers (Communist) Party to the workers of New York:

"In addition to voting for certain officers in the New York City and New York State governments that takes place today, certain amendments to the state constitution are being proposed to the people of the state of New York. The workers of New York must understand the significance of these amendments and how they affect the working class. The workers must not only vote for the candidates of the Workers (Communist) Party as against those of the democratic, republican and socialist parties but they must also take a stand on the amendments.

Pernicious Laws. "Three amendments, especially Amendments 4, 5 and 6, are pernicious pieces of legislation for the working class and must be voted down. These three amendments are in line with the policy of the capitalist class to concentrate political power into its hands, with the trend toward greater and greater centralization and bureaucratism of the capitalist government. The 4th amendment, increasing the salaries of the governor to $25,000 per annum and of the lieutenant-governor to $10,000 aims to remove these executive officers still further from the pressure of the workers and farmers and to place a still greater burden of taxation upon the masses. It is interesting to note that the low-paid employees of the city and state government are neglected by the democratic and republican officials of the city and state but the highly paid governor and lieutenant-governor are having their salaries increased.

Teachers Paid Little. "The teachers of New York City had to fight for three years to obtain a very small increase; the librarians of the city are receiving mere pittance; the technicians in the city employ are still clamoring for a living wage, not to mention the common laborers, firemen, who have continually to struggle for half decent conditions of work and livelihood.

"The democratic and republican parties have been conducting big campaigns for the passage of this amendment, in contrast to their usual pleas for economy whenever workers in the city and state employ ask for raises to meet the rising cost of living. The socialist party, thru its spokesman, Mr. Norman Thomas, has taken its place side by side with the two old capitalist parties in favor of the amendment. Honest and class-conscious workers will vote against this amendment, No. 4.

"Efficiency" Defined. "Amendment No. 5, making the governor the head of the executive department, is an insidious proposition. This follows the action of the past years when the hundreds of state departments were centralized into 17 or so departments in order to bring about so-called 'government efficiency.' But this centralization of government, this rendering the state apparatus efficient, is well understood by militant workers. It means a quicker and greater use of the force of government by the capitalist parties against the workers. It means that the governor can move the machinery of the capitalist government more effectively against the workers and for the bosses. The democratic and republican parties are campaigning for the passage of this amendment at the same time that they increase the police force by 700, at the same time that they are fighting for more Baumes laws and injunctions against the workers. Mr. Thomas, candidate for the S. P. for assembly in the 8th District, in the New Leader came out in favor of this amendment also. All militant workers will vote down No. 5 as they will vote against Amendment No. 4.

Farther From Masses. "Amendment No. 6 which aims to increase the terms of governor, lieutenant-governor, comptroller, state attorney and state senators from 2 to 4 years, and the terms of state assemblymen from 1 to 2 years, will lessen what little influence and pressure the workers can exert on their state executive and legislative officers at present. Instead of governor and state senators accounting to the people every two years for their actions, this amendment will permit the workers to vote but once in 4 years for these officers. The republicans and democrats want more power for government officials, longer terms of office, less responsibility to the masses of workers and farmers, greater removal from the little pressure of the masses that exists at present.

Socialist Worship. "Mr. Thomas of the S. P. justifies his being in favor of the amendment by stating that it will give the government officials more time to get acquainted with their work, will therefore bring efficiency to the government, that with the use of the 'recall' abuse of power will be prevented. It is needless to mention that power of recall under capitalism is useless, for the capitalist class with its economic power, its control of press, radio, etc., can control 'public opinion' in a manner beneficial to itself. And the worship of the S. P. for efficiency of government, for short ballots, long terms, etc., means but greater attacks upon the workers by the efficiency capitalist government, more injunctions, more police brutality in strikes.

Would Defeat 4, 5 and 6. "Amendments 4, 5 and 6 should be defeated. Workers must oppose all attempts of the capitalist class to strengthen their political power whether it be in the form of longer terms for government agents of the capitalist class, higher salaries for state officials or direct centralization.

"The only other amendment of great importance is No. 2, regarding permission being given to New York City to borrow $300,000,000 for the construction or equipment of new rapid transit railroads, such debts to be excluded in computing its borrowing power. Though the Workers Party knows that much of this $300,000,000 will be but a source of graft, juicy contracts, etc., though the question of union labor is disregarded in the building or equipment of subways, etc., though $150,000,000 of city money has been sunk into the private subway company which has never been returned to the people of the city, though fat salaries still go into the pockets of the traction officials and regular interest payments into the vaults of the banks and bondholders, yet in order to take away any possible excuse from Tammany for the halving of subway construction, all workers should vote for the 2nd amendment.

