THE workers of Paris and their Commune will be honored as the harbinger of the new society. Their martyrs erected an everlasting monument to themselves in the great heart of the working class. Their hangmen, history has nalled to the post of shame and no power will ever remove them!

"The Commune was the higher and more pliable political form. The actual secret of the Commune lay in the fact that in its labors it was the government of the working class: The result of the war of the producing class against the exploiters.