For the 5-Cent Fare. "This of course will not solve the traction problem of New York City. The workers of New York City must fight for the right of the traction workers to organize, for the maintenance of the 5-cent as against the proposed 7-cent fare (the latter being backed by the bankers, traction interests, republican party and Governor Smith's agent, City Comptroller Berry), for municipal ownership of

In Crowd of 300 at Horthy Ceremony 50 Are New York Cops

Scenes at the laying of the cornerstone for the Louis Kossuth monument on Riverside Drive at 112th St. last Saturday showed a wide and deep antipathy among New York workers of Hungarian descent to the Horthy fascist government of Hungary and its sprouts in this country, Hugo Gellert said in an interview yesterday.

Gellert, New York artist and associate editor of the New Masses, who recently returned from Europe, was a speaker at a meeting of the Anti-Horthy League of New York at Yorkville Casino later last Saturday afternoon.

Strong Police Guard. "The sponsors of the ceremony at the Kossuth statue expected fully 100,000 sympathizers to turn out to hear their speakers," Gellert said. "Between 40 and 50 police officers were present. But the crowd did not number more than 250, whereas between 400 and 500 assembled at the later meeting of the Anti-Horthy League, though it was very hastily planned.

"The resentment of the workers against the Horthy white terror in Hungary was greatly increased by the action of the police at the Kossuth statue in striking and strong-arming peaceful sympathizers of the Anti-Horthy League who were passing out pamphlets advertising their meeting.

Peasants Shot Down. "Everywhere in Europe outside of Hungary I heard stories of the vicious way in which the Horthy government is driving progressive workers, peasants and professional men out of the country. A typical story was one in which Horthy's police shot two peasants on his large estate who had the effrontery to ask for more wages."

The Anti-Horthy League includes members of the republican and democratic parties as well as the Workers (Communist) Party because of its desire to act in the broadest possible manner in enlightening progressives in the United States as to the policy of the present Hungarian government, Lajos Kovess, secretary of the League, said.

Plumbers' Helpers to Get Report Wednesday

'Youth Movement' Class at the Workers School

The most important course for young workers and students to be given at the Workers' School this fall is "History and Problems of the Youth Movement," with Herbert Zam as instructor, according to Bertram D. Wolfe, director. This course will be held Tuesday evenings at 8 o'clock. For those who are actively engaged in the youth movement the course is essential, Wolfe said.

the city's transportation lines, the right of the traction workers and of all classifications of labor to participate in subway management and for the building of more subways. "The other amendments are relatively unimportant and the workers can vote 'yes' on them. The same is true of the proposition regarding the laws of New York City. But 'no' should be the answer of all workers to Amendments 4, 5 and 6. In addition, all class-conscious workers should vote against the candidates of the democratic, republican and socialist parties and for the candidates of the Workers (Communist) Party."

Workers Party Activities NEW YORK-NEW JERSEY

Pioneer Functionaries A meeting of all functionaries of the Young Pioneers of New York will be held at 108 East 14th St., at 6:30 p. m. today. All active school unit members are urged to attend.

Night Workers! Executive meeting will be held today, at 3 p. m., at 108 East 14th St. Come on time. Very important.

Agitprop, Section 1. All sub-section and all unit agitprop directors of Section 1 are urged to attend a special meeting Wednesday at 6 p. m. at 108 E. 14th St., Room 43.

Soviet Union conditions will be the subject of an address by Lazar Weiner at an educational meeting of the Morning International Branch at 108 E. 14th St., Room 42, Thursday at 10:30 a. m.

Sub-Section 1D. A very important meeting of Sub-Section 1D will be held in Manhattan Lyceum, 66 East 4th St., Thursday at 7:30 p. m.

Business meetings of the sub-section are called only when absolutely necessary and the members are expected to respond. Very important matters will be taken up which are of vital importance and every member of the sub-section should attend.

Concert and Dance November 12. A concert and dance to celebrate the 10th anniversary of the Russian Revolution will be given by Section 5, Nov. 12 at 2075 Clinton Ave., Bronx, in the grand ball room. W. W. Weinstein, District 2 organizer, will speak.

Greco, Carrillo to Go on Trial in Bronx

"A warrant for a third man in the case is still unserved," McGeehan said.

"The defendants have been lying in jail three months," Schorr answered. "We ask that they be discharged or the case be dismissed."

The trial was finally set for Dec. 5th.

An International Case. The Greco-Carrillo case is rapidly taking on a national and international character, according to reports yesterday from the Greco-Carrillo Defense League and the International Labor Defense.

"Inquiries coming by mail to our office at 78 East 11th St., from England, western Europe, Russia and South America for information on the case indicate that it is acquiring the significance of the Sacco-Vanzetti case," Filippo Greco, brother of the defendant Greco and secretary of the league, said.

Can Prove Frame-up. "While it appears that we have a perfect case showing that the arrest was a frame-up planned by the Fascist League of North America, it is not good policy to be optimistic when fighting the limitless resources of the Italian fascist government, which we have reason to believe are being employed."

The International Labor Defense yesterday announced the organization of a nation-wide campaign for the defense of Greco and Carrillo. Secretaries of all branches of the I. L. D. throughout the country are being notified that the I. L. D. is actively participating in the defense, the I. L. D. office reported.

A mass meeting for the defense has been called by the I. L. D. for Nov. 27 in the Central Opera House.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—President Coolidge, after reading an appeal presented to him by a delegation of clergy representing the bulk of Protestant churches in the United States, says that he agrees with them that outlawry of war is desirable.

Needle Trade Defense

The nine day bazaar arranged by the Joint Defense and Relief Committee, of the Cloakmakers, Dressmakers and Furriers, which will be held Dec. 23 to 31, at the Grand Central Palace, will be one of the biggest affairs undertaken by the labor movement in New York. The committee has dared to undertake it only because it is sure the workers will help make this bazaar a success.

It is the duty of the entire labor movement to bear in mind these three things: to collect articles for the bazaar; to sell tickets and to solicit advertisements for a special souvenir journal, "The History of the Mineola Frame-up."

Pay Up Your Mineola Lists. The Joint Defense and Relief Committee is calling upon all friends and sympathizers who have received the special Mineola collection lists to turn in whatever money they have collected without waiting until the entire lists are filled.

Daily Worker Chapel Sends In Its Tax.

"The workers of The DAILY WORKER Chapel (composing room), realizing the bitter fight against the reactionary clique of the officialdom of the needle trades international, and to help bring this fight to a successful conclusion, unanimously respond to the $1 tax imposed by your organization on the rest of the working class of this country," a letter from the chapel said. "Fight on! Victory is yours! Enclosed please find $11."

The Joint Defense Committee also acknowledges receipt of $10 from the German organization, Sick and Death Benefit Verein Branch No. 102 of San Francisco.

The Joint Defense Committee requests all sweater makers and carpenters to call at the defense office and ask for Ludwig Landy.

There is an abundance of clerical work to be done in preparation for the bazaar. Those who can spare a few hours during the day are asked to come to the office of the Defense to help. The office is open from 9 a. m. to 7 p. m. After 6 p. m. the entrance is thru 22 East 17th St.

Workers to Celebrate Revolution with Dance

Large numbers of New York workers are planning to "dance until dawn" in further celebration of the tenth anniversary of the Russian Revolution at Webster Hall tonight.

Mass Gathering Cheers 3 Cloakmakers' Release

Grossman said he, Friedman and Borenstein were "proud to have suffered" in such a cause.

Ready Again. "We are ready to suffer again if necessary," he added. "Long live the Unity Committee for the re-building of the Cloakmakers' and Dressmakers' and Furriers' Unions."

A motion was passed unanimously by the large audience to send greetings to the remaining left wing prisoners in Sing Sing and Hart's Island prisons.

Landy in greeting the released prisoners pointed out that "today the revolutionary workers all over the world are celebrating the tenth anniversary of the establishment in Russia of the first workers' and peasants' government."

"Tireless and Honest." Slonim said he had never seen as tireless and honest workers as those of the members and leaders of the Joint Boards of the Cloakmakers' and Furriers' Unions. Turetzky expressed thanks for the support given the families of the released men while they were in prison.

THE THIRD DEGREE.

Confessing that he identified as a murderer a man he had never seen before to escape the beatings of Detective Sergeants Samuel J. Battle and William Boyden, Richard Daly has told why he had caused the arrest of Leroy Leaks, janitor of 29 W. 99th St., confined in the Tombs for three months awaiting trial for a murder of which he was innocent. Leaks has been released from jail but District Attorney Banton said there would be no investigation.

Labor Union Notes and News (A Review of Local Trade Union Activities)

By JOHN THOMPSON

Undoubtedly the biggest labor news of the past week was the gage of battle thrown down to the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employees by the traction companies of New York and Brooklyn and its acceptance by the American Federation of Labor.

As the news has been covered completely by The DAILY WORKER it is not necessary to go into all the details of the various happenings from the firing of the B.-M. T. workers to the announcement that the Amalgamated would fight back and refuse to be dictated to by the traction trust of the city.

Suffice it to say that the stage was set, unwittingly it is true, for a grand battle between the two opposing forces and optimistic people were hoping that the injunction question so much talked about by the A. F. of L. officialdom fought to a finish once and for all.

In no other state has legal and public sympathy for labor gone so far in the matter of injunctions than they have in New York. So it looked as if the traction barons had played into the hands of the union organizers when they applied for an injunction to restrain the labor agitators.

The time, the conditions and the pronounced unpopularity of the traction lords or thieves all played into the hands of Coleman, Shea and the Amalgamated Union agents and organizers.

It is regrettable that the union officials do not care to follow up their splendid advantages. Besides raising the question of the right to organize the B.-M. T. and the I. R. T. workers the officials of the A. F. of L. in Greater New York not directly connected with the Amalgamated Union criminally neglected to use their political power to force the traction companies to come to terms with labor. They could have got the health authorities to make life miserable for Hedley and company. They could irritate the traction barons by incessant demands for more men to keep the trains and the stations on the elevated and subway lines clean and sanitary. In these and in many other instances union organizers could keep up a steady barrage of poison gas on Frank Hedley and his aides until he surrendered.

But instead of using the politicians the union officers allowed the politicians exploit them and make capital without giving anything in return. The jazz hound mayor, Jimmy Walker and the champion con man Governor Al Smith who owe a great deal to the labor union officials of New York, are now getting ready to put the skids under Coleman and Shea, the Amalgamated organizers and leave them stranded.

In the matter of the July 26 agreement, that the union men so often refer to and which has been flatly and bluntly denied by the B.-M. T. officials, Mayor Walker is most evasive. Although repeatedly questioned Walker neither affirms nor denies the union contention. Had he come out in the open and said: "Yes; the traction officials did so agree to let Messrs. Coleman and Shea organize the workers regardless of the standing of the 'company union' it would mean much to the Amalgamated. But no, Walker is evasive. Al Smith, who has the A. F. of L. endorsement for the presidency of the United States in his vest pocket and who is undoubtedly the most powerful politician in the state of New York could by a word give incalculable aid to the union organizers. But he jazz hound Jimmy Walker he dodges and twists and squirms out of the question. One is evasively noisy; the other is evasively silent. Both are all set for a sell out.

We now learn that Mahon, the big chief of the Amalgamated has gone back to Detroit and will not return to the city until President Green of the A. F. of L. arrives and just what either of these gentlemen can do to ease the traction situation other than to pledge the support of the American Federation of Labor in the legal battles that may be fought as a result of the injunction application by the traction bandits, is hard to see.

The moral effect of their eloquent resolutions none will deny but it does appear to a trained and veteran observer that the time for high sounding phrases and long-winded dissertations on the U. S. constitution has about ended and the time for action has arrived.

The A. F. of L. in one of its official publications says "the company union is doomed." It asks, "Will the workers hereafter reject every scheme that denies them full freedom to associate with their fellows? Will the public be lulled by the rhythm and melody of pleas that are socially unsound?"

To the foregoing the A. F. of L. editor answers: "As long as the workers depend upon industrial autocrats and the public are lured by phrases just so long will America have discord and anarchy."

Making threats and not following them up as the A. F. of L. officials are doing in the traction case is doing more to promote the very anarchy their own editor so strongly condemns.

As I write this article the news comes in over the wire that "Boly" Wagner, Tammany United States senator, will not act in the injunction fight. His office stated that Senator Wagner would only be able to attend one case for the Federation and that some other counsel would have to be engaged "as his political work in Washington will demand most of his time." This is in line with the silence of Al Smith, the evasiveness of Jimmy Walker and an indication that the democratic leaders are all set to put skids under the Amalgamated and throw them to the mercy of the traction trust.

The case of the striking coal miners is to be given special attention at a conference of the American Federation of Labor in Pittsburgh or Washington soon. As the coal situation directly affects President Green since it is his own union, the U. M. W. of A. is involved. I am hoping that he will put ginger and pep into the conference and get something done to stop the outrages committed daily by the thugs and gunmen employed by the coal trust. The situation in Pennsylvania and Illinois is bad. They are suffering from too much coal and from too little demand for it. Like the Welsh and English colliers American miners are being hit by progress, by the application of oil and electricity to industry and shipping.

The craft character and the inherent selfishness that is a part of all craft unions shows itself in the withdrawal of the Bricklayer Union from the Building Trade Department as a result of a sectional quarrel with the plasterers. There is only one way to settle all craft rows and end jurisdictional quarrels in the building trades and that is to combine them in industrial unions permitting the crafts to retain their autonomy in routine and inconsequential matters while fundamentals and matters of trade authority would be reserved for the local industrial union. In this way all contracts would expire on the same day and conditions would tend toward uniformity and stabilization. Many unnecessary craft unions could be gradually eliminated by fusing them together.

The International Longshoremen's Association has lost its first strike since pre-war days. Last week the lighter captains employed in the freight barges of the Harbor of the Port of New York lost its demand for $2.50 a week increase in pay. This group works under conditions that can be scarcely called civilized, something on a par with those obtaining in the peonage camps of the south. President Joseph P. Ryan, of the I. L. A. told the strikers that he would back them up with the longshoremen to the limit. He did not make good his pledge, no doubt due to the fact that his men on the docks were tied up by a contract recently signed.

ROCKEFELLER RULE IN COLORADO

By Fred Ellis.

RED RAYS

FOR the first time since the workers and peasants of the Soviet Union celebrated an anniversary of the November Revolution the capitalist press was free from the croakings of prophets who specialize in predicting the doom of the Soviet government. On the contrary, testimony to the stability of the revolutionary regime came from many quarters. Even the reactionary Herald-Tribune, which comes as near to being the official mouthpiece of the Republican Party as possible under the political conditions existing in the United States, declares that the phenomenal growth of trade between this country and the Soviet Union, brings recognition within bounds of probability at a comparatively early date.

IT is interesting to note that Alexander Kerensky, short-lived premier of Russia in the days that intervened between the overthrow of the Czar's government and the rise to power of the Bolsheviks, chose the Tenth Anniversary of the Soviet regime to publish a book entitled "Catastrophe" which presumably pictures the downfall of Russia under the present government, as seen thru the eyes of a bourgeois agent. A catastrophe there was it is true, but it is sufficient to say just now that one of the chief casualties is Mr. Kerensky.

AS these lines are written William J. Burns may be facing a grand jury to account for his latest attempt at jury-fixing. In the meantime I shall give you one good reason why there are detectives. It was taken from the files of a Burns man in a Washington Hotel: "Pursuant to instruction from principal W. J. B. I left the agency at 12 noon, packed my bag and proceeded to Washington, D. C. to meet manager C. G. R. Upon arrival I was given juror Number 10—Goucher as my subject. I checked into the Washington Hotel and discontinued. Expenses $17.52. Time one day." I submit that this is not so bad for a day's graft, in addition to salary.

THE Greek government wants to know how the United States "controls" the radicals. So we are informed by Arthur Brisbane. And Arthur saves the government the trouble of replying, with the one word prosperity. But should the Greek government read the American press it will not have to rely on Mr. Brisbane's charm against rebellion. It can see the pictures of soldiers with guns "controlling" the striking miners of Colorado, who would like to have Brisbane's friend John D. Rockefeller share more of his prosperity with them. The Greek government has nothing to learn from the United States in the art of crushing the workers. The gun is the thing and speaks a universal language.

WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST has had another relapse, but physicians report that his chances of recovery are good. The noted publisher has suffered from periodical attacks of this malady for several years and it is known to strike him in its most malevolent form preceding elections. The disease takes entirely opposite forms at times. The present attack is the mild variety as manifested by an editorial in his New York American in favor of Al Smith. The editor is expected to be sufficiently recovered next week to call Al Smith a rascal.

WILLIAM Hale Thompson of Chicago has offered a prize of $10,000 for the best history of the United States to go along with his "America First" campaign. Here is a chance for one of our chronic biographers to write a popular life of Uncle Sam with just enough of his loves to antagonize the daughters of the American revolution. A history beginning with the "Stars and Stripes" would surely win the prize, since Thompson is one of those fellows who likes a book with a fly leaf for a first page.

THE woman in "The Spirit of Viceroy's Island" last week, seems to me to be doing all the fighting with the consent of the uniformed males, judging from a picture that appeared in the New York Times. The only other person willing to step out into the open is a fellow who is waving his sword in the direction of the enemy, with the suggestion that the heroine follow the sword. Behind the female is a husky warrior who holds her in a most delicate manner by both shoulders while his legs show the strain of trying to push forward an almost immovable object. Behind them all are several others having a good time blowing bugles. We hope the lady didn't get bruised.

WHILE on the subject of fascist dictatorships, we notice that Mussolini is about to call on his friend J. P. Morgan for another $100,000,000 loan. Does this mean that Benito is again facing a political crisis? When, after the murder of Matteotti, Italy stood on the brink of a political volcano, the House of Morgan came to the rescue of Fascism and with the aid of American gold the blackshirt regime was able to survive. The black dictatorship of capitalism in Italy is holy in the sight of Wall Street but not so the red dictatorship of the workers and peasants in the Soviet Union.

The Latin American Bloc, the Havana Pan American Union Conference and the American Working Class

Dr. Max Jordan, the Washington correspondent of the Berliner Tageblatt, having completed a tour of Latin America, is writing a series of articles for the New York World, setting forth his opinion of the status of American and Latin American relationships.

Specifically in regard to the Sixth Annual Pan American Conference to be held in Havana, January 16, Dr. Jordan states plainly that the Latin American governments are "manifesting their unanimous opposition to any further interference by the United States in the affairs of her neighbor republics in Central America."

Wall Street government evidently attaches great importance to the coming conference since President Coolidge is to attend in person. Coupled with the recent appointment of a member of the House of Morgan as ambassador to Mexico, it is clear that Latin American relations have taken first place in state department policy.

The demand is being made, with Mexico the most emphatic voice, for the removal of the headquarters of the Pan American Union from Washington to some Latin American capital.

The invasion and conquest of Nicaragua has aroused intense feeling in all Latin American countries and there is little doubt that the Havana conference will find a solid Latin American bloc demanding an end to American intervention. It is likewise probable that the whole question of the interpretation of the Monroe Doctrine which in official Washington makes the interests of American imperialism paramount, without regard for the sovereignty of the Latin American republics, will be raised.

The Mexican government, having stamped out the latest counter-revolution, altho burdened down by something like a half-billion dollar debt to Wall Street, is in a position to give some leadership to the Latin American bloc. For the moment the special interests of the oil companies are shoved into the background and the Mexican government finds itself confronted openly by American finance-capital.

Much will depend upon the line followed by the Calles-Obregon forces at the Havana conference. A firm resistance to Wall Street pressure will strengthen immensely the Latin American bloc. A weak policy will tend to demoralize it and make easier of accomplishment the extensive program of penetration and corruption, with the use of armed force where "necessary," which Wall Street's policy in Nicaragua exemplifies.

For the American working class and the organized labor movement it is of great significance that the conference is to be held in Cuba where the suppression of the labor movement by the government was of such a widespread and bloody character that the executive council of the American Federation of Labor was forced to protest. The Machado government, American imperialism's puppet, has reopened the campaign of suppression. It is evidently planned to present Cuba to the representatives of other Latin American governments as a country where no voices of discontent, coming from the working class are heard, as proof of the beneficent nature of Wall Street aid to struggling republics.

As the date for the conference approaches there should be organized and sponsored by the American labor movement, at one and the same time, a campaign against the imperialist program of Wall Street government in Latin America and for the fullest exposure of the horrors which the National City Bank and other Wall Street institutions have, thru the Machado government, inflicted upon the Cuban masses.

Oppression of the Latin American masses and American imperialist domination of Latin American countries go hand in hand.

The Robot

(The Westinghouse Electric Company has created a new mechanical man.—News item.)

The myth became reality, indeed, The Robot toiled and served his every need. And now the master cried in joy: "At last The days of unions and of strikes are past! This beats the Federation—and no shaft To pay!" And so the master loudly laughed. One need but speak, the Robot must obey. Of four and twenty hours his working day. The Robot had no union, so it seems, And no class consciousness and no fair dreams Of freedom or of justice, for his head Was but a block. He was not housed or fed But he was simply told to do a thing And to obey he'd always quickly spring— Close, open doors, or help a lady stout Unlace her shoes, or put the house cat out, Or lift great burdens in his tireless hands, In fact, do all the labors that were man's. But soon the Robot he began to rock And rattle and his knees began to knock, For he grew tired, worn out with so much toil. And his machinery began to spool. One day, while polishing his master's shoes, The Robot broke. And no amount of glues Or wires could mend him, for his work was done, Devoid of thought, of leisure or of fun. And so we laid the Robot in his grave. Don't be a Robot!—this the moral, Slave!

Money Writes

By Upton Sinclair

The task of portraying the "wobblies" was left to another "romantic" novelist, Zane Grey. Dr. Grey—who began his life at the more useful work of dentistry—wrote a novel "The Desert of Wheat," in which he portrayed the industrial workers as degenerates and criminals, whose occupations were burning barns and crops, and abducting beautiful heroines. It has been my fortune to meet some hundreds of "wobblies"—they have a way of coming to see me when they get out of jail, and telling me what has happened to them. They are men with souls of steel, tried in a fiery furnace. I happened to see the filming of the moving picture made from Dr. Grey's romance, and could discover no resemblance between the haggard martyr faces I knew, and the moron types selected by the casting director.

It happened that shortly afterwards I met Dr. Grey personally, at a ball in the home of a moving picture producer. We were standing on the sidelines watching the show—since neither of us happens to be an ornamental or festive person. Desiring to be affable, I remarked, "I have noticed a curious thing—I make my heroes out of the same fellows that you make your villains of." I don't remember what Dr. Grey replied, but I learned afterwards that my remark had caused him great uneasiness. He repeated it to our host, asking plaintively, "How do you suppose anybody could make heroes out of my villains?"

And while we are listing the great romantic champions of hundred per cent Americanism, let us not overlook Harold Bell Wright. Rev. Wright—he began as a Christian (Disciples) clergyman—has evolved out of his inner consciousness an America of the open spaces, vast, clean and wholesome, a Christian (Disciples) clergyman's wish-fulfillment. In this romantic America, virtue is always rewarded at face five hundred and something, with good common sense rewards such as good common sense Americans appreciate. As to the relationship which this romance bears to reality, the figures have been worked out by a mathematician—one of those bright young writers for the "New Republic" whom the hundred per centers so cordially despise. This young writer studied Rev. Wright's novel, "The Re-Creation of Brian Kent," according to the laws of compound mathematical probability, and I summarize briefly:

The hero, a criminal fleeing from justice in Chicago, arrives in a village in the Ozarks, the home of "Auntie Sue, the silver-haired and golden-hearted re-creator." Estimating that there are three thousand villages to which he might have fled, we have an initial probability of one in three thousand. The hero, drunk, drifts upon a roaring river, and it would take a hydrographic chart to determine the chances of his boat stopping on a certain sand-bar; but we figure conservatively one chance in two hundred, which make the cumulative probability one in six hundred thousand. Auntie Sue has sent some Brazilian bank-notes to the Chicago bank which the hero has robbed, and as there are eight thousand banks in America, that is an item easy to figure. The notes arrived on the very day that the hero could steal them, which introduces yet another element of uncertainty.

It is a very long novel, and there enter such elements as Auntie Sue's happening to select just the right one out of thirty thousand stenographers in the United States, to come and type the hero's manuscript; also the chance of the hero's faithless wife with her paramour selecting a cottage just across the river for a summer-resort. With such striking coincidences, the odds mount up fast, and when we get to the end we find that the chances of this particular wish-fulfillment of a Christian (Disciples) clergyman ever being brought about by a law-abiding Providence are one in 3456 followed by thirty-two ciphers; or if you find it easier to say, one chance in three hundred and forty-five billion and six hundred millions of thousands of millions of millions of billions.

The Charm-Poacher

THE moral content of ivory tower art consists of cruelty and sensuality; the former deriving from the fact that the artist repudiates the brotherhood of man, and the latter from the fact that he repudiates the comradeship of woman. There are two uses for women in the ivory tower—first, to sweep and dust and scrub the floors, and second to entertain the master by the exercise of that mystical thing he calls "charm." The worst enemy of ivory tower life is boredom, and this puts a heavy task on the charmers; a great many are needed, and they have to work desperately to keep their charms active with lipsticks and scented extracts in slender violet or green vials from Paris. With the best of efforts they are unable to equal the charming of newer and fresher rivals, and so we have tragedies, which afford themes for splendid art works by the next generation of ivory tower dwellers.

It is notorious that a few women are not content with either function, the dusting-sweeping-scrubbing, or the lipstick-scented-extracts-from-Paris-charming. These women insist upon having something to do with their own destinies, and they are called "shrews," and are the especially bane of ivory tower artists; the condition of being entangled with one of them affords the basis for the comedies of ivory tower life. The artist who is so unlucky as to have his tower seized by a shrew is obliged to flee from her tongue, and he wanders over the world, looking for some charm belonging to some other man, which the wandering artist can steal, because the other man is obliged to be away from home, earning money to pay for the lipsticks and scented extracts from Paris.

The artist thus flits like a bee from charm, and has a gayly impudent formula which expresses his attitude, "I'll try anything once." Afterwards he can put it into a novel, and live for a lifetime on the royalties; his method of getting something for nothing represents the dearest wish of every member of the leisure classes, and so their favorite fiction deals with charm-poachers.

Eight years ago a clever writer published the life-history of a charm-poacher by the name of "Jurgen." I don't know just how it happened, no doubt some friends of the author called the attention of the anti-vice society of New York to the book, and the publisher was arrested, and the price went up to twenty dollars a copy. The result was that every college undergraduate of any literary pretensions made it the aim of his young life to get "Jurgen" and sit up all night with it, and start trying anything once the following night. So it has come about that James Branch Cabell is the hero and idol of ninety-nine per cent of our young intelligentsia, and his ivory tower in Richmond, Virginia, almost overtops that of Mr. Hergesheimer.

This son of a distinguished old Virginia family earned his living for many years as a genealogist; that is to say, he was employed to search out or invent ancient lineages and construct family-trees for purse-proud snobs. This has given him inventiveness, pliability of mind, and intimacy with ancient documents and titles; as a fiction-writer he has employed these qualities in the construction of a mythology so plausible that you can hardly tell it from the real—in fact I never did make sure how much of the Jurgen legend is found in the encyclopedia and how much is cabellous. Jurgen wanders far, and many strange experiences befall him, and for a while you are puzzled as to what it is all about; but soon you discover the key, and after that it is all simple; there is a male generative organ, and a female generative organ, and the former approaches the latter, and that is all that ever happens in the Cabell ivory tower, and all you need to know about the fiction, mythology, history, philosophy, art and Episcopal religion of the gentleman in Richmond, Virginia.

I have friends who know Mr. Cabell, and report him as an amiable person, and protest against the vehemence of my loathing for his books. It is not considered good form for radical writers to object to obscenity, for fear of giving aid to the censor. Because you don't want to have your opponents hit over the head by a policeman's club, it is assumed that you make no opposition to them whatever, but take a flabby attitude on moral questions, granting anybody's right to teach anything without rebuke. At risk of numbering myself among the reactionaries, I rise to say that all life is a series of acts of choice, and that according as we choose wisely or otherwise, we have happiness or suffering, for our innocent posterity as well as for ourselves. That is the meaning of morality; and while scientific progress will alter our choice, nothing will do away with the need of choosing, or the importance of choosing right. The fact that we abolish the policeman's club implies that we intend to make all the more vigorous use of other forces; to wage what William Blake calls "moral fight" in favor of wise and sound life-choosing.

Therefore I give my opinion, that "Jurgen" is one of the most depraved and depraving books ever published in America. It is a long jeering, not merely at marriage, but at love, and every notion of loyalty and honor in love. Jurgen's formula, "I will try anything once"—meaning, of course, I will have sexual relations with any woman once—has had eight years to be thoroughly bootlegged among the college youth of America; and I am moved to wonder how many thousands of lads have been caused to suffer atrocious torments from gonorrheal infection, or to spend their later years in wheelchairs as a result of syphilitic infection.

I write this, and my friend and biographer, Floyd Dell, who is reading proofs, is moved to violent protest. He thinks "there are so many other moving and realistic persuasions to sexual intercourse"; also that "such books actually take the place of overt action for the people who read them, as Omar's verses take the place of booze." My answer is that of course a great many book-people do lose the habit of action, but surely not all. I have known a number of "booze-fighters" who quoted Omar with genuine fervor. Of course it is not true that an art-work inspires every person to action every time; nevertheless, it is true that art-works are one of the great sources of human action, and have been so recognized by all who wished to incite to action. To say that people can be taught to ridicule true love without ever being led to practice false love, seems to me to overlook the most elementary facts of psychology.

It happens that Floyd Dell is not a worshipper of Cabell's art. But others are, and these fly into a rage with me. "Jurgen" is a priceless work of literature, they tell me, so charmingly written, so witty and sophisticated—surely that makes a difference! My answer is, it makes just as much difference as does the fact that a rattlesnake has the scales on its back arranged in pretty patterns, or that the teeth and claws of a tiger are of ivory whiteness and gracefully curved. You know exactly how much difference that makes to you, when you find the rattlesnake or the tiger in your home.

I HEAR!

I hear drums beating, beating, beating: In the stumps men are marching toward a greeting; It benumbs senses fleeting, fleeting.

I hear beats—booming, booming, booming: Through the streets, passion flagrant, passion fuming, there retreats the monstrous tyrant looming!

I hear songs rising, rising, rising: Paean of wrongs turned to gladness, realizing Giant prongs Labor is at last devising.
